See San Diego and Live.
Everything Multiplied by Ten.
Uncle Sam's Safety.
Bright High School Girl?

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 20.

WILL ROGERS' favorite expression, "You have not seen anything yet," applies to all that have ever been here. If Adam and Eve had known about this place, they would have packed up little Cain and Abel and moved out of the garden, not waiting for any angel to drive them.

EVERYTHING that you have ever thought about or wanted is here, and many things that you never imagined. Think of the best things ever said about climate and sunshine, multiply that by 10, and you have San Diego.

Every man, woman and child here says "why anybody able to come here should live anywhere else is a mystery." They are right, it is a mystery.

BY way of prediction, which please write down on your cuff, this writer wishes to say that fully developed air travel, with 24-hour round trip from ocean to ocean, will build up permanent and transient population in this city and territory surrounding it, as no place on earth has ever been built before.

THERE is a park of 1,400 acres in the heart of San Diego, and, more important, the schools, as fine as any on earth, are constantly increased in number and size. Bell boys and elevator boys at this El Cortez Hotel are dressed like champion bull fighters, straight brims to their hats, clothes, orange and black, but better dressed than bull fighters, and fully as proud.

POINT LOMA, reaching out into the Pacific from San Diego, its high points owned by Uncle Sam, makes everything on the Mediterranean look like small real estate on a nice little lake, and a trip out there makes you realize that while we talk sweet nonsense at peace conferences in London, we have men in our Army and Navy interested in this country's safety.

Far below you on the harbor's smooth water, a line of strange little boats is coming in, a periscope sticking up over each. They are submarines, on the way home from Hawaii.

A ROAR overhead makes you forget the submarines.

Eighteen swift planes, in perfect formation, three in a row, six rows deep, whirl past, close to the ground. Then, rising higher, the 18 bank, at the same time, their tops glistening in the bright sun. Every few minutes, the formation changes. One slightly ahead, two in the rear, side by side the planes look like six flying shamrocks, so close together at high speed, you wonder that collision can be avoided.

The head pilot, with a two-way radio, talks to the earth and to each of the five men in charge of their planes, behind him.

MAJ. GEN. FECHET, chief of United States Army Air Service, with 80 skilled pilots here, trains them admirably. Seeing those 18 machines, safe from ground attack, able to swoop down from invisible heights to attack surface ships, you realize why European nations are willing to stop battleship building. Why build fifty million dollar targets for air bombs?

THERE, from Point Loma, in those airships above and the submarines plowing along on the surface, you see the future safety of the United States.

Uncle Sam should build enough planes and submarines, always building more, bigger and better, until he dominates the world. Then he should say:

"Now I am ready to talk peace with anybody, and war, too, if necessary. Bother me, and I'll destroy your fleets with my submarines and your cities with my airships. If you don't believe me, come and count them."

"If you are for peace, I'll help you maintain it, and I'll force it in my neighborhood."

MANY interesting people among 700, gathered for luncheon by San Diego's Chamber of Commerce with President H. G. Hotchkiss, the mayor of the city, and the able Milton A. McRae, early builder of Scripps McRae, managing the party, Claude Ryan is there. You ought to know him. He built the ship in which Lindbergh flew to Paris and fame. Just outside the city's heart you can see the factory and the spot that Lindbergh left when he raised the Spirit of Saint Louis into the air, bound for France via New York.

Also you meet William Hawley Bowlus. He superintended the building of Lindbergh's plane. Now he holds the American "glider" record, up nine hours and five minutes without an engine.

Not a man over thirty in that airplane factory when the great plane was built. Youth is wonderful.

AND Miss Frances Linda, who wishes to interview you, for the high school paper, says eight boys in her school are building a glider for themselves, several are taking glider lessons, those that can afford to take "regular" flying lessons.

American youth has enterprise. Her question, "What studies are most important for high school students?" is an-

BULLETS FLY AS THIEVES ESCAPE

Bullets spattered against the walls of Liberty tubes early today as two auto thieves and police fought it out with guns in the tunnel.

Fleeing in a stolen car at 60 miles an hour, the bandits opened fire upon the pursuing officers. The police returned the fire while the cars careened madly toward the north end of the tubes.

ESCAPE IN HILL

When they left the tunnel the bandits sped to the Hill district, where they leaped from their machine and escaped. The car, said to have been stolen from Samuel Shapiro, 378½ McKee place, was recovered.

Lieut. Charles W. Senn, of the Mt. Lebanon police, was attracted to the occupants of the machine at Bower Hill road and Coolidge avenue, Mt. Lebanon, but the men fled at his approach. He followed in a police car. At Beechview junction, Motorcycle Officers Casper Hasley, of Dormont, and Joseph Susnak, of Mt. Lebanon, tried to halt the pair, but were forced to jump to safety when the driver attempted to run them down.

NEAR COLLISIONS

Senn, Hasley and Susnak continued pursuit, the lieutenant passing through the tubes into Pittsburgh. One of the occupants of the car discharged six revolver shots at Senn, who returned the fire.

At the north end of the tubes, and again on Forbes street, both pursued and pursuing cars narrowly missed collisions with other automobilists, Senn said.

Senn was joined by city police at Fifth avenue. The pursued men jumped from the automobile at Dinwiddie street and escaped by running into an alley. The Shapiro car was towed to a city garage, Senn said.

ROPER URGES WAR DRY TACTICS

Defense Councils, Governors' Call by Hoover Proposed By First Prohibition Czar

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Revival of war-time methods of mobilizing the people of the nation for enforcement and observance of prohibition was proposed before the House Judiciary Committee today by Daniel C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue when national prohibition was inaugurated.

"I don't know but that I would go even further than we did during the war, because the threat to our constitution is more vital," he said.

Roper proposed that President Hoover call a conference of governors, re-establish councils of defense such as existed during the World War and bring federal judges and district attorneys into conference.

YOST DENIES CHARGES

He testified after reading of a statement from Fielding H. Yost, Michigan football coach, who joined another coach, Alonzo A. Stagg, of the University of Chicago, in refutation of charges that there is more drinking now in college than in the old days.

Yost was unable to appear in person, but sent the committee a telegram, which was presented by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lenna Yost, who is generalissimo of the dry forces appearing before the committee.

"In my opinion the college youth of America are not drinking as much as they did in pre-prohibition days," said the Yost telegram.

"No one is entirely satisfied with present conditions. Our government tried to control and regulate the sale of intoxicating

IRENE SHOWS HEAD SCAR; DEFENSE RESTS

Gunwoman Recalled to Stand In Support of Insanity Plea Tells Suicide Craze

BULLETIN.

NEW CASTLE, PA., March 20.—The defense in the Irene Schroeder murder trial rested at 2:28 p. m. today.

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 20.—Irene Schroeder, recalled to the witness stand today, described her passion for stealing and attempts at suicide in support of the plea, advanced in her behalf, of insanity based on "an irresistible impulse to rob and flee."

She tried three times to end her life, she testified, the first time at the age of 9.

The blonde waitress, charged with the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul, partly lifted her hat, at the request of her attorneys, and revealed to the jury a scar on her head suffered when she was a child. This the defense will contend, may have been responsible for her supposed mental twist.

PLEA FINALLY ADMITTED

Defense counsel were battling desperately to present to the jury evidence to substantiate their plea of insanity which they were successful in having admitted at this morning's session after reframing it twice.

Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti finally withdrew objections, but only with the understanding that all offers of testimony were to be considered at side-bar conferences with the court.

This resulted in so much delay that Judge R. L. Hildebrand was impelled to make an informal statement to the jury from the bench explaining the cause.

JUDGE CAUTIOUS

The court assured the jury of two women and 10 men that every possible effort was being made to expedite the trial, now in its tenth day, but, because of the serious nature of the case, it was necessary to proceed with caution to make certain that nothing except the legal issue be permitted to enter.

Irene, on the stand throughout yesterday, was called by her counsel again shortly before noon, after an effort to question her sister, Mrs. Sarah J. Muldoon, of Wheel-

UNION CABS RUN DESPITE BAN

The striking taxicab drivers' relief cabs were still operating today while counsel for the strikers prepared to ask the courts to vacate the temporary injunction against them yesterday.

The injunction was obtained by the Parmelee Transportation Company on the grounds that the strikers had not obtained certificates of public convenience.

Attorney Henry Ellenbogen said he would contend that the union drivers were not common carriers and that Common Pleas Court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

At the strikers' relief headquarters today deputy sheriffs were distributing copies of the injunction to the drivers. The drivers were expected to operate at least until Monday, when hearing on the temporary ban is scheduled.

A. T. Siford, chairman of the strikers, announced that the men would meet in the Moose Temple at 2 p. m. Sunday.

REALTOR LOSES LICENSE

R. Milo McAnulty, East End real estate broker, has been refused a real estate license until June 1, at which time he may make another application. The action is announced in an opinion by Robert W. Semenow, director of the state real estate license law.

The action is the first refusal of a real estate sales license in the Pittsburgh district. It directs Mr. McAnulty not to engage in the real estate business and to remove all signs from his premises until such time as a license may be granted.

The complaint against McAnulty was brought by R. H. Bellman and was aired at a hearing at the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board. Bellman testified that McAnulty represented himself as the owner of a lot to which Bellman held title in Braddock Park plan and sold the lot to Joseph Vichensky. Semenow ruled that the broker violated his duties to his principle.

Armstrong Jail Banned by U.S. As 'Too Nice'

Federal authorities here were ordered by Attorney General Mitchell today to remove five federal prisoners held in the Armstrong County jail and to commit no additional prisoners there until further orders.

Mitchell's action is believed to be a sequel to the discovery that three men committed to the jail for liquor violations were permitted to attend movie shows and roam the streets in Kittanning.

In connection with the case, Sheriff George W. Shaffer, of Armstrong County, has been cited to appear April 1 in Federal Court here to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

AGED DEMOCRAT LEADER DEAD

Col. James M. Guffey, a pioneer in the oil and gas development of Pennsylvania, and for 50 years an active Democratic leader in the state, died at his home, 5317 Fifth avenue, at 1:20 a. m. today.

Familiarly known as "Col. J. M.," he was a colorful figure in the political and business affairs of Pennsylvania until about 15 years ago, when he began to retire from business and politics.

Col. Guffey had been an invalid more than a year. April 1 his palatial home at 5025 Fifth avenue took fire, and the aged political leader was carried to safety.

July 5 the home was sold at a sheriff's sale, in foreclosure of a mortgage amounting, with inter-

Former Premier Raymond Poincare, who was appointed as arbiter to settle the marital difficulties between the Prince and the Princess, found in favor of the Prince and, International News Service learns, granted him the custody of their children.

Tom Shaw's Girth Worries Tailors

LONDON, March 20.—(AP.)—Tom Shaw, minister of war, has a 48-inch chest, and tailors are having a hard time getting a suit ready for him for the King's levee a week hence. He was late with his order and nothing ready made would fit.

The prescribed uniform has gold embroidered cuffs and pocket flaps on the coat, and gold stripes on the trousers. A sword and a cocked hat with white feathers go with it.

'Pop' Warner's Father Dies in California

SAN CLEMENTE, Cal., March 20.—(AP.)—Capt. William H. Warner, 89, father of Glenn "Pop" Warner, Stanford University football coach, died here yesterday. Services will be held here Friday and the body will be sent to Springville, N. Y., for burial. Warner, who came here from the East, was a captain in the Fourth Arkansas Cavalry during the Civil War.

James F. Malone Granddaddy Now

Spring, Also Cold Wave Due Here Tomorrow

If spring arrives on time—and scientists say that nothing can make it late—it will be ushered in tomorrow morning at 3:30 a. m., to be exact.

At that time the sun will cross the Equator on its journey northward. That crossing, termed the vernal equinox, marks the official beginning of spring.

Another feature of the day will be that light and darkness will get an even break—both day and night will be of equal duration.

Despite the scientists, King Winter threatens to upset spring's program. From the Northwest, where temperatures have fallen to four below zero, a cold wave is moving on Pittsburgh. It will be much colder here Friday and Friday night, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicts.

Edison Scholarship State Test Arranged

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—The second competitive examination to select a boy from Pennsylvania to enter a national contest for a Thomas A. Edison scholarship was announced today by the Department of Public Instruction.

The examination will be held March 27 in the House of Representatives at the Capitol under the direction of Dr. John A. H. Keith, superintendent of public instruction. Candidates for the scholarship will be limited to members of the 1930 graduating classes of public high or preparatory schools.

Ganna Walska Sued In Perfume Venture

NEW YORK, March 20.—(INS.)—Entry of Mme. Ganna Walska into the perfumery business brought her a $50,000 damage suit today. Emile V. Dutcheon, a perfumer, charged the opera singer had failed to keep an agreement with him to invest $125,000 and make personal appearances where he sold perfumes.

He claimed in his suit the singer invested only $30,000 and failed otherwise to live up to the agreement.

FINAL ACTION THIS WEEK LIKELY

Mellon, Fisher and Mackey Will Meet to Confer On Governorship Race

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP.)—With William S. Vare returning unexpectedly to Philadelphia, and Mayor Mackey preparing to confer with Republican state leaders at Harrisburg, it is believed the situation attending the state-wide primary fight will be clarified considerably by the end of this week.

Mr. Vare, due to arrive from Florida late today, is expected to participate in conferences here with Philadelphia and upstate leaders, to complete the ticket headed by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis for United States Senator and former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown for Governor.

Members of the local organization "war board" can attribute no other reason for Vare's unexpected departure from his home at St. Lucie yesterday. Final action was expected this week.

MELLON TO MEET FISHER

The meeting of Mayor Mackey with Gov. Fisher and W. L. Mellon, former chairman of the Republican State Committee, will take place within a few days.

The governorship will be the important topic.

The Mayor has committed himself to support Senator Joseph R. Grundy for the Senate, but has not expressed a preference between Mr. Brown and Samuel S. Lewis, the state organization's gubernatorial candidate.

Candidates for lieutenant-governor, secretary of internal affairs, justice of the supreme court and superior court judges are to be selected finally for the Davis-Brown ticket at the Vare organization conference here. Wishes of leaders from upstate counties will be given preference, it is said.

Philip H. Dewey, manager of the State Workmen's Insurance fund already has been agreed upon for the internal affairs place, it was reported.

The question as to what attitude Secretary Davis and Mr. Brown will take regarding prohibition also is likely to be discussed.

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot who seeks the governorship again, last night announced he favors the state exempting small estates from collateral inheritance tax.

Local Support Sure for Brown

Former Attorney General Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia, running for governor on a ticket with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who is a candidate for United States senator, left Pittsburgh last night after spending a busy day conferring with city and county officials and other leaders here.

They included County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Judge James B. Drew, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, Mayor Charles H. Kline, former Mayor W. A. Magee and former Congressman John M. Morin.

GETS SUPPORT PLEDGES

Among his visitors were Judge Charles D. Copeland and his campaign manager, Vin R. Smith, of Greensburg, and Wayne Blakeley, of Franklin.

Observers here seem convinced that Armstrong, who is Republican county chairman, has decided to support Davis and Brown, but will maintain silence until he confers with his political associate, W. L. Mellon, whose expected return to Pittsburgh has been advanced from tomorrow until Saturday or Monday.

Mackrell, who managed the mayoralty campaign of former President of Council James F. Malone, represents a wing of the party that has been back of the Davis-Brown candidacies for weeks.

Included therein is State Senator M. G. Leslie, who is scheduled to return to Pittsburgh Monday from Atlantic City, where he has held numerous conferences with William S. Vare's supporters from Philadelphia.

John W. Hedderich, Jr., of Pittsburgh R. D. 9, has entered the Republican primaries against Representative Guy E. Campbell, representing the Thirty-sixth District in Congress. He filed nominating papers today at Harrisburg.

Moran, Actor, Better After Operation

LOS ANGELES, March 20. —(AP.)—George Searcy, known on the stage as George Moran, former member of the "Two Black Crows" comedy team, was reported recovering today at a hospital where he was operated upon for gallstones. liquor for 100 years and made a miserable failure of it.

"Every one states he is opposed to the return of the saloon. However, any legalized place to sell liquor will serve the same purpose as the saloon—a place to buy intoxicating liquors.

"It is unfortunate that certain people of standing by example furnish leadership to youth in law violations."

CITES CAROLINA CASE

Roper detailed the history of the South Carolina dispensary law enacted in 1892. He said it was repealed 12 years later because of the evils which developed.

Gov. Benjamin R. ("Pitchfork Ben") Tillman, who led the fight to establish the system, also led the fight to abolish it, he said. Illicit sale of liquor continues in spite of the state dispensary system. Some bootleggers, he said, agreed to buy from the dispensary system if it in turn would protect them.

"The belief grew that the management of these dispensaries had degenerated into a graft machine using every effort to increase sales and make profits," said Roper.

"The result was a greater consumption of liquor, especially among the Negroes and lower class of whites than ever before.

GRAFT OVER LAW TOLD

"Prominent citizens of the state alleged that, because drinking on the premises was not allowed under the law, and as the minimum quantity sold was a half pint, drunkenness and rowdyism on the public highway increased until the system had become intolerable.

"Graft in the administration of the law was proved and after a 12-year trial the state adopted a policy of total prohibition."

"If we adopted the proper procedure of enforcement and it failed after seven years I would favor modification," Roper said.

'TRUCE' PLAN OFFERED

Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, asked Roper if he would approve a five-year "truce" between antis and drys during which the prohibition foes would co-operate to provide every law believed necessary for enforcement, the drys to agree to modification if the effort failed.

Roper reiterated that he would favor modification after "a reasonable time" if it were demonstrated that the people would not support the law.

"I'm a wet and I'm willing to accept a five-year truce because I don't believe the law can be enforced," said La Guardia.

The Eighteenth Amendment will remain in the Constitution as long as women have a vote, Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, declared. She denied that temperance organizations "laid down" after prohibition, as some drys have said.

Man Trumps Ace, 'Slam' by Wife Wins Lone Hand

SEATTLE, Wash., March 20. —(AP.)—Because he trumped his wife's ace in a bridge game, William Ellis was a single man today.

"In spite of the presence of two of our friends who were playing against us," Ellis told the court yesterday, "My wife completely lost her temper when I spoiled her play. She threw an alarm clock at me and knocked out one of my teeth. Then she packed my clothes and ordered me out of the house."

Judge Robert M. Jones granted him a divorce.

Youth, 18, Confesses Slaying in Holdup

MERCER, Pa., March 20.—Frank Yarvorsky, 18, of Hickory Township, has confessed to the murder of Frank Desilvio, 48, Farrell poolroom owner who was shot and killed there February 12. Joe Mihalson, also 18, of Farrell, was involved by Yarvorsky, police said today. The latter told of how he and his companion attempted to hold up Desilvio and how Desilvio resisted.

Autoist Robbed On Freeport Road

H. S. Snavely, of 1219 Boyle street, reported to county detectives today that he was held up and robbed of $28 at 8:30 a. m. today on the Freeport road near Aspinwall. Snavely's car was halted by two bandits, who covered him with guns. Following the robbery they fled in a machine toward Springdale.

Crowd Heckles Brookhart In Darrow Dry Debate

NEW YORK, March 20.—(INS.)—Prohibition has come to stay and soon will be a dead issue; prohibition is a law of bigotry and intolerance and the "last act of tyranny."

These were the views left today with 1,500 New Yorkers who heard Clarence Darrow, noted lawyer, and United States Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, debate last night on the subject: "Should the Eighteenth Amendment Be Repealed."

The audience was decidedly against prohibition and Senator Brookhart was constantly heckled.

Senator Brookhart said in 20 years half a dozen persons would not turn out to hear a wet-dry debate because prohibition would be firmly established by then and an accepted fact. He accused Secretary of the Treasury Mellon of being "the biggest bigot of them all," a man who "believes wet, and refuses to have enough agents patrol the Canadian border to stop the flow of rum, although Congress is willing to appropriate as much as is needed for enforcement."

Darrow said Americans are so disgusted with prohibition they would shortly throw it overboard entirely. He predicted the next two congresses would show big gains in members opposed to prohibition.

TWO MEN HELD IN ARSON

CANONSBURG, Pa., March 20. —(AP.)—Gordon Weller, 24, and Paul Kelly, 22, both of Canonsburg, were hld today in the Canonsburg jail pending a haring on charges that they attempted to burn down Weller's home while his wife was sleeping there.

Mrs. Weller told police that she awakened this morning and saw her husband in her bedroom. She fell asleep and again awakened to discover the room was afire. She ran fro mthe house and went to th home of her fathr.

Firemen extinguished the blaz after it had don considrable damage. Weller and Kelly were arrested later near Bridgeville.

VOTE FOR DRY REPEAL SHOWS BIG GAIN

International News Service.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Literary Digest, which is conducting a nation-wide poll on prohibition sentiment, today made the following announcement:

"The vote for repeal of the prohibition amendment continues to lead over that for modification, and also for enforcement, in the second week's returns of the Literary Digest's 20,000,000 ballot nation-wide poll.

"Of the total of 703,935 votes received and tabulated in the current tally, 287,885, or slightly over 40 per cent, favor revoking the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law.

"Two hundred and twenty-four thousand one hundred and forty-one favor a modification of existing conditions by legalizing the sale of light wines and beers. The balance, 191,909 votes, are for strict enforcement."

STATES IN LIST

"These second returns are from 20 states and the District of Columbia. Last week's returns showed a total tabulation of 291,588 votes from 10 states.

"Kansas, the home of the late Carrie Nation, is the only state at this time which shows the vote for enforcement leading over that for both modification and repeal.

"Georgia, the first representative from the "Solid South" to forward returns in this poll, is rather equally divided on the three questions upon which the 'straw' balloting is being undertaken. The tiny domain of the national capital, District of Columbia, which, however, has no official voice in elections, shows a vote for repeal outnumbering that for enforcement by more than two to one, with a substantial intermediary following for modification.

"Connecticut, which, together with Rhode Island, has not yet ratified the Eighteenth Amendment, voted for repeal over enforcement by over three to one. The Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania also shows a three-to-one vote to rescind the prohibition laws.

"FARM BELT" DRY

"The recognized 'wet' states of New York, New Jersey and Illinois register vigorous opposition to the dry enactment, while the vote so far from the 'farm belt' of the Middle West shows a strong tendency for enforcement.

"On the Pacific coast, the earliest returns from this section show Washington and Oregon voting strongly dry, though the combined modification and repeal vote is larger, while in California the vote for repeal and also that for modification is larger than the tally for enforcement.

"The returns are yet very meager compared with the total vote that is anticipated before the final tabulations are obtainable.

"Besides the 20,000,000 ballot poll that is now fully under way, the Literary Digest announces that it will follow this immediately by a supplementary poll of nearly 1,000,000 ballots which will be sent to all the physicians, lawyers, clergymen and school teachers in America, each class to be reported separately."

VOTE TABULATED

The vote so far tabulated follows:

State	For Enforcement	For Modification	For Repeal	Total
California	16,709	19,277	20,541	56,527
Connecticut	1,196	1,481	3,507	6,184
D. C. of Columbia	1,196	1,481	3,507	6,184
Georgia	2,000	2,000	2,000	6,000

TARIFF DEBATE CURB SCORED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(INS.)—Republican leaders plan to deny the House membership a right to vote on the Senate tariff amendments to the Hawley bill when it is returned, Representative Garner, of Texas, Democratic leader, charged in the House today.

He appealed to the House to resist a motion to send the bill to a conference which would give five members the right to speak for the entire House.

The House, he said, should insist upon an opportunity to vote on the Senate rates.

Representative Crowther (Rep.), of New York, replied with the assertion that Garner was seeking to form a coalition in the House of Democrats and "pseudo-Republicans" in the tariff fight.

The New Yorker said Garner wanted a coalition similar to that which has played a large part in the Senate's consideration of the tariff, and described "pseudo-Republicans" as "trained seals."

While the House was enjoying the Garner-Crowther debate, the Senate heard Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, speak against a duty on soft lumber.

Norris quoted President Hoover's statement that unemployment would disappear within 60 days as indicating thed emands of high tariff groups were not justified.

A vote on the entire tariff bill may be reached in the Senate tonight or tomorrow.

NAVAL PARLEY IN BALANCE

LONDON, March 20.—(AP.)—With the Franco-Italian parity deadlock still holding at the naval conference, Foreign Minister Briand of France went back to Paris today to see Premier Tardieu, while Premier MacDonald arranged a meeting with Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy.

The British prime minister, who is now beset by numerous vital problems in connection with the conference, was relieved by announcement of the Liberals that they would not press amendments to the coal bill while the present conference crisis was on.

David Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, in announcing the position of his party, said he understood the fate of the conference was hanging in the balance, and that it was "a question of life or death."

Pending word from Tokyo as to the tentative agreement which the American-Japenese delegations have worked out in London, the work of the American delegates was almost completely suspended this morning.

Rejects French Proposal That Italy, Drops Parity

LONDON, March 20.—(INS.)—Premier Mussolini of Italy has rejected a proposal from Premier Tardieu of France providing for abandonment of Italy's parity alms with France, it was reported on reliable authority in French circles here today.

The proposal was understood to involve a total tonnage of 650,000 tons for France and 400,000 tons for Italy.

SON OF SINGER ESCAPES TERM

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 20.—(AP.)—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Mme. Schumann-Heink, famous contralto, will not have to serve six months in jail for grand theft of $3,000, provided he pays the sum to Schumann-Heink, Inc., of which he was once head, within a period of two years.

This was the probation condition announced by Superior Judge Charles C. Haines. Modification of the probation terms followed an impassioned plea made to the court last Monday by Schumann-Heink, who said he had been offered a position in San Francisco at a salary of $15,000 per year and that, if granted the opportunity, he would not only repay the brokerage firm the sum of $3,000 but also would repay approximately $27,500 to alleged victims of the firm.

Fearing Liberal Ire, D. A. R. Speaker Asks Secrecy

BALTIMORE, March 20.—(AP.)—Remarks of Mrs. Finley Jay Shepard, formerly Helen M. Gould, before the annual meeting of the Maryland Conference, Daughters of the American Revolution, caused a flurry in D. A. R. ranks, and efforts were being made to prevent them from becoming public.

Because of a strong attack on Communists in the address, entitled "Loyalty and Patriotism," which it was feared would arouse the ire of the liberals, a request that its contents be not divulged was made by Mrs. Shepard, officers of the conference said.

She prefaced her address with reasons for the secrecy she requested, saying that she and her husband feared what might follow if her remarks appeared in the press.

INDIANAPOLIS WINS MINE MEET

Delegates Reject Salary Cut for Officers; Call Political Parley April 2

INDIANAPOLIS, March 20.—With 12 cities proposed as hosts for the 1932 convention Indianapolis was chosen as the meeting place for the thirty-second international convention of the United Mine Workers of America.

Scranton and Shamokin were Pennsylvania cities suggested for the convention place.

John Boylan, president Pennsylvania District No. 1, defeated Joseph Goett, Peoria, Ill., and Van A. Bittner, special international representative in West Virginia, were chosen delegates to the international miners' congress in Cracow, Poland, in May.

REJECT SALARY CUT

The convention voted against reduction of salaries of John L. Lewis, president, and other officers of the union.

Several resolutions demanding salary reductions of various amounts were grouped together by the constitution committee and read to the convention. The group was voted down and immediately a storm of protest arose from the convention floor. Discussion followed which lasted for an hour.

TWO POINTS ARGUED

The protests came on two tenets: That the convention "bosses" were attempting to rush the resolution through to have it voted down, and that the present officers' salaries are too high.

Presidents of the five Pennsylvania mine districts, officers of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor and of various allied trade unions in the state, will meet in Harrisburg April 2 to decide on a political policy for unions to follow in the forthcoming primary election, Patrick T. Fagan, of Pittsburgh, president of District 5, announced here.

TO PICK CANDIDATE

Letters of invitation to the Federation officers and those of other trade organizations were mailed from here last night, Fagan said. At the conference in Harrisburg the unions are expected to line up on one side or the other in the fight within the Pennsylvania Republican organization between Senator Joseph R. Grundy and James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, who announced his candidacy for Republican nomination for senator the first of the week.

ESTATE FIGHTS REPLOGLE FEE

Judge James B. Drew was described as "a millionaire judge" today before the Supreme Court by Attorney Frank C. McGirr, arguing for the estate of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson against payment of a $100,000 legal fee to Attorney A. M. Replogle and the law firm of Thorp, Bostwick, Stewart & Reed.

Justice W. I. Schaffer had inquired who gave the decision in Common Pleas Court, which was being appealed.

"Judge Drew," McGirr replied. "He's a millionaire judge, so he did not think $100,000 was too much."

The case for Replogle and his colleagues was argued by Attorney W. W. Montgomery, partner of Owen D. Roberts, famed prosecutor in the Teapot Dome oil lease case.

McGirr contended that the lawyers had not really saved the Davidson estate $410,000 because the estate never was in danger of losing any great sums, its committee, former Judge Henry G. Wasson and Attorney George H. Calvert, being under bond.

Calvert and Wasson, who resigned, were charged with misappropriations. Disbarrment proceedings have been started against them.

CRANE EMPTYING COAL FROM CARS SO THAT WRECKAGE OF 15 THAT JUMPED TRACK COULD BE REMOVED FROM TRACKS

TRAMP KILLED IN RAIL WRECK

A hobo was the only casualty of the freight train derailment at Lockport, on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Supervisor C. H. Frick said today.

The hobo, bumming a ride, was on one of the 22 coal-and-coke cars which were derailed. He was not regarded as seriously injured.

The derailment, at 8:30 p. m. yesterday, blocked traffic on all four tracks and caused rerouting via Blairsville and Torrance. At noon today service had been restored to normal, with trains moving on two of the four tracks opened up.

Coal and coke spilled in great quantities over the tracks as the 77-car train moved eastward. Supervisor Frick said the damage would not exceed $20,000.

DOHENY LAWYER RESENTS 'SLUR'

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—After a scathing arraignment of Edward L. Doheny by Atlee Pomerene, government prosecutor, Frank Hogan, who is defending Doheny on a bribery charge, began his first argument today by asserting that Pomerene had "slurred patriotic citizens."

Hogan, launching into a vigorous attack on Pomerene's arguments, accused the prosecutor of misrepresenting facts.

Pomerene charged that the circumstances surrounding the transfer of $100,000 from Doheny to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the Interior, showed that it was a bribe to influence Fall in his award of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve to a Doheny company.

The prosecutor was sarcastic in his references to Doheny's testimony that he bid on the oil leases because of patriotic motives.

"I thought I knew something about the case," Hogan said, "but I know nothing about those things the prosecutor spoke about."

When charging Pomerene had slurred patriotic citizens he shouted:

"If this case is to be won by sneering at patriotism and sneering at men who served in the submarines in the war I must admit defeat for I will not sneer or whine. I will present to you only the facts in the case," he shouted.

Du Pont's Working Daughter to Wed

WILMINGTON, Del., March 20.—(AP.)—Announcement was made yesterday by Lammot du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., of the engagement of his daughter, Natali Wilson du Pont, to George Phippen Edmonds, of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edmonds, of Boston, Mass. Miss du Pont, despite the wealth of her family, has been employed for several years in the statistical department of the investment house of Laird, Bissell & Meeds.

Capt. Dollar, 86, Spends Day At Desk

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—(INS.)—Capt. Robert Dollar, dean of the Pacific Coast shipping industry, will celebrate his eighty-sixth birthday today. But, as usual, he will be found at his office doing his customary work.

Is he thinking of retiring? Not at all. He said the word "retire" was not in his dictionary.

"I am chuck full of energy," he said. "I like to work. I feel as fit today as I did when I was 50 years old, and I believe I have a greater capacity for work now than I did then."

To be fit at the age of 86, Capt. Dollar advises:

CAPONE HIDES, LAW BAFFLED

CHICAGO, March 20.—(INS.)—So far as watchful Chicago police squads are concerned, "Scarface Al" Capone, gang leader de luxe, today might still be in his cell at Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia.

Out of a maze of "reliable advices" which placed Capone at one and all of his gang's hideouts in and about Chicago, at an Indiana rendezvous and, in several cities in the East, police have concluded that the wily beer czar has given the world "the slip" and is resting in seclusion somewhere in the Chicago area, surrounded by a few trusted bodyguards.

"I haven't the slightest idea where Capone is hiding," said Chief of Detectives John Stege. "If we find him he will be picked up."

CAMDEN, N. J., March 20.—(AP.)—The airplane which was reported to have been engaged to fly Al Capone to an unannounced destination when at Philadelphia, left here at 11:35 a. m. today under what was declared to be "sealed orders." It disappeared in a southerly direction.

1928 Tax Collection Aids 'Poor' Chicago

CHICAGO, March 20.—(AP.)—A second city financial crisis in Chicago was averted today with the announcement by taxing officials that bills for 1928 taxes will be mailed by June 1. With the 30 days allowed tax payers to get their money in, this would bring the funds into the treasuries by July 1, when the $74,000,000 relief fund raised by the Silas Strawn citizens' committee will have been exhausted.

'OLD IRONSIDES' FUND BLOCKED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Consideration of the Porter resolution to appropriate $300,000 for completing restoration of the Frigate Constitution was blocked in the House by Representative Schafer (Rep.), of Wisconsin, who protested against the passage of such measures "while it is impossible to get appropriations for badly-needed additions to veterans' hospitals."

Representative French (Rep.), of Idaho, a member of the Appropriations Committee which has approved the measure, sought to have the resolution taken up under unanimous consent, but the Wisconsin member was unyielding in his opposition.

A dramatic appeal for immediate consideration was made by Representative Underhill, who waved a picture of the famous ship before Schafer and demanded:

"Do you want to see this old vessel without a mast, without a spar, without a rope, without a sail?"

Fishing on Sunday Approved by Butler

LANCASTER, Pa., March 20—(INS.)—Sunday fishing was approved by Nathan S. Butler, State Commissioner of Fisheries in a speech before the Lancaster County Sportsmen's Association here last night.

"It is my belief that the most important question pertaining to Sunday fishing in Pennsylvania is whether or not the state can supply enough fish from its hatcheries to furnish Sunday anglers with fish. I approve of Sunday fishing and I make no effort to hide my feelings in the matter," Butler said.

Parrots in Navy Must Walk Plank

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—A drastic order that all parrots be dishonorably discharged from the United States Navy has been handed down by Acting Secretary Jahncke.

Since the days when the buccaneers roved the Spanish Main, parrots and their language, both good and bad, have helped keep the mariner's dream of settling down inland and growing a garden from becoming too poignant. Lately, however, the birds have acquired a reputation as carriers of psittacosis, or parrot's fever. Secretary Jahncke's order was designed to prevent the spread of the disease.

Parrots on ships at sea are to walk the equivalent of the time-honored and fatal plank.

INDIAN WOMAN PICKS JURY

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 20.—Lila Jimerson, Indian maid on trial for the ouija board-hammer murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, wife of Henri Marchand, famous artist for whom Lila had posed, helped her lawyers in their work of selecting the jury today.

Invariably, before a juror was accepted or rejected the dark-eyed, dark-skinned defendant whispered advice to her counsel.

Three jurors had been accepted by 11 o'clock this morning. They are Norman J. Shea, treasurer of Buffalo; Lawrence F. Roughan, a foreman, of Kenmore, N. Y., and Albert Boehlecke, a farmer, of Colden, N. Y.

Lila is accused of instigating the slaying of Mrs. Marchand by "warning," through a ouija-board message, an old Indian woman that Mrs. Marchand planned to kill her tribesmen.

The actual killing was done, according to the authorities, by Mrs. Nancy Bowen, 66, confidante of Lila's. "Ma" Bowen has confessed she beat Mrs. Marchand to death with a hammer in her home, saying she was influenced by the ouija board messages.

A large crowd, including a number of Indians from the reservation, were barred from the court room during the trial.

Hoover May Lay Lincoln Shrine Cornerstone

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover was invited today by Senator Robsion, Kentucky, and Col. James L. Isenberg, of Harrodsburg, to attend the laying of the cornerstone early in June of a church shrine to house the log cabin in which Thomas Lincoln and Nancy Hanks, parents of Abraham Lincoln, were married. The date has not definitely been set.

After their conference with the President, Robsion and Isenberg said they had given Mr. Hoover a photostatic copy of the Lincoln-Hanks marriage certificate, and recalled to him that the question of whether or not the two were actually married had been disputed by historians until the license was discovered.

Woman Striker Hurt As Home Is Bombed

CLEVELAND, March 20.—(AP.)—The apartment of Mrs. Carrie Gallagher, president of Local 29 of the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was bombed early today.

Mrs. Gallagher, who was asleep, was slightly injured as the door of her bedroom was blown from its hinges, windows were shattered and the building shaken.

Mrs. Gallagher said she had been threatened because of her activity in a recent strike.

MAGISTRATE IN POLICE NET

Magistrate Charles Papale saw the other side of the law today. He fell afoul of a traffic officer at Bigelow boulevard and Craig street, and was hauled away to the Oakland Police Station.

"Hey," yelled Officer Patrick Walsh, "don't you know you're not allowed to do that?"

The magistrate says he told Walsh who he was but the officer is reported to have replied:

"I don't care who you are. Drive to No. 4 Station."

Papale kept on going, but at Center and Morewood avenues an auto driven by a woman and with Officer Walsh on the running board, drove up and stopped suddenly in front of Papale's car. The stop was so quick that Walsh was hurled to the street and an eye was injured.

Things were explained to the satisfaction of Magistrate William Conners at Oakland Police Station and Papale was allowed to go free.

4 Judges Indorsed For Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—The names of four Illinois judges were recommended to President Hoover today by Senator Glenn (Rep.), of Illinois, for his consideration in selecting a successor to the late Edward Terry Sanford, justice of the Supreme Court.

They were: Walter C. Lindley, federal judge for the Eastern District at Danville, Ill.; James H. Wilkerson, federal judge, Chicago; Frederick D. Young and Clyde E. Tone, both justices of the Illinois Supreme Court.

Trace Wilkinsburg Water Taint to Coal Tar

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—The peculiar and obnoxious taste of drinking water served Wilkinsburg and other environs of Pittsburgh by the Pennsylvania Water Company has been traced, the State Department of Health announced, to a tank of coal tar oil wrecked along a tributary of the Allegheny River.

A study by engineers of the department revealed the oil had been dumped in the river and was being taken into the intake of the water.

Marathon Dance Stopped by Police

A squad of North Side police under Lieut. Zack Fleming early today halted a marathon dance which had been started in a hall at 823 Federal street, North Side. As the police called out to the three dancing couples left in the marathon, to halt, Miss Ida Curry, of McKeesport, screamed and fell to the floor in a faint. She was carried off the floor by attendants.

Although police had interrupted the dance before it was finished, Leonard Lapiduss, proprietor, was very much elated over the success of the marathon, claiming that a world's twirling record of two hours, 42 minutes had been established by the three remaining couples. The dance was stopped, Lieut. Fleming said, because the proprietor had not obtained a permit to continue after closing hours.

HUSTON ADMITS MAP SALES

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—After denying published reports that he would resign as chairman of the Republican National Committee, Claudius H. Huston testified today before the Senate Lobby Committee that he had sold maps prepared by the Tennessee River Improvement Association to the Union Carbide Company, which had contributed $36,100 to the association.

Huston, former president of the Tennessee association, said the Carbide company had contributed the amount to help defray expenses of preparing maps of the Tennessee River above Muscle Shoals, and that he had sold the maps to the contributors. He admitted the maps had been paid for by chambers of commerce and other organizations which contributed to the association.

The committee then summoned Fred H. Haggerson, of New York, president of the Union Carbide Company, and W. E. Moore, personal representative of Huston, to testify tomorrow.

California Indian Dies at 120 Years

UKIAH, Cal., March 20.—(AP.)—To the incantations of tribal medicine men, and the wailing of his people, Indian Pete, patriarch of the Shibalny Pomo tribe of Cahto, has sped to the Happy Hunting Ground and the arms of the Great Manitou. The venerable Indian, whose age was believed to have been more than 120 years, died here yesterday.

MAE WEST PLAY TRIAL OPENS

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—The trial of Mae West, as author; Carl Reed, producer, and more than 50 actors and actresses who appeared in "Pleasure Man," which police closed a year and a half ago, finally got under way today.

After Judge Amadeo A. Bertini had denied a motion to dismiss the charges, Assistant District Attorney James G. Wallace and Nathan Burkan, attorney for Miss West, outlined their cases.

Mr. Wallace described the play in detail, although he told the jury the district attorney's office had never been able to procure a copy of it. None had been furnished the actors when they learned their lines, he said.

Defending the play, Mr. Burkan said many of the scenes of which the district attorney's office complains had been taged in vaudeville for years without protest.

"It is not an indecent play," said Mr. Burkan. "It teaches a moral lesson."

Redistricting commissioners last night heard proposals for reducing voting districts in the Seventeenth and Twenty-seventh wards, in the Seventeenth Alderman John P. Kearcher, Councilman George Kamback and Director of Supplies Bert L. Succop presented a plan to cut 23 districts to 10. In the Twenty-seventh a plan submitted by Alderman George Young and David D. Caduzan would reduce the districts from 24 to 16.

Zoning Changes Urged in Council

Council plans a conference on a proposal for a general change in the zoning regulations to permit property owners, especially those living on embankments, to build garages under their porches. At present they must be within the structure. The change would give the zoning board power to issue the permits for the garages without the consent of the neighbors, Councilman W. Y. English urged that the provision for the neighbors' consent be retained.

First German Bank Pays Loan in Cash

BERLIN, March 20.—(AP.)—The East Prussian Land Bank, which in 1927 borrowed $7,000,000 in the United States, has repaid the loan in cash—the first post-war German-American loan paid in cash instead of by refunding or converting. Four-fifths was paid from the bank's accumulated assets and the remainder was obtained from other banks.

Girl Charged With Forgery Found Tied in Blazing Bed

MEXIA, Texas, March 20.—(AP.)—Charges of arson and attempt to murder were filed against D. S. Moore, prominent Oakwood business man, at Fairfield today in connection with an attempt to burn to death Miss Wilma Jones, 23, in a hotel there last night.

Miss Jones was rescued from a blazing bed to which she had been bound in her room at the hotel. She had been gagged. Guests, who effected the rescue, had been attracted to the room by smoke.

The young woman was in Fairfield to answer charges of forging the name of Moore to a check for $250. She was taken to her hotel room after collapsing on the witness stand yesterday.

Miss Jones said she was unable to recognize her assailant.

Moore was arrested at his home in Oakwood and placed in jail at Fairfield.

Miss Jones suffered only slight burns about the feet, but her arms and legs were badly bruised from ropes used to bind her.

The intruder apparently had little difficulty in carrying out his work as the woman was reported in a weakened condition caused by a drug given her after she had collapsed in the courtroom.

Scotland Prepares Quiet Funeral for Balfour

LONDON, March 20.—(INS.)—The body of the Earl of Balfour was to be taken today to Scotland for interment Saturday in a simple churchyard grave at Whittinghame, near the home of his childhood.

Messages of regret from all the earth's sides at the passing of the great statesman, one of Britain's most distinguished sons, came today to the home of his brother at Woking, Surrey, where he died yesterday morning, after a fortnight's illness.

According to his own wish, there will be no ceremony or pomp as he is laid to rest. There was no outward sign of death today at the home at Woking. The window blinds were up, as usual, and a dog that had been a favorite of the Earl frisked about in front.

While there will be no official ceremony at the funeral, either here or at Whittinghame, the nation's leaders and the representatives of some of the foreign nations where his beloved personality became known will gather at Westminster Abbey for a mourning service. Memorial exercises will be held at the same time in St. Giles Cathedral, Edinburgh.

In Parliament, both houses of which adjourned yesterday out of respect for the man who once was leader there, the leaders of the political groups will deliver eulogies. David Lloyd George, to whose side Balfour rallied during the critical days of the war, may deliver the oration for the Liberals.

These services, as well as manifestations in other parts of the world, will take place as the Earl's body goes back to rest beside departed friends of long ago.

IRENE DETAILS 'PASSION FOR STEALING' FROM CHILDHOOD

BLONDE SHOWS BUMP ON HEAD TO JURY

ting, W. Va., was blocked by Margiotti.

To the question of how far back she could remember, Irene replied that her memory went back to a time before her mother died. She said she remembered to the time she was three years old.

"Do you remember your mother's funeral?" Dickey asked.

Margiotti objected. It was sustained.

MARK SHOWN JURY

Jarrett asked Irene about her eyesight and Margiotti again voiced objection.

"If the purpose of this examination is to prove bad eyesight as affectin the defendant's marksmanship in shooting——" Margiotti begun, but he was interrupted by defense counsel and they went into another side bar conference.

The court permitted the examination.

Irene testified she had to bring reading matter close to her face in order to see it legibly.

Another side bar conference was called and the defense resumed a new attack.

FREQUENT HEADACHES

"Do you have headaches?" Irene was asked.

"I do."

"Frequently?"

"Yes."

"In your time have you done considerable stealing and robbing?"

"I have."

"At what age did you start?"

"Eight or nine years."

"How old were you when Donnie was born?"

"I was 16 in February and he was born in July."

Jarrett's next question concerned whether she had done "considerable reading." She said she had. Then Jarrett asked "What kind of literature appeals to you particularly?"

Margiotti objected. Counsel moved to the bar for another debate.

The witness was excused from the stand at the noon recess and court adjourned until 1:30.

FIRST STOLE PENCIL

The blonde said the first time she ever stole anything was a pencil at the age of 9.

"At the age of A I stayed with my sister who had a store. I took a pencil," she said.

"I tried not to, but it seemed I couldn't keep from doing it. A little later I stole money from the cash register."

"How much?"

"Three quarters."

The blonde went on to relate to the jury her passion for stealing. She admitted stealing money, articles such as tools and packages, from automobiles and she confessed to stealing from the various places at which she had been employed.

"Did you ever steal in Toledo?"

"Yes."

"What did you steal?"

"An automobile."

"In Cincinnati?"

"I've stole other things in Toledo, too."

"What else?"

"I went into stores and held up people. I put my gun on them and ordered them to put their hands up while I took money from their cash registers and places."

TOWNS ENUMERATED

Irene then went on to detail various cities and towns where she had held up people. As Attorney Jarrett enumerated the various places, she acknowledged them from the stand.

Cities named by the blonde included: Columbus, O., Delaware, O., Lexington, Ky., Uniontown, Pa., Greensburg, Pa., Peru, Ind., Richmond, Va., Reno, Nev., Bristol, Tenn., and Quincy, Ill.

Jarrett then questioned her about newspapers in the Phoenix jail.

She said she and her cellmates were able to get papers smuggled in, whereas the cellmates had previously testified they could not.

She identified the purse she had at the time of the shooting and pointed out how she carried her revolver in it.

Jarrett then asked her how old she was before she could read and write intelligently. She said she was eight at the time she started to write.

"What kind of reading outside of your school books interested and impressed you?" Jarrett inquired.

Margiotti objected as being immaterial.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Jarrett asked when she started to attend movies and what kind impressed her. He also asked what kind of social activities she preferred and attempted to bring out environment in which she was brought up. Margiotti objected strenuously to all of these and was sustained.

The blonde, under direct examination, declared that she had contemplated suicide three times—one at the age of 9, 14 and 16.

Under cross-examination Margiotti asked Irene if she had contemplated suicide since the the shooting.

She said she had.

"Did you try it?"

"No."

"Did you ever try it?"

"Yes."

"How many times?"

"Four— I forgot about the

"Did you ever come near succeeding in your atempts?"

"Yes—once."

Margiotti then launched into a tirade of questions, tearing her story of suicidal attempts to pieces. He asked her about her headaches.

She declared she had a headache once while she was on the stand, but could not recall exactly at which session.

DAGUE TROUBLED, TOO

"Did you have a headache out on the Butler road the day Paul was killed?"

"No."

"Did Dague?"

"I don't know."

"Did Dague ever fall and hurt his head when he was a little boy?"

"I think he did."

"Oh, so you're all having head trouble," remarked Margiotti sarcastically.

The prosecutor then launched into a barrage of questioning about her so-called impulsive stealing.

"Didn't you engage in the robbery business to get money—to make a living?"

"Not that I know of."

"Sometimes I did."

"You know it's wrong to steal, don't you?"

"No—I don't think so."

"Yo don't think so—do you think it's wrong to shoot people?"

"No."

"If I were to hand you a gun now would shoot me?"

"No."

"Why?"

"I don't know."

ALL RIGHT TO SHOOT

"Would it be right for me to shoot you?"

"Sure, if you wanted to."

"You know what's right and what's wrong, don't you—would it be right for you to run out of this courtroom?"

"If I wanted."

"Why don't you?"

"I never thought of it."

Margiotti then swung into a sarcastic line about stealing and then inquired whether she had stolen anything around the courtroom since she has been here.

RECORD OF HOLDUPS

"In that little red book what does 'Crawfordsville A&P—101' mean? Crawfordsville is the name of the town, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"A and P the store?"

"Yes."

"And 101 is the amount stolen, isn't it—$101?"

"Yes."

"Why did you mark these things down? Why did you keep a record? Did you divide the money?"

"No."

Margiotti then went into a discussion of an item for $75.90 divided three ways. She said she didn't remember.

4 DIE IN BLAZE AT KNOXVILLE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., March 20—(AP.)—Recovery of three more bodies brought to four the number of persons known to have perished in a fire which destroyed four buildings in the business district here early today.

The three bodies were so badly burned that they could not be positively identified. However, W. P. Chandler, director of public safety, said it was reasonably certain the bodies were those of Sylvester Wilkerson, 40; his wife, Sallie, 34, and her son by a previous marriage, Arthur Sharp, 16.

Earlier in the day, the body of Carl Merchnel, 59, had been taken from the ruins.

Musmanno to Run For Legislature

Attorney M. A. Musmanno has announced his candidacy to succeed himself as one of the four representatives in the State Legislature from the Twelfth District. In his first term, Musmanno championed a bill to abolish the coal and iron police system in Pennsylvania. The bill was vetoed by Gov. John S. Fisher. Another candidate from the Twelfth District is P. C. Gangloff, three times burgess of Coraopolis. His entry into public life came through his election to the borough council in 1915.

In the Thirteenth District, Albert Davidson has announced for re-election to the Legislature.

WILKINS BACK FROM ANTARCTIC, DESCRIBES CONQUESTS

WELCOME VIEW OF NEW YORK HARBOR

Explorers Happy on Return After Six Months Spent In Frigid Atmosphere

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS.

Copyright 1930 by the New York American and Universal Service Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

NEW YORK, March 20.—New York's towering skyline, weirdly beautiful and the countless lighted windows fantastically fretting the city's silhouette, looked tremendously good to us as we ended the second Wilkins Hearst Antarctic expedition.

We have spent six months afloat in ships on stormy Southern waters and aloft in turbulent, frigid atmosphere. We are happy to return.

The bustle of harbor traffic, the romantic atmosphere of the crowded wharfs, the toot of taxi horns, the bright lights of Broadway and the sad, sour smell of subway exits and entrances are welcome to our senses.

It means that we have returned to real civilization intense throbbing and thrilling. And above all is the joy of reunion with our loved ones, of friendly handclasps.

Icebergs Behind

Three days more than a month ago we were steaming through lanes of scattered icebergs. The sea, a deep, deep blue, lifted and curled with the force of heavy wind, white crests raced and tumbled. The skies were cloud laden and lowering, snow squalls swept the ocean as thunder showers sweep more northerly latitudes.

Penguins by the thousands dived and sported or swam assiduously in search of the tiny shrimps which constitute their food. The plonk, plonk of the penguins' bodies striking the water drew us irresistibly to the steamer's rail and we watched the blue-back backs and white fronts leap and rise again like fairy dolphins.

An occasional penguin, arrested by curiosity, would pose on the top of the water, wiggle its bill and tail in the crest of a wave and glancing at the steamer, call shrilly, clak, clak, clak!

Having reached the top of a berg they would crowd to the edge nearest our ship, and those in front, forced by the crush of those behind, would be pushed over the edge into the sea.

Bird Merry-Go-Round

Not to be outdone, they would swim again to the low side of the iceberg, spring to its surface and again take their place in the forward movement. Thus the group of birds would form a continuous merry-go-round.

Not all the icebergs are low-sided enough for the penguins to leap upon them. Most of the bergs, except those we saw away down south of the Pacific Ocean, would expose a hundred feet or more of sheer sided ice cliff.

Some of them we measured. If the sun shone, those huge crystal masses reflected the spectrum in all its splendor.

Through these fascinating hues an albatross, or several, would soar and glide, up and down and round and up beyond an iceberg, while the Mother Carey's chickens, which are numerous in the Antarctic, would, with winnowing wings, flutter from crest to crest of the waves, pecking daintily at a spot of oil or some plankton floating on the surface.

Peaks 10,000 Feet

In the distance, as we started homeward a month ago, peak after peak of piebald mountains rose majestically to our view. Some of the peaks reached above 10,000 feet. We enjoyed their eerie beauty and magnificence, even though a few days before in our orange-colored Lockheed Vega monoplane we have, for a fraction of time, dwarfed their altitude.

The Antarctic mountains are black where the precipitous cliffs prevent snow from clinging. They are snow white elsewhere, except where streaks of very old snow, dust strewn, ranges in tone from chrome yellow to dirty brown.

These Antarctic scenes appealed more to our imagination as they passed from sight than they had when we first saw them on our outward journey. We had grown to know and love them in spite of their awesome majesty.

Above and round about them we had done the essential part of our work, but there is still much work to be done in these great white southern areas.

Byrd Visit Foiled

This year we had hoped that we might make a flight from our furthest West to join Rear Admiral Byrd at his base on the great Ross barrier and we expected to find our way home with the whalers hunting in that vicinity.

The absence of firm, flat ice, from which we could start with our heavily laden planes, made that long flight impossible, but our efforts to solve the problem of establishing a meteorological base south of the Pacific Ocean, which was our main purpose have been successful.

We are the first this year, as we were last year, of the Antarctic commuters to return to the Northern Hemisphere. For 14 years without a break, men numbering from 1,500 to 2,000 have sailed forth from north of the Equator to the frozen fastnesses of the Antarctic. They wrest from that icy region a livelihood, scientific facts or fame.

The majority are hardy Norsemen engaged in whale fishing, earning their living in an inconspicuous manner, yet undergoing hardships equal to, if not greater, than modern explorers need bear.

Whalers Isolated

Most of these men go, as we have done, to the Antarctic for the six months of summer, but others stay, as have Rear Admiral Byrd and his party, throughout the winter. These whalers, while wintering in not quite such southern latitudes as the Ross Sea barrier, are in even greater isolation.

Statistics will show that work in the Polar regions is even safer than many other branches of industry at home, a far smaller percentage of men have been lost on Polar expeditions and Polar industries than in coal mining or car driving.

Yet the expedition, either industrial or scientific, which sets out for the Antarctic is fortunate if it escapes without a tragedy.

Several steamers have been overturned by the force of the wind and waves in the far southern seas, not a soul survived.

Modest Heroes

Other vessels, rammed by the steely ice, have sunk before their crews could save even a vestige of provisions. In some cases these crews have been rescued after surviving for many days upon the raw, warm blood of penguins, the only food available, they declared, which would have kept them alive, saturated as they were with freezing sea water.

The knowledge of these things makes those of us who use airplanes successfully in the Antarctic, starting and returning to comfortable and well equipped resorts, feel rather reluctant to accept in any degree a heroic role.

Yet the Polar regions have already taken their toll of flying men. We grieve for those Norwegians who seem to have disappeared forever in the Ross Sea and our late companion, Carl Ben Eielson, lost in the Arctic snows.

But even so, on the average, the loss of lives and machines is small. Mawson, Riser-Larson, Byrd and myself, with our pilots, have used 10 planes in flying many thousands of miles over the South Polar regions. Only one plane, one of Byrd's, except that lost with the Norwegians, has been damaged by the elements.

The flying conditions at the time we choose to fly are not to my mind as hazardous as those sometimes encountered by the average mail pilot flying daily over regular routes throughout the United States.

There is more bad weather in the South, but in really bad weather it is useless for an explorer to attempt a flight.

Fly Unknown

Still the fact remains that until November 1928, when with Eielson we made the first Antarctic flight in history, the conditions in the South were strange and unknown, and it is for the courage of the adventurer—the seeker after new knowledge—that the pilots who these last two years have flown machines in the South should be given credit.

For myself I can perhaps claim exemption, for, while not actually flying in the Antarctic until 1928, I had for years experienced Polar expeditions, observing them with the point of view of a flying man.

I knew something of the conditions we must face and realized that, with the selection of good equipment and the exercise of caution, the dangers could be surmounted.

It is the caution and efficiency born of experience that has enabled Admiral Byrd and me to return with much work done and with the men who have helped me in perfect health. Even our equipment, which served us for a year in the Arctic before doing duty for two years in the South, did not suffer unduly.

Scientific Investment

Expeditions are, after all, a form of investment in the market of scientific knowledge and the airplane has made it possible to make the profits, in the department of geography, large.

Since setting out for the Antarctic just eighteen months ago we have, notwithstanding the fact that we returned to other work for six months last year, added to the charts of Antarctica more than 1,200 miles of coastline never seen before.

We have discovered fourteen new islands, scores of mountain peaks, new land and many straits and channels. These discoveries include Hearst and Stefansson Strait, Cape Byrd, Cape Mawson, Mount Ranck and the Detroit Aviation Society Plateau.

In our Lockheed planes we have flown a distance of more than five thousand miles over the Antarctic pack ice and mountains and pushed this year with the Royal research ship, William Scoresby, through four thousand miles of ice-infested water.

From the ship we took many ocean soundings, water temperatures and water samples and on the way made numerous biological collections.

Naturally we are grateful and very much indebted to many generous firms and individuals for help. Without their willing aid the work could not have been done. But the work in the field has been carried on by a staff of four men—two pilots, an engineer and a radio man besides myself.

Consider Cost

By using equipment already paid for by service in the Arctic, our expedition was relieved of considerable expense in outfitting for the Antarctic transportation wages, traveling expenses and upkeep were the principal items of expenditure.

We have been helped by many ships, particularly by the royal research vessel William Scoresby.

Many passenger shipping concerns have given us service at cost of operation and, due to the smallness and the mobility of my party, the total expense for our two seasons work in the Antarctic amounts to less than $60,000.

But our work is only a preliminary reconnaisance to enable us to formulate and organize a plan for extensive and intensive study. If we can manage to establish and maintain several permanent stations in the Antarctic, collecting and collating metrological records daily with those collected in more northerly latitudes, we can reasonably hope to improve the accuracy of daily and seasonal weather forecasts to the point where they will be of immeasurable value to agriculturists, shipping concerns and aviation.

(The remarkable results achieved by the Wilkins-Hearst expedition will be told in a thrilling series of articles written by Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins for the March of Events section of the Hearst Sunday newspapers. The first will appear Sunday, March 30.)

est to $248,568.70. The home was bought by the Pittsburgh Trust Company, holder of the mortgage. Prior to the sale the furniture was sold at a public sale.

Col. Guffey was born on a farm near Madison, Westmoreland County, January 19, 1839. At the age of 18 he became a clerk for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad in Louisville.

He spent several years in the South, returning to Pennsylvania in 1865, and becoming interested in the oil boom at Pithole, Venango County, which at that time had a population of 16,000.

After a brief stay he returned to the South, where he lived several years, later locating in the oil fields of Clarion County. About 1880 his interests took him to Titusville, and from there, in the development of his business, he came to Pittsburgh in 1882.

After coming to Pittsburgh he became active in the first campaign of Robert S. Pattison, Democratic candidate for governor. He was even more active in Pattison's second campaign in 1890 and had the pleasure of seeing him elected a second time. He was active, also, in Grover Cleveland's three campaigns.

NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN

In 1896 he supported William Jennings Bryan, running as the Democratic nominee for the Presidency. Mr. Guffy then was elected Pennsylvania's Member of the Democratic National Committee, a position carrying with it the Democratic leadership in the state, which he held 16 years. He was re-elected National Committeeman in 1900 and also in 1904.

In 1908 he broke with Bryan, candidate for the third time that year, and Bryan's friends unseated Guffey delegates from Pennsylvania to the Democratic National Convention in Denver, and unhorsed Guffey as National Committeeman, electing James Kerr, of Clearfield, in his stead.

In 1912 he made about his last active stand politically in Democratic affairs in Pennsylvania and the nation. At that time he opposed Woodrow Wilson for the Democratic nomination.

GAS CONCERN ORGANIZER

In the eighties he organized the Westmoreland and Cambria Natural Gas Company, Wheeling Natural Gas Company, now part of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company; the United Fuel Gas Company, and the South West Pennsylvania Natural Gas Company.

The Westmoreland and Cambria company supplied gas to Greensburg, Latrobe and Johnstown, and the South West Pennsylvania company supplied Mt. Pleasant, Scottdale, Connellsville and Uniontown.

In 1884-5 he sold to George Westinghouse holdings which, with the original well drilled by Mr. Westinghouse on his home property at Homewood, formed the basis of the Philadelphia Company, then organizing under George Westinghouse. Later he formed the Guffey and Galey company, a partnership which starting in 1886 and continuing until the death of John Galey in 1915, was for many years known as one of the most daring and venturesome "wildcat operators" in the oil and natural gas developments.

They did the first oil developing in Kansas and Oklahoma; but their greatest success of all was the development of the Lucas gusher in the Beaumont field, Beaumont, Tex. This operation first was known as the J. M. Guffey Petroleum Company, but now is known as the Gulf Refining Company and is controlled by the Mellon interests. Mr. Guffey married Nancy Elizabeth Cook, widow of Smith Cook, of Titusville, in 1887. They had one child, Elsie, who survives as do three stepchildren, Mary, Harry A. and Thomas H. Guffey. Mrs. Guffey died in June, 1923.

Ex-Policeman Dies At Beaver Falls

BEAVER FALLS, March 20.—Charles Balzer, 69, former borough policeman, died at his home. He was a member of the St. Mary's R. C. Church. He leaves a son, C. E. Balzer, Sheraden, and a daughter, Mrs. A. E. Klinkle, Beaver Falls.

Tibbett, Opera Star, Here, Shows Human Side

By J. FRED LISSFELT

Lawrence Tibbett, whose first talkie "The Rogue's Song" is now playing in Pittsburgh, and who will sing in Syria Mosque tomorrow night, is here.

He was enjoying the singer's delight, a baked apple, while he laughingly assured the world that he does not treat women in real life as he does in his film, but that there is always danger in becoming what one practices, and what the press agent tells of him.

That he is a big American artist goes without saying, for his opera and concerts have taught that long ago. That he is a keenly intelligent performer is known too, for he touches every soul in his audiences, those who come to learn, and those who come to be amused. That he is a fine sympathetic human being he shows at the breakfast table.

Tibbett is not nearly so sad over grand opera as other singers who have left its circle for doubtful careers. He is conscious of the revolution in all music, of the possibilities of filmed opera, but is still wondering whether all those possibilities will be realized.

His art is not selfish, he creates his beautiful songs not for himself, but is delighted that he can speak to his own people in many languages through his singing, and particularly in their own English. He is not unconscious of that rarity in America, the fine speaking voice even among stage folk.

And wise fellow that he is, he knows virile but young America, and little hopes for an American art until we have absorbed much more, until we have discarded the froth, and until we believe that our own song alubum contains the gems of music upon which we must build unashamed.

Tibbett is not the singer who carries his handkerchief in his sleeve. He is an eager, courageous fellow who know his Nietsche, but can look life straight in the eyes with the man on the street. The kind of artist that holds his own with anyone in the world.

INLAND STEEL PAWN IN HUGE COMBINE

Eaton Proposes Link With West for Youngstown as Schwab, Grace Mobilize

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 20.—(AP.)—Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, has revealed that his alternative to the absorption of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is the acquisition of the Inland Steel Company of Chicago by Sheet and Tube.

This is the first time he has shown his hand as leader of the opposition to the Bethlehem-Youngstown merger.

He denied reports that the Republic Steel Corporation, which he organized, sought to acquire Sheet and Tube.

Point by point he compared advantages of an Inland-Sheet and Tube merger over Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem.

SCHWAB TO SPEAK

Concurrently with Eaton's statement, proponents of the Bethlehem-Sheet and Tube merger announced that a counter attack against Eaton's group would be made in a public meeting here in a few days. The attack will be led by Charles M. Schwab, chairman and founder of Bethlehem, and by Eugene G. Grace, president.

Eaton in his statement said he was the largest stockholder in Sheet and Tube and the largest holder of securities in Youngstown industries, and, therefore, his interest was in keeping Youngstown an important steel center.

He said the barriers that had grown around the Mahoning Valley steel district could be removed by consolidation with a company in the West and not in the East.

NO DICKERING

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—Eugene C. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said that the proposed merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, of Youngstown, O., with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation would be of benefit to the Youngstown company and its stockholders "but if Youngstown stockholders do not want to ally themselves with Bethlehem, and reject our offer, Bethlehem does not want Youngstown."

"We have made our offer, and it stands, and we do not intend to revise it," he said. "Neither have the Bethlehem directors given any thought to making any other offer in the event that the Youngstown stockholders disapprove the merger. If that happens, the deal is through. We want no divided house."

Mr. Grace and Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem, plan to visit Youngstown on March 26, at the invitation of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce. At that time, Mr. Grace said, he expects to explain how the Sheet and Tube Company, its stockholders and the city itself will benefit by an alliance with Bethlehem.

Turnkey Sheds Vest; Found on Prisoner

A few minutes later the vest was missing. Hooper had been lining up prisoners for a hearing before Magistrate Thomas Jones. As each prisoner stepped before the magistrate's rail the turnkey searched him.

Lo, the missing vest was found adorning the person of Joseph Rocks, 35, of McKees Rocks, arrested for drunkeness.

He was fined $25.

IN conclusion, Mr. Hotchkiss, president of the Chamber of Commerce AND realtor, has promised to find for this writer a small compact ranch, two or three hundred acres, with good water, at least fifteen miles outside of the city.

To buy any nearer would mean to find yourself inside the city and much crowded in a few years, when, with air travel development, this city will have its first and then its second million population. See San Diego and LIVE.

SEEK RIFLEMEN FOR EXECUTION

SALT LAKE CITY, March 20.—(AP.)—Five men willing to act as a firing squad for the execution of Delbert Green, 21, sentenced to die in Utah penitentiary here May 17 for the slaying of his wife, her mother and her step-father, were being sought today.

Counsel for Green plans an appeal, which, if filed, would postpone the date of execution.

Five men, all volunteers, will comprise the firing squad, under Utah law. Their identity is held secret.

A curtain is hung between the doomed man and the firing squad. Five rifles are stacked.

Five portholes are cut in the curtain through which the rifles are aimed at a black target placed over the heart.

Four guns are loaded; the fifth has blank cartridges.

The five men march by, select a gun and take up their firing position at the port holes. None of the five knows which gun is blank.

At a given signal the five rifles crack. One shot each is fired, after which the riflemen restack the guns. The executioners then depart. No coup de grace is delivered.

Robert Henderson, Slayer, Pardoned

Robert Henderson, serving a 10 to 20-year sentence in Western Penitentiary for the murder of Harry J. Schlessman during a saloon brawl on the North Side, yesterday was granted a pardon by the Pardon Board in Harrisburg. He was twice sentenced to die. The pardon was granted on the strength of an investigation into the case last September, when it was brought out that Henderson shot Schlessman accidentally while trying to avoid him.

ASSAILS PRESS ON DRY ISSUE

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Holding the public press lacked sympathy with the prohibition laws, Senator Wesley Jones, of Washington, a Republican dry leader and author of the Jones enforcement act, today issued a compendium of opinions of citizens in the United States and Canada, which he called "The Voice of the Multitude."

The statement quoted many expressions from people which Jones said he had received in response to a radio address. He did not make public their names.

Jones asserted that "the last and greatest factor" in enforcement difficulties was the "attitude of many newspapers, which, so it seems, publish everything which may be unfavorably construed."

Why Simple Stomach Troubles so Often End on Operating Table

"BECAUSE it could have been so easily avoided, no case is more pitiful, than that of the man or woman who is forced to undergo the surgeon's knife as the result of neglecting simple stomach ailments," said a New York physician recently.

You, for instance, may look on an acid stomach as nothing to fear. Yet in reality, it is a most alarming condition on account of its great tendency to develop stomach ulcers.

Face facts. If you suffer gas and bloating after meals, loss of appetite, constipation, headaches, if your breath is bad, your tongue coated, the best thing you can do is to go to the nearest drug store and get a bottle of Tanlac. Besides getting quick relief, weak, disordered stomachs which seemed utterly to have stopped working the way they should, have shown almost a miraculous return to normal activity through the remarkable stimulating effect of Tanlac. One woman, Mrs. May Ogle, says: "Tanlac saved my life. I had stomach troubles for 10 years. Gas nearly killed me and I was in bed for weeks at a time. Doctors said it was gall stones and gall bladder. Spent lots of money but suffering increased and all hope was lost. Certainly a harder task for Tanlac could not be found yet it succeeded. Now in the best health in 10 years and eat everything." Tanlac is not a "patent medicine"—it's a real medicine so do not accept a cheap substitute. Fully guaranteed to give satisfaction or money back. At all druggists.

FORMER RAJAH BALKS WEDDING

INDORE, India, March 20—(AP.)—Ex-Maharaja Holkar, who frequently stirred this city in the past, especially when he married Nancy Ann Miller, of Seattle, gave it another sensation by abruptly forbidding the marriage of Manorama Raje, a daughter by his first wife, to a barrister named Matker.

Arrangements had been made to celebrate the marriage on March 16, but the bride's father halted that plan. He said he had resolved to give his daughter to some one outside his caste in accordance with the doctrines of the ancient Mohammedan saint, Kabir, who tried to break down the caste barriers.

MEXICAN CHIEF SAFE IN ATTACK

MEXICO CITY, March 20—(AP.)—A dispatch to the newspaper El Universal from Durango said that Gen. Jaime Carrillo, chief of military operations for the State of Durango, was ambushed on a road just outside the state capital yesterday, but escaped injury.

Five bullets penetrated his automobile and one went through his hat.

He jumped from the car and drove off his attackers with his pistol. He was accompanied only by his chauffeur, who also escaped injury.

The General commanded the federal force which successfully defended Mazatlan against a rebel attack in the Escobar revolution last year.

Rooms by day, week or month. See the Classified Ads in today's paper.

Jeannette Vet Wins $5,700 Claim

WASHINGTON, March 20—(AP.)—Angelo Altier, who resides in Jeannette, Pa., is scheduled to receive good news in the form of a check for $6,700 in payment of a compensation claim.

Angelo, the records show, lost his vision by reason of injuries received while serving with the Three Hundred and Twentieth Infantry. For four years he and his friends have been submitting evidence to prove service disability connection, and he has undergone numerous physical examinations.

IMPORTANT DIRECTIONS

TAKE TIME to brush thoroughly both your gums and teeth with Squibb's Dental Cream. Make it a habit. Then you will force tiny particles of Milk of Magnesia into the crevices and fissures of your teeth and render harmless the acids given off by germs — the cause of tooth decay. You will protect your teeth even where the brush can't reach, where ordinary dentifrices are ineffectual. You will keep your gums — the gum edge, The Danger Line, pink and healthy — a real protection against pyorrhea.

In fact you will have much finer teeth—freer from decay. You will look better and feel better . . . all for an extra minute of careful use of Squibb's Dental Cream. (Made with 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia.) At all reliable drug stores.

RUSS RAILROADS TO BUY IN U. S.

DENVER, March 20.—(AP.)—The prediction that American manufacturers will be called upon during the next three years to fill orders for millions of dollars worth of rolling stock and other railroad equipment for Russia was made here yesterday by D. E. Sulimov, first vice commissar for transportation of the Soviet government.

En route to Kansas City with a party of 14 Russian railway officials, Mr. Sulimov is making an intensive study of American railway methods.

"Since our tour of the United States has convinced us of our need for heavier locomotives and larger freight cars, such as our factories are not now equipped to furnish, it is likely that we will make the purchases in this country until such time as our factories are able to duplicate the equipment," said Sulimov. "Our plans for the next three years call for 26,000 additional miles of railway, of which 15,000 now are under construction."

HOOVER HEALTH GAIN SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover is in better health than a year ago, says Dr. Royal S. Copeland, senator from New York, but he shouldn't burn too much midnight oil.

After a visit to the executive offices, Senator Copeland said Mr. Hoover had remarked he would have to sit up all night soon to go over the long list of candidates proposed for the Supreme Court vacancy.

"Don't do that," said Copeland, "sleep over it and make the decision in the morning."

A year ago the New Yorker expressed apprehension that the presidential medicine ball exercises might be too strenuous, but now he says the President looks better than when he entered the White House.

Policeman Shot Dead Questioning Autoists

MIDDLETOWN, O., March 20.—(AP.)—Patrolman Daniel Sandlin was shot and killed as he and Patrolman Roy Crout attempted to question two suspected bootleggers after forcing their automobile to the curb early today. Crout said one of the suspects, whom he recognized, jumped out and fired three times, wounding Sandlin fatally. The slayer and his companion escaped afoot.

Erie Fire Causes $400,000 Damage

Two firemen were slightly injured while investigating the cause of a series of explosions inside the flaming structure.

JOBLESS PEAK NOW PAST

BALTIMORE, March 20.—(AP.)—Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, in Baltimore to attend the annual meeting of the Union Labor Life Insurance stockholders, said, discussing the unemployment situation, that jobs are now growing more plentiful in the United States.

"The unemployment situation," he said, "has been very bad, but things are beginning to improve now."

"It is difficult," he added, "to make an accurate appraisal of the situation, as no system is in operation to check on the number employed or those out of work."

He estimated there were between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 out of work at present.

Irish Banker Robbed Of $40,000 and Car

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, March 20.—(AP.)—Masked thugs last night held up a banker's automobile near Carrigallen, County Leitrim, and escaped with $40,000 in banknotes. After taking the money the robbers appropriated the automobile, which was found later abandoned.

Freighter Repaired, Resumes Voyage

NEW YORK, March 20.—(INS.)—The Greek freighter Eugenia, which drifted helplessly yesterday with broken steering gear 200 miles northeast of Bermuda, today was proceeding on her course to Marseilles, radio messages here reported. The Eugenia radioed she no longer was in need of assistance.

The Eugenia sailed from Baltimore Sunday.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

LINCOLN AIRWAY ROUTE URGED

Eleven men prominent in aviation in the Pittsburgh district have jointly written Col. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, suggesting that the proposed new route for the Pennsylvania portion of the New York-St. Louis airway follow the Lincoln highway.

They call the Bellefonte route "the graveyard of aviation" because of the accidents that have befallen aviators traversing it, and declare neither the proposed route via Ebensburg nor the route via Johnstown is much better.

"The safest and best route between the Pittsburgh municipal airport and Philadelphia, as determined by our experience, and which we regularly follow in our operations," the letter says, "is in general along the Lincoln Highway, passing over Greensburg, Ligonier and Bedford to a change of direction somewhere in the vicinity of McConnellsburg."

Liner Europa Drops 200 at Isle of Wight

COWES, Isle of Wight, Eng., March 20.—(AP.)—The North German Lloyd liner Europa, making her maiden voyage from Bremerhaven to New York, stopped at Cowes Roads today and landed nearly 200 passengers, who were conveyed on a tour of the Isle of Wight. They will start on a return trip to Bremerhaven this evening aboard the homeward-bound Bremen, sister ship of the Europa.

'Bloodless Knife' Success in Operation

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(INS.)—Dr. James F. Mitchell, surgeon at Emergency Hospital, has successfully used the "bloodless knife," a device especially designed by radio engineers for cancer operations.

The blade vibrates high frequency electric sparks controlled by vacuum tubes, and cauterizes blood vessels and tissue as it cuts. It is said also to minimize pain.

Wilkinsburg Home Damaged by Blaze

Fire originating from an overheated furnace late last night swept through the home of Foster Lawson, of 374 Wilkinsburg avenue, and damaged the structure to the extent of $6,000, according to an estimate made by Battalion Chief John Frazer.

Windber Woman Dead Along Highway

WINDBER, March 20.—Mrs. Philip Figurel, 71, was found dead on a highway between Windber and Holsopple. The woman, believed to have been slightly demented, left her home last Saturday. Death was due to exposure.

BLOCK WALK, 3 REDS FINED

A young woman and two men, all Communists, were fined $10 each in Morals Court today after police testified they had distributed literature and blocked the sidewalk last night at Wylie avenue and Fullerton street.

The Communists had a permit to assemble, but Magistrate Thomas D. Jones held that they were not entitled to block passage or distribute literature. The defendants were Pearl Mann, 21, of Concord street; Fred Kearns, 29, of 721 Fifth avenue; George Patrins, 32, of 132 Washington street.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

LITTLE JACK LITTLE will croon with Rudy Vallee's Orchestra on the 8 o'clock Sunshine Hour over WCAE. Immediately following the broadcast he will leave New York for Pittsburgh to fill a week's engagement at the Stanley Theater.

The pretty "Alice Blue Gown" from "Irene" will be done as a solo by Muriel Wilson, soprano, for the Maxwell House group over KDKA at 9:30.

Muriel Wilson

"Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" by the Singing Violins will be a highlight of the 9 o'clock Seiberling program on KDKA.

A re-creation of the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries go will be offered by Frank and Seder on their Men's Hour at WJAS at 8 p. m.

A New York night club scene will supply background for the Atwater Kent Musicale on KDKA at 10 o'clock. Victor Hour on WCAE at this time will present three soloists, an orchestra and choir. The chorus will sing Rachmaninoff's "Gloria."

PATRIOTIC TALK

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, U. S. representative-at-large from Illinois, will interpret the term, "America for Americans" in the D. A. R. broadcast from WRC, WEAF and WSAI tonight at 7:30.

Next week's "Forty Fathom Trawler" program will be relayed from the trawler "Spray," at anchor in New York harbor.

A letter simply addressed, "Andy Brown, President, Fresh Air Taxicab Company," found its way to Kay Dee.

Four people at WJAS go to lunch every day at 12:15 and this, they figure, has something to do with their new telephone number—GRant 4860.

L. S. Cotton, who helped Pat Barnes of WGN produce "A Buck On Leave," is co-working with Herb McGee on radio continuities.

TODAY'S TID-BIT:

Rabbits have started a pre-Easter celebration at Saxonburg, where they leap and play about the wires constructed for KDKA's six-acre aerial. Herb Irving's possum, "Skookum," gave them an awful scare the other day.

Standing out
as the better cigarette

THE SINGLE IDEA of superlative quality was the inspiration for Camel Cigarettes.

From the time when the first Camel Cigarette was made that one idea has set Camel apart.

A policy of better tobaccos, combined in an incomparable blend, manufactured with the most exacting care—all to assure the utmost pleasure in smoking.

That is the ideal and the practice back of every package of Camel Cigarettes.

It has made Camel the most popular cigarette ever known. More millions have chosen Camels for smoking pleasure than ever accorded their patronage to any other cigarette.

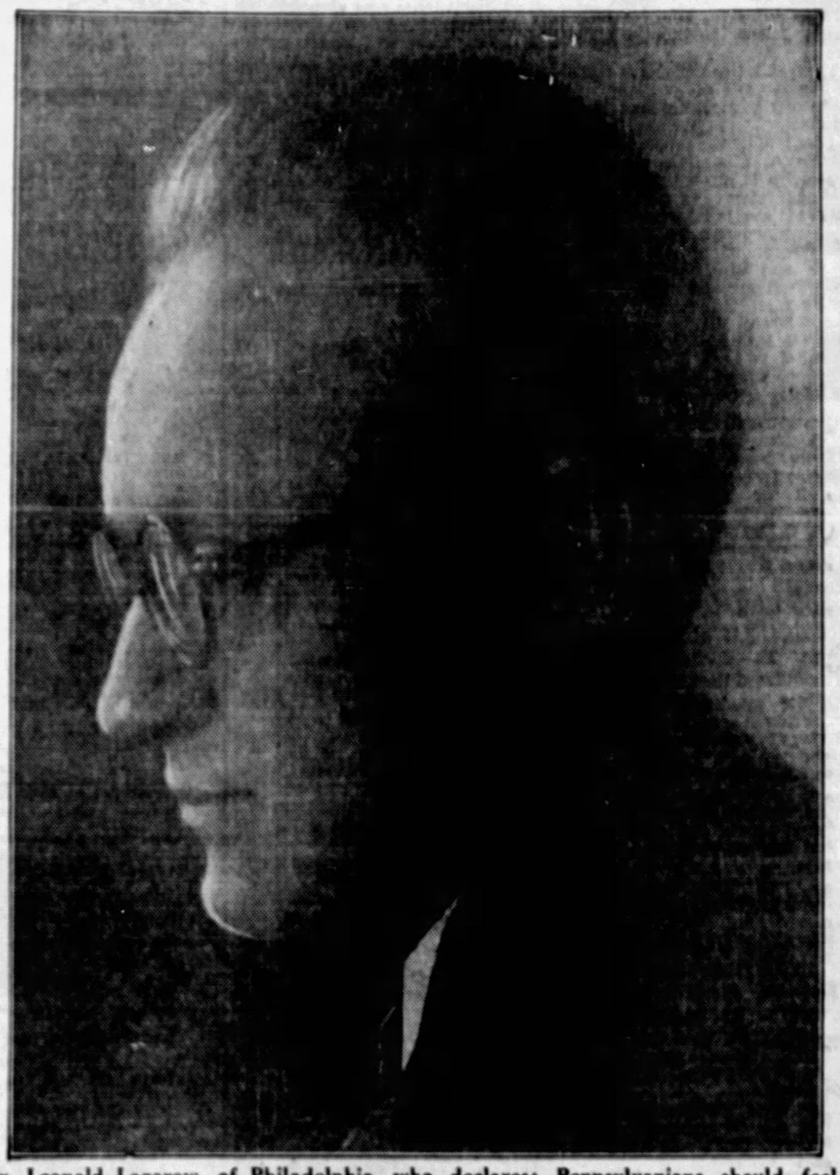
More and More Penna. Doctors are Endorsing Flaxolyn



Dr. Leopold Lazarow, of Philadelphia, who declares: Pennsylvanians should feel proud that the Flaxolyn formula was developed by a Pennsylvania physician, Dr. Luntz

"There have been many important discoveries during the last decade. Most of these discoveries have been primarily for diseased people—such as insulin for diabetes. Dr. Luntz's vitaminized Herbal Flaxolyn is not for people suffering with tragic diseases, but for the rank and file of Americans who are sick or ailing or run-down or tired out, or who are suffering from the toxic poisons of constipation. Flaxolyn is a discovery for the people as a whole—for 90% of us."

"Let Herbal Flaxolyn Help You To Sleep—Eat—Live—According to Mother Nature. Now Enjoy Fresh Energy and Natural Health, Power"

SAYS SPANISH SPECIALIST

If the readers of this paper could only listen to Dr. Francis X. Ramil as he gives his straightforward opinion of Flaxolyn and tells how wonderful he knows it is, they would not hesitate one moment in giving it the fair trial and steady use it deserves.

In his native country of Spain Dr. Ramil was known as a specialist in stomach disorders. He is now engaged in the practise of drugless therapy in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Ramil says:

"Flaxolyn has a natural action which I have never seen duplicated by any product of its kind, although I have tried a great many, both old and new.

"Dr. Luntz has attained a finely balanced formula which acts upon the various organs of the body in a gentle manner and helps to give a more vigorous tone to the body.

How Flaxolyn Promotes Wonderful Health

"When I first heard of Flaxolyn I was skeptical, as most people would be, but then when I tried it and saw how it aided the appetite and the digestion, how it gently stimulated the bile-secreting action of the liver and cleansed the intestinal tract of its toxic impurities, all doubt was removed from my mind and today I can wholeheartedly advise all my good friends to use Flaxolyn steadily."

FLAXOLYN HAS HELPED THIS DOCTOR'S PERSONAL FRIENDS

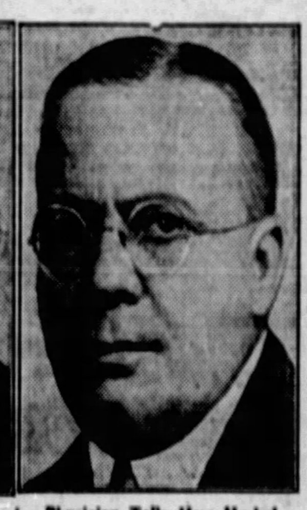
Dr. L. A. Winokur says: "You will be interested to know that I have recommended Flaxolyn to a great many of my friends because I believe it is the finest formula in the correction of constipation and its thousand-and-one attendant ills. Flaxolyn has done a world of good and on all sides I have heard nothing but praise for it.

"Flaxolyn must be different from ordinary formulas, because it is so much better in results."

Braddock, Pa., Physician Calls Flaxolyn "Most Forceful Tonic"

"In 25 years of medical experience I have never given permission to use my name or picture in connection with the public advertising of any preparation," says Dr. William F. Benecke.

"In the case of Flaxolyn I happily make an exception. Flaxolyn is the most wonderful general health tonic ever prescribed, in my opinion. It has the natural qualities that make it extremely forceful in conditions of the stomach, liver and bowels. Flaxolyn is positively harmless."



Physician Tells How Herbal Flaxolyn Speeds New Strength

Dr. William W. Kern, (M. D., University of Pennsylvania,) is another one of the long list of physicians who have tried Flaxolyn and know it to have unusual merit because it is a DIFFERENT type of medicine.

"The action of Flaxolyn," says Dr. Kern, "is to speed up the work of certain sluggish internal organs, to activate the digestive juices and to cleanse the intestinal tract. Flaxolyn is far superior to any tonic laxative preparation I know."

Make This Free Test of Flaxolyn

You do not take the slightest risk when you give Flaxolyn a trial. The money you leave with the druggist is merely a deposit. The quick results must prove to you that Flaxolyn is more than worth the small amount you pay for it. Behind every bottle stands the integrity of the doctor who originated Flaxolyn, and who gives his own personal guarantee of your complete satisfaction.

IRON-BOUND GUARANTEE

I do not want you to pay for Flaxolyn unless you are fully satisfied that it does you good. I hereby guarantee that Flaxolyn contains only pure, harmless herbs combined with medicaments approved for their therapeutic value.

I further guarantee that unless Flaxolyn brings you a satisfactory improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful, you may return the partly used bottle and the druggist will hand you back your money.

U.S. CONTRACTS FOR 122 PLANES

WASHINGTON March 20.—(AP.)—Contracts for 50 new attack planes and 73 bombing planes at a cost of $2,909,500 were let today by the War Department.

The attack planes will be built by the Curtiss Airplane and Motor Company. They will be of the model A-3B. When delivered the Army will have a total of 78 planes of this type.

The Keystone Aircraft Corporation was awarded the contract for the bombardment planes at a cost of $2,208,100.

Each of these giant bombers will be powered with two Pratt & Whitney 525-horsepower aircooled engines.

At the same time the department announced that procurement of new Army airplanes from funds which may become available for the fiscal year 1931 was being held up until the appropriations bill now before Congress has been passed.

Medals Awarded To 11 Girl Scouts

Auto Abandoned In Little Creek

Police were investigating the finding of an automobile today in Little Creek, near Etna. Motorcycle Officer G. A. Steiner, of the Etna police, found the machine upside down in a foot and a half of water. It had been stripped of its license plates.

Why should you let housework spoil your hands?

YOU ask any beauty editor. Look in the magazine and newspaper articles. You'll find "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly recommended all the time to keep the hands soft.

Follow the advice of those people who know. Apply "Vaseline" Jelly to your hands at night and wear old cotton or silk gloves. When you manicure your nails, wrap a little cotton around a dull orange stick, dip it in the Jelly and work back the cuticle.

These two easy things will make a world of difference in the looks of your hands. We all have to wash dishes, and dust furniture, or pound typewriters or work in gardens. But our hands need not advertise the necessary toil to the world. Lay in a store of "Vaseline" Jelly and use it freely. Get a jar today just for your own personal use. Don't delay.

REAL KNOCKOUT IN GINGER JAG

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(INS.)—America's new paralysis cocktail—Jamaica ginger, isopropyl alcohol, or whatever poison it is—has an effect like a stout blow on the head from a caveman's club.

A couple of "shots" is followed by sagging legs, paralysis and then a gloomy "all-in-low" feeling that has nothing of the exhiliarating cheer of ordinary intoxicants.

So Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran explained today in discussing preliminary reports from several sections of the country where epidemics of paralysis have followed drinking sprees. He said:

"By analyzing samples we expect the last of the week we will determine whether the concoctions contain a synthetic alcohol known as isopropyl, which is manufactured from the gases arising in the production of gasoline by the cracking process. This alcohol is not the result of fermentation.

The preparation is commercially used chiefly as a cleaning fluid and costs about $1 a gallon.

MOROSCO HITS CHECK CHARGE

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—(AP.) — Charged with issuing worthless checks, Oliver Mitchell, better known in the stage and screen world as Oliver Morosco, was arrested here as he was about to sail for Los Angeles. He was released on his own recognizance by Police Judge Sylvian Lazarus.

The complaint was sworn to by Robert Bird, head of a theater supply company, who claimed Morosco gave him checks totaling $449 last June, and they were returned as worthless. Morosco denied responsibility for the checks, asserting they were issued by a theatrical concern with which he had been connected.

Morosco was married here last November to Miss Helen McRuer, a leading lady in one of his plays. In 1926 Morosco went into bankruptcy, listing his liabilities at more than $1,000,000. Since that time he has been conducting a stage school here.

NEWS FROM SHOW CENTERS; LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Glagolin, Russian Actor, Praised by Salvini, Has New 'Othello'

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

PITTSBURGH has recently seen a wonderfully impressive production of a play by Lope de Vega, the old Spanish dramatist, called "The Gardener's Dog," produced in the little theater of the Tech Drama School. And shortly we are to see a play called "The Golem," given by the actors of the Playhouse at the Y. M. & W. H. A. in Oakland.

George Seibel

The presiding genius of these two bold experiments is Boris S. Glagolin—a Russian who ought to become as well known as Max Reinhardt or Gordon Craig. In Russia he ranks as a "national artist," like Chaliapin. He has acted hundreds of roles, from Hamlet down, and he has lectured before many learned societies on the history and theory of the drama.

"Yes, I like Pittsburgh," he said over the tea table—these Russians are tea topers. "Pittsburgh is constructive, and the stage art I am advocating is called Constructivism.

"You see, when the war and the revolution had impoverished Russia, it put an end to the old theater of illusions. There was lack of linen material even for garments; it was impossible to import dyes from Germany. The only material available for scenery grew in Russia's far-flung forests. So the theater began to build platforms, stairs, arches, pillars. Necessity was the mother of a new art.

"And now this new art Constructivism has brought the theater a new life. The old illusions are dead—reality revives."

VOICE IN THE WILDERNESS

Forty years ago the great dramatist Ostrowski told Czar Alexander III that such a change would have to come.

"It is high time, Your Majesty," he said, "to have the theater become a real factor in life. Catering to the poor taste of the bourgeoisie must end. The theater must not create merely pleasant impressions, but must stir and move the audience, to arouse in them a desire to reconstruct their modes of life."

Moral dynamics was what the author of "The Storm" wanted.

Piragow, famous Russian scientist, had laid the foundations of the new theater in an essay, "To Be or To Seem," and Tolstoy had produced plays that represented reality.

It seems strange that Glagolin has chosen a theme like the legend of "The Golem" to illustrate his very modern theory. For the Golem story goes back to the Middle Ages in the city of Prague. It is a religious and rabbinical version of the Frankenstein motif.

In the home of Maharal Levi, in the Ghetto of Prague, this giant servitor of human needs is created by white magic. As a defender against oppression and persecution, or as an angel of destruction, the Golem is equally formidable.

A play as moving as "The Dybbuk" should be unfolded when the performance at the "Y" comes off.

NEW IDEAS FOR "OTHELLO"

Meanwhile Boris S. Glagolin is busy completing a book on theatrical art. It will make a volume of about 400 pages, and is one of the most interesting book mss. I have ever looked through. It will be his 20th published work.

He is somewhat of a mystic, this Glagolin, like most Russians, as appears from his aphorism that in the theater "nothing is real but the future."

It is interesting that Glagolin should have taken "Othello" for his crowning Shakespearean experiment, since it was in the company of Tomasso Salvini, the greatest Othello of the past century, that he received his first recognition. He played Cassio under Salvini, who said of him: "A brilliant career awaits this young and sympathetic artist Glagolin."

"Othello" is so profoundly dramatic that William Winter once said it could be acted entirely in pantomime. Glagolin sets to work to get all the dramatic values out of every character and every situation. His book is the minutest study of a play that could be made. Every line is dissected and put under the microscope.

Pittsburgh is fortunate to have such a man as Glagolin here to give a new impetus to our dramatic activities.

'STRANGE INTERLUDE' TO BE IN NIXON TWO WEEKS

Seats are now on sale at the box office of the Nixon for "Hot Chocolates," Negro musical revue, that opens a week's engagement in that theater Monday.

Seats will go on sale at the Nixon box office Monday morning at 9 a. m. for the two weeks' engagement of Eugene O'Neill's sensational nine-act drama, "Strange Interlude." On account of the demand for tickets for the week of March 31 the engagement has been extended for a second week, beginning April 7. Each performance will start at 5:30; and 7:40 there is a dinner intermission until 9. Late comers will be seated only between the acts.

"Laff That Off," Don Mullally's comedy, which Earl Carroll produced in New York several seasons ago, will be revived by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt next week.

HERBERT OPERETTA

"Naughty Marietta," Victor Herbert operetta, will be presented in the Alvin next week. Old New Orleans is the background for the music and story. Ilse Marvenga, of "Student Prince" fame, will be heard in the prima donna role.

Dorothy Arzner, Paramount's only woman director, produced "Sarah and Son," which comes to the Penn Monday. Ruth Chatterton is in the starring role.

Lawrence Tibbett, leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who is starred in "The Rogue Song" in the Aldine, is blazing a new trail, for he is the first major opera star to be featured in a talking picture. The production is entirely in technicolor.

REAL INDIANS

The Clifford Wayne troupe of real Indians, with Karlh Wayne, boy concert violinist, is a feature of the RKO vaudeville, which opens in the Harris Saturday. Dick Ware will be master of ceremonies. "Hit the Deck," with Jack Oakie, will be seen on the screen.

Little Jack Little radio star comes to the Stanley in person for a week, beginning tomorrow, in conjunction with Dick Powell's Warner-Publix offering, "Aladdin's Revels." Gary Cooper and Mary Brian will appear on the screen "Only the Brave."

FRANK FAY STARRED

Frank Fay, master of ceremonies of "The Show of Shows," comes to the Warner Saturday in his first starring vehicle, "Under a Texas Moon." Featured in the cast of this comedy film are Armida, Myrna Loy, Raquel Torres, Tully Marshall and Noah Beery.

Richard Barthelmess' "Son of the Gods" opens in the Enright Saturday. Jay Mills will offer "Hot Footin' It" on the stage.

Bernie's Orchestra In Nixon Restaurant

Ben Bernie and his orchestra are now appearing in the Nixon Restaurant. Bernie's boyhood ambition was to be a civil engineer, but fate, in the form of a violin, intervened. In an effort to earn his college fee, he became a violin demonstrator in a department store. A theatrical agent heard him and booked him up and thus engineering was forgotten and his career as an enterta er got underway.

New Kind of Salts Taking Country By Storm

They Revitalize the System — Induce Youthful Activity—Keep Body in Splendid Condition—Free From Fat.

It doesn't take long for Americans to wake up to a good thing—only a few months ago Kruschen Salts were introduced into this country and the welcome news of their superior goodness and swift rejuvenating power traveled so fast that at one time the supply was many carloads behind the demand.

All of which goes to prove that Americans know good salts when they take them and want their friends to benefit also.

Kruschen Salts are taken for their health-building value all over the world—they are the largest selling medicinal salts in Great Britain today.

Kruschen Salts are different from other salts—Kruschen is six salts in one—the very same six salts that nature put into the human body at the beginning of creation and demands you keep them there or your health won't be as good as it should be.

Unlike most salts Kruschen isn't simply a laxative—if that's all you want any old kind of salts with any kind of a label will do—but is that all you want?

When you take Kruschen Salts you not only stimulate your bowels, liver and kidneys to function naturally and perfectly, but you supply every internal organ, gland, nerve and fibre in the body with nature's own revitalizing and rejuvenating minerals.

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85c at all May's & Liggett's Drug Stores, or any drug store in America—take one-half a teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—in just a few days indolence changes to activity and life grows brighter.

Before the bottle is empty you will feel years younger—eyes will brighten—step grow sprightlier—nerves steadier—you'll sleep sound, enjoy your meals and after a hard day's work you'll be ready for wholesome recreation—one million Americans know all this—ask your druggist.

Prima Donna

Ilse Marvenga has the prima donna role in Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta," which will be presented next week in the Alvin.

Pert Kelton, Broadway Actress, Cast With Benny Rubin

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 20.

We've been frowning over funny weather lately. Thunder and lightning around tea time, with barrels of rain. A little sun thrown in for good measure. Case of devil beating his wife or, as Eddie Goulding would have it, "The Devil's Holiday."

PERT KELTON, erstwhile Broadway electric lighter, is traipsing opposite Benny Rubin in "Hot Curves." A baseball yarn, but Miss Kelton shares the title. I remember, years ago, when Doug MacLean was making funsters, he trailed to New York vacationing. Said he was having a hard time finding a lead. Le scribe suggested Pert Kelton, who at the time was being featured in a Marilyn Miller show. Doug never tested the gal, but this colyum wasn't awfully wrong if she's here at last making celluloid hey-hey with Benny Rubin.

D. McLean

GIGGLE ENGINEER

OUR colyum pal, Edwin K. O'Brien, is with us again. Ed opens on RKO stationery that "I'm no longer with Fox but with RKO in the capacity of Giggle Engineer, running a newly formed comedy research bureau, supervision of Leon D'Usseau, foreign manager. "My job, he continues, "is to creep up, scissors in hand, on snickers, roars, giggles and guffaws, lay them low, and tuck them away for future reference." I must remember to send Mr. O'Brien some of those knee pads I use for African golf . . .

CLARA BOW cut her hand very badly and was speeded to a hospital for bandages. Oke, now. Cut took place during a scene for her new flick. Something about the navy. Chance for a pun, but the weather is too chilly.

AH, 'TIS SPRING

LITTLE Lad Cupid appears busy on that Fox lot. Russell Gleason is still giving Margaret Churchill the rush-rush. Rex Bell likewise by Fifi Dorsay. The "Oo La La Frisker." And Frank Albertson falls for the Irish—she being Maureen O'Sullivan. Spring may have something to do with all this.

THEY'RE still talking about the Lowell Sherman-Helene Costello wedding. It was an event. Good time had by all. I think it was Lew Cody who said he hadn't enjoyed such a pleasant week-end in years! Party broke up around five.

MAY RE-MAKE FILM

HEAR tell Fred Niblo hankers to remake "Thy Name is Woman" as a talkie. Ramon Novarro and Barbara LaMarr co-starred in this years ago.

LOOKS like Stepin Fetchit will be amongst those cavorting in King Vidor's production of "Billy the Kid."

WHICH reminds me. At a local stable they have a horse monikered after King. Such is fame . . .

36 ESCAPE OIL SHIP BLAST

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(AP.)—The 36 members of the crew of the tank steamer Hagan leaped into the water last night after exploding gasoline tanks at the Gulf Refining Company's plant at Girard Point, at the junction of the Schuylkill and Delaware rivers, had set fire to the ship. They were picked up, unharmed, by tugs.

A few minutes after the men jumped overboard the tanker blew up with a blast that was heard for miles. Its tanks contained approximately 70,000 gallons of oil. It had come in from Port Arthur, Tex., with 100,000 gallons, but about 30,000 gallons had been taken off.

Several tank cars on a railroad siding and a large warehouse filled with oil and gasoline also were destroyed.

MURDER MARKS BANK ROBBERY

COURTENAY, N. D., March 20.—(AP.)—The body of Elmer Bunkowske, 23-year-old assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Courtenay, was found in the bank's vault. He had been shot through the heart. Currency amounting to $3,000 was missing.

Lying face downward in the vault, Bunkowske's body was found by R. B. Milne, president of the bank, after a customer had advised him the bank apparently was unguarded. Although authorities believe that bandits were to blame, an element of mystery was injected into the slaying by the fact that no one could be found who had seen any suspicious characters about the bank. Bunkowske was the only employe in the bank when the shooting occurred.

Town Protests Night Animal Symphony

HAMMOND, Ind., March 20.—(AP.)—Morpheus has enemies—in fact, allege residents of Hammond's subdivisions, the great god of sleep has been forced to flee their domain by the squealing of pigs, the mooing of cows, the bleating of sheep and whatnot that are nightly switched into the district by the Monon railroad.

The city council has been asked to do something about it.

New Recipe for Coloring Gray Hair

By LOIS PAGE

One of the questions most frequently asked me is "What shall I do for my graying hair?" Unhesitatingly I recommend that tried and proven recipe of sage tea and sulphur. A brew of common garden sage with sulphur and alcohol added, makes the best hair restorer I know of.

You can either prepare the mixture yourself at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the bother of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one strand at a time. One application banishes the gray, and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no hard, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. Thousands of men and women use this preparation with no one suspecting it.

Miner Killed; 3 Hurt In Brownsville Area

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—One man was killed and three others hurt, one seriously, in mine accidents in this district yesterday. Andrew Daniels, 51, Daisytown, was crushed to death under a fall of slate at Vesta No. 4 mine near California. Charles Newcomer, Allison; James Crossland, Uniontown, and John Marek, Fairbanks, were the others injured. Newcomer's injuries may prove fatal.

How can you know until you've tried it?

NEWSPAPERS, billboards, radios, magazines--all of them filled with advertising claiming every conceivable merit for dozens of gasolines. They can't all be "best"--they can't all be "most powerful"--they can't all have the "highest anti-knock quality." Of course you can't tell until you've tried ORANGE AMERICAN GAS how true is every claim we ever made for it. If you haven't tried it you probably think we're just boasting and we don't want that. So in fairness to your car and to ORANGE AMERICAN GAS stop at the first Yellow and Black Pump and let this regular-priced gas prove itself. Thousands of motorists who have made the experiment have gone away convinced--that's why you see dozens of new ORANGE AMERICAN GAS pumps being installed every week. Learn today that there is really something different and better on the gasoline market--ORANGE AMERICAN GAS.

KOWAL CASE UP TO JURY

Michael Kowal, 30, of Baltimore, on trial in Criminal Court charged with the murder of Miss Catherine Bush, 17, 6 Library road, Castle Shannon, a hair dresser in a beauty parlor, may learn his fate late today.

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt, who prosecuted the case, made his argument to the jury immediately after court convened this morning. Visiting Judge O. Clair Kent, of Mercer County, then charged the jury of four women and eight men, and they retired.

Kowal, on the witness stand in his own defense most of yesterday, first said his mind went blank and asserted he did not remember shooting the girl in a bedroom of her home last December 23. Under cross-examination he admitted he had told detectives that when he asked the girl why she had failed to keep two appointments to meet him, and asked if she did not want to see him, and she did not answer, he "opened up," and denied that he had told officers that he bought the gun with the intention of killing her if she would not marry him.

Attorney Jacob Shulgold, defending Kowal, argued to the jury that Kowal was drunk. He said he had been unable to produce the companions with whom Kowal had been drinking the day of the murder.

GANDHI CLAN WADES RIVER

JAMBUSAR, Bombay, March 20.—(AP.)—The river Mahi was in a flooded condition when in the dead of night Mahatma Gandhi crossed to a point near here from Raas. He used a boat, from which he was lifted and carried ashore when it reached this bank.

Other members of his party of 78 devotees who are inaugurating a campaign of civil disobedience to the British government, waded three miles through water and mud before halting on the river bank for the night.

Today Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the all-India National Congress, met Gandhi and they walked together at the head of the column to Karell.

"This will be the last religious pilgrimage of my life and I have undertaken it on foot according to tradition."

He exhorted the villagers to be ready to manufacture salt as soon as he reached Jalalpur and he directed them to do so.

BLIZZARD HITS NORTHWEST

SPOKANE, Wash., March 20.—(AP.)—Swirling snow and zero weather in Montana has arrived hand in hand with gale-like windstorms that have done extensive damage in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho.

Near Plains, Mont., a bridge was toppled over into the Missoula River, small buildings were wrecked, and much timber was leveled.

Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho reported power lines swept to the ground, temporarily cutting off service.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 20.—(INS.)—Mail plane service was tied up and all means of communication were crippled today as one of the winter's severest blizzards blanketed Western Canada.

Several towns have recorded 40-degree drops in temperature within 15 hours.

MIAMI, Fla., March 20.—(AP.)—Members of President Hoover's Haitian Commission, arriving here at 8:30 a. m., entrained for Washington early today after a sight-seeing tour of the city.

Although members of the commission refused to disclose the nature of the report they will make to President Hoover, Henry P. Fletcher, a member, speaking for the group, said they would be able to make recommendations for the solution of the serious political situation in that country.

DIPLOMAT AIDS AUTO VICTIM

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(INS.)—Paul Edward Hammond, 22, Southern Railway clerk, fighting for his life as the result of an automobile accident involving Commander Juan Polich, Chilean naval attache, had all the attention possible today at the expense of the diplomat.

Polich, whom the police are unable to arrest or even question because of his diplomatic immunity, ordered three specialists, two nurses and a private room at the hospital for the young bridegroom. Hammond regains consciousness momentarily, only to lapse into a coma again. He has a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Meanwhile, Senator McKellar (Dem.), of Tennessee, went forward with his plan to deprive diplomats of their immunity in automobile traffic cases. Yesterday he introduced a bill to this effect, and is preparing one which would affect American diplomats abroad.

Find Negro's Body In Beaver River

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 20.—The body of a Negro was recovered from the Beaver River at Koppel. A letter found on the body leads police to believe he is Jesse Diamond, of Clairton.

BANK DYNAMITE PLOT FOILED

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., March 20.—An apparent plot to blow up the banking house of the Vandergrift Savings and Trust Company early today was frustrated, police say, when they arrested Frank Giardana, 41, of Vandergrift, who was hiding behind the pillar of the building where 17 sticks of dynamite had been placed.

The explosives were sufficient to blow the structure from its foundations, police said.

Giardana told conflicting stories, according to Patrolman Ralph McIntyre, by whom he was arrested. He said that three masked men had robbed him and then placed the dynamite.

The prisoner is a World War veteran of the Italian army and suffered a wound in the right temple. A physician, who examined Giardana, said he believed the man to be demented.

Makeshift Seaplane Sinks Killing Pilot

EVERETT, Wash., March 20.—(AP.)—Ralph Parr, 23, Seattle, was killed yesterday when an airplane recently converted into a seaplane dived into Lake Goodwin. Parr had taken off from the north end of the lake in a test flight.

Sunday Movie Bill Resubmitted In Wheeling

WHEELING, W. Va., March 20.—An ordinance prohibiting Sunday motion picture shows, rendered void when Manager Mayor T. Y. Beckett vetoed it because of an amendment which he held illegal, was resubmitted to the Wheeling Council last night minus the amendment. The amendment had provided for the holding of a special election to decide the issue.

The ordinance comes up for vote on passage next Tuesday, Councilman C. H. Becker, Jr., presented the ordinance last night in the form in which it had been introduced originally.

Send Ex-Princess To Insane Asylum

CHICAGO, March 20.—(INS.)—Preparations were made today to send Mrs. Mabelle Rogers Touhy Karopatkin, formerly the wife of Prince William Karopatkin, Russian exile, to the insane asylum at Elgin, Ill.

The former princess underwent a psychopathic examination one year ago after allegedly threatening Judge Philip Finnegan because of his decision in civil suits brought by relatives to have a conservator appointed for her million dollar estate.

Molly Mack, Film Actress, Asks Divorce

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—(AP.)—Molly Ilene Mack, motion picture actress, in a suit on file in Superior Court here today, asked a divorce from Anthony N. Zilles, known on the stage and screen as Emmet Corrigan. The suit, charging desertion, follows a separate maintenance action filed by the wife in June of last year. The couple separated in New York three years ago.

CAP ONLY CLUE IN GANG KILLING

County detectives today had made no apparent progress towards finding the slayers of Sam Monastero, 45, produce operator found strangled in his auto in Jack's Run, Ross Township, Tuesday. The sleuths said they were convinced that it was a gang killing, executed by imported killers, but nobody was under arrest. A cap found in the car, along with a sawed-off shotgun and revolver bore the label of a Delancey street (New York) store.

The detectives established that Monastero's auto was protected by thick bullet-proof glass, although the investigators added that they have not been able to learn whether Monastero was a figure in a ring which sold supplies to bootleggers.

SEES BIG BOOM IN BUILDING

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Former Senator William M. Calder, of New York, after a call at the White House today, predicted a great building boom for New York City.

He said he told President Hoover that within 60 days more money would be available for mortgages on building than could be used.

Calder said that from his experiences as a real estate man he believed people were not now withdrawing money from their bank accounts to speculate in stocks. He cited as an example an increase in savings accounts in Brooklyn of approximately $10,000,000 since the first of the year.

The New Yorker added that he had told the Chief Executive he believed unemployment was not as bad as has been thought.

Can the "White Man" Wipe Out this Barbaric "Justice"?

"Like crusaders employed in a sacred duty, the avenging natives crept up to the wizard's hut one dark night, set fire to it, and watched the wizard, his three wives and his three children burn to death. The wizard tried to break out of the flaming hut; he was knocked back. One of the screaming sorceresses struggled through the fire; she was seized and flung bodily back into her funeral pyre." . . . A startling story of witchcraft, sorcery, dramatic law and justice as practiced in Swaziland, South Africa—despite three centuries of Christian mission work. Read the amazing details; compare this justice with that of our western civilization—next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Irene Describes Gun Play, Closing of Net

By IRENE SCHROEDER.

CHAPTER IX.

NOW I had to use my wits and my gun.

Glenn and Joe Wells and I, scooting along the border roads in lower Texas and Arizona in our dilapidated car, were in the dark about the movements of the police, but we felt that the net was closing around us.

And so we got into that trap in Florence, Ariz., where we had to kidnap a sheriff to get free.

We never told Joe Wells about ourselves. But he had it figured out we were in trouble. You can't live day and night with a smart fellow like Joe and not have him know pretty much about you. Joe said:

"Keep it to yourselves, kids. In case we get picked up, I don't even know who you are."

Glenn thought we ought to tell Joe it wouldn't be so good for him if he was found with us; but Joe said:

"When you eat the same stuff together, you do everything else together. Anyway, these cops aren't so smart. I'll stick to you as long as you travel. I don't like to change my habits."

Wells Clowned

HE SANG songs for us and carried on like a clown and often when we were low, he would cheer us up. He could always do that by fixing up one of his tasty messes in a can over a bonfire.

We were near Florence when the gas tank ran low, and I said it would be better for me to go alone to a gas station to get it filled up. If they were on the lookout for a gun-girl with her man, they wouldn't pay attention to a woman alone. But I guess the police think of little tricks like that, too, because they outguessed us all right at the Florence gas station.

Glenn and Joe dropped out of the car a quarter of a mile before the station, and I drove up and said:

"Fill her up."

The man did what I asked, but I didn't like the way he kept looking at me from under his big hat. I could see, too, that he wasn't familiar with working the tank and I said to myself: "He's a policeman."

So I did some quick thinking and was ready for him when he came over to collect the money. Instead of asking for pay, he said:

"Now girlie, we'll have a look at your bill of sale for this car."

Stalled for Time

I LOOKED surprised and wasted some time asking what he meant by bill of sale. I wanted to give Glenn and Joe time to catch up a-foot. They would be needed.

The man, who turned out to be Deputy Sheriff Joe Chapman, of Chandler, wasted some time kidding.

"So you don't know what a bill of sale is? Well, well. Now we'll have to explain that little thing to the little girl."

He said maybe I always got cars without a bill of sale and that was naughty. He went on like that a little while, and then he changed and said roughly:

"Now, snap out of it, and come over to the sheriff's office."

I saw Glenn and Joe coming way down the road and argued some more.

"This car belongs to my brother and he loaned it to me to drive down to Yuma to see a girl friend, and he didn't think to give me the bill of sale for the trip."

Chapman said he would stop my stalling and he jumped in the car alongside me and told me to step on the gas. As I wanted Glenn and Joe to know there was trouble, I pretended to cry, and put my head down on my arms in such a way that my forehead touched the horn button, and made it squawk according to a private signal Glenn and Joe had arranged.

Sheriff Kidnaped

SO GLENN and Joe took a hop-skip-and-jump across the road and that sheriff found out we were taking him somewhere instead of his taking us. He saw the boys meant business and didn't try to get to his gun. Glenn squeezed into the front seat, putting Chapman between himself and me, at the steering wheel. Joe got in the rumble seat and watched the deputy from the back. The deputy said:

"All right. It's one on me. I'll be good."

So we took him with us and he behaved himself. We drove along until we came to a big water reservoir, and stopped there, figuring to get water for cooking. After it was ark, though, Joe Wells thought that a fire would be seen a long ways in that desert country, so we ate cold and drank water instead of coffee. The deputy sheriff got sociable and ate with us.

He told us he was also a minister and that he was the Rev. Joe Chapman or Deputy Sheriff Joe Chapman, take your choice.

Glenn got interested and talked about the minister business with Chapman. Knowing all about how churches are run, Glenn could tell Chapman about religion in the East and Chapman could tell about it in the West, so they got along fine.

After all, I guess he was sitting there figuring out how to fool us all the time. Because, when we asked him to be a good sport and tell us a road to take where there wouldn't be any more sheriffs watching for us, he told us the road straight ahead to Chandler would be safe for us. But it wasn't, and his advice sent us right into a trap.

We were in the streets of [illegible]er when I looked back and saw the headlights of a car behind. I yelled to Glenn:

"Here they come!"

Shooting Starts

THEY sure did, at about 60 an hour, and they ran us into the curb. They had guns on us. Then Joe Chapman stood up and yelled:

"For God's sake boys, don't shoot! It's me. It's Joe Chapman."

But they shot, using buckshot, which they fire out there at cars, figuring to puncture the tires and jam the engine, without killing the people. I ducked behind Chapman and felt him jump when he was hit a couple of times with buckshot. He turned around and grabbed my arm and started to pull me out after him on the side away from the guns.

He got me onto the road, and I broke loose and started to run across fields. Then the thing happened that saved us.

The policemen in the big car never heard Chapman's yells, so they figured he was one of us and began shooting at him as fast as they could with pistols and a machine gun. They didn't shoot at us at all. And Glenn and Joe lined up with the police and yelled the same as they did:

"There he runs. Get him!"

And another sheriff started out after Chapman, who was running, and he got in the line of fire, too, so all that happened was that the police shot two of their own friends, Chapman and Deputy Sheriff Lee Wright. I am sorry that Wright got shot so badly he died, but we never touched our guns at Chapman.

When Glenn and Joe and I saw how the police were mixed up we sneaked back into our car and drove away and shouted, "Good-by."

Accused Attorney Ends Life in Blast

Wise Mother

Here are Edward and Raymond, husky young sons of Mrs. K. B. Garman, 5438 Irving St., Philadelphia. Their mother's experience shows what can be done to keep children robust. She says: "Since I found out how good California Fig Syrup is, I have kept some in the house. It always helps my boys. I give it for upsets or colds."

When your child's breath is bad; tongue is coated; or he is headachy, bilious, feverish, without appetite or energy, give him a little California Fig Syrup. See how its gentle cleansing helps a child. Appetite, digestion and assimilation improve. Stomach and bowels are toned and strengthened.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. Seven million bottles used a year proves its merit!

California Fig Syrup

TORCH SONG

AND some day I will do it. Go apart
From all the old heart-breakings ways. Some day
I'll gather up my bits of broken heart
And laugh, perchance or sing along my way.

In spite of rose-bright skies and whispering birds
And only know that I at last have gone
But these—for now—are only futile words.

I could not leave you when the evening star
Comes softly o'er a distant spring-clad hill,
Tho' it is heartbreak. Peace is where you are
And I would have the olden heartache still.

But some day I will do it! Go apart
From all the old heart-breaking ways. Some day
I'll gather up my bits of broken heart
And laugh, or maybe weep along my way.

—Mimi Phillips.

NARROW ESCAPE

LARRY LIPSKIN says the scene was in one of the tougher night clubs where the gun-toting crowd gather. A Broadway paragrapher who had gargled at least seven highballs began speaking his mind about the local Capones, and said among other daring things: "And that guy over there, huh! He isn't so tough, either. Why, with one paragraph I could make a bum outta him!"

Walter Winchell

A young lady seated at the next table turned and said: "I beg your pardon. Do you know who I am?"

"No, I don't," said the snooty columnist.

"Well, that man you're roasting is my husband!"

"Yeah!" snapped back the writer, "and do you know who I am?"

"I'm sorry," she stiffly said, "but I do not!"

"Well," said the fliperacker as he took his departure, "thank God for that!"

GOLLY!

The dozen Broadway columnists who now are going a little crazy striving to be clever every day have something new to worry about. For a new rival is being imported to join them. He is the Texas columnist who just quit his job down there because, as he said, he ran out of ideas.

OF ALL THINGS!

AND the silliest story of the week concerns the Forty-second Street Flea Circus, which features a side show. A paying customer went to the manager and complained that he wasn't getting all he paid for. "For instance?" growled the sarcastic manager.

"Well," said the customer, "where in the world is the India Rubber Man?"

"You'll have to excuse him today," twitted the sasy manager, "the Fat Lady is using him for a garter!"

SOMEBODY'S MOTHER

Broadway still is tittering over an incident that took place in Boston several weeks ago during the run there of "Woof-Woof," a recent New York flop. A Boston girl, it appears, left home to join that show and her mother was furious. She appealed to the management, but it would not dismiss the lass. Finally the mammy evened matters. The show featured a dog race and used real hounds for the big scene.

So the mother complained to the local S. P. C. A., charging that the show was cruel to animals, and the dogs were officially removed.

HAW!

THE most amusing of the new Broadway stories is based on fact. At any rate it is swiftly making the rounds and goes best wherever actors and rival managers gather. After the late E. F. Albee's funeral the other day a surviving competitor received a telegram which read: "Erlanger and Albee are dead. Deaths come in threes! You're next!—Saint Peter."

The producer fainted from the shock. Then his staff complained about the wretched telegram to Police Commissioner Whalen, who assigned a detective to track down the sender. The detective traced it to the Lambs Club and a tip took him upstairs to one of the rooms occupied by an old actor, who was drunk, and who hated the producer for years. The detective couldn't get much sense out of the actor until he placed the wire on the table in front of the fellow.

"Oh, I know what you came for," hiccoughed the old trouper, and so saying he picked up a pencil and affixed his "O. K." and initials to the telegram.

It was decided to wait until he gets sober and give him an official reprimand.

DRAMA

THE rags have chronicled that Fred Stone's "Ripples" will close shortly after a seven-week run, deciding to quit battling the terrific opposition of the salty shows. Mr. Stone feels badly about the situation and rather than insert a wicked line, song or episode in his show he will leave town. And this in spite of the fact that most of the hard-boiled critical gentry were quite generous to the attraction, preferring to be sentimental about Mr. Stone's comeback after his plane crash than technical over the merit of "Ripples," which is as good as a Nice Girl and just as tiresome.

Mr. Stone will try for a run in Boston to see if Bostonians are as "proper" as it is said they are, but as someone has already remarked, a Bostonian is a person who comes to New York when he wants to read a book.

POLICE ACCUSED ON TRAFFIC GUIDE

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

MILAN PETROVITS is a painter by profession. With Roy Hughes, painting is a hobby. They are colleagues; they hang their hats on the same rack.

Mr. Petrovits and Mr. Hughes have many tastes in common, including clothes. Each favors a dark suit, and the other afternoon when Mr. Petrovits was leaving the office hurriedly, mistakenly he slipped into Mr. Hughes' coat, which was much the same pattern as his own.

The Hughes coat fit Mr. Petrovits tightly, Mr. Petrovits being wider than Mr. Hughes, and the Petrovits coat, which Mr. Hughes was forced to wear, left room to spare.

Mr. Hughes telephoned Mr. Petrovits that he needed his coat immediately, so Mr. Petrovits came all the way from his home in Rosedale. By appointment they met outside an East End bank that evening.

They walked into the dark of the lobby of the bank building to make the exchange, and were removing the coats when a watchman, one hand on hip, the other hand playing a flashlight into the dark, advanced on them in the manner that a guardian of the law advances on a notorious bandit.

Mr. Hughes and Mr. Petrovits forgot to finish the exchange; they ran away from there, coattails flying.

What this country needs is men with courage. The other day he wrote a piece ridiculing the business of removing one's hat in an elevator because, for one thing, the hat was usually pushed out of shape in the crush. A few hours later we stepped into a hotel elevator, removed our hat in deference to the women and in the crush it was, as you might suppose, crushed.

ONE of the features of the aviation show was a monoplane which, even with its gas and oil, weighed no more than 400 pounds and enjoyed a gliding radius of 70 miles. Recently Curley Lovejoy was flying the ship low over Bettis Field when he saw below him a truck driver whose machine was buried in the muddy road. Curley turned off his motor, descended as low as possible with safety and shouted to the driver, "Wanna rope?" The driver was so frightened by a voice from overhead that he fainted with prompt dispatch.

Extravagant claims are being made for the little plane, but there is a possibility that these claims may be made good. One report has it that Capt. Jack Morris is considering a solo endurance flight with the ship.

Mr. Edward Dublin has written a bit of a poem which he has seen fit to label "The Night Copy Boy." We regret that there is not sufficient space in which to reprint "The Night Copy Boy" in full, but there is room to publish these two lines, which convey the general idea:

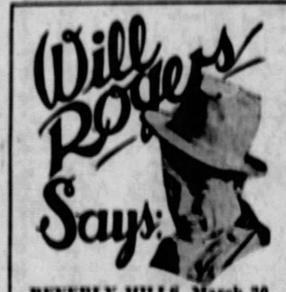
"The night boy must always be close by, Sending up copy as he's eating his pie."

It should be explained that the author is none other than the night copy boy of the Sun-Telegraph and, according to his boss, who is none other than your old friend, Scotchie McDonald, a darned good one.



BEVERLY HILLS, March 20. WENT down to hear an Oklahoma University debating team, against California. "To disarm, or not disarm." Our first debating team is over in London, on the same subject, and with the same results, only this team goes home when the debate is over.

These have debated all over the country on this subject, on both sides of the argument, and they told me a very surprising thing. The side against "disarmament" always wins. They explained the fact because disarmament was a theory, and an ideal, and that the other side could shoot your argument full of holes.

Yours,
WILL.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Roosevelt Sits on Boys Who Outline Chair

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Slats) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE deep, serious authorities tell us, in almost incomprehensibly technical terms, that when a boy begins to settle degrees of personal companionship, he is making his first grading of the elements of importance in his world. Certainly, he is then first most closely semi-conscious of somehow being related to everybody and everything else. Many of the mysteries of the living world open to him. Sometimes, however, his gestures to this same world seem, to say the least of it, to be darn peculiar.

When Q stood upon his head, or reclined in a chair with his feet comfortably resting where his head should normally be; when he hung suspended by the middle over the branch of a magnolia tree, and surveyed the gardens and the government buildings, upside-down, it was to secure a more interesting experimental point of view, as well as to serve as a preparatory limbering-up exercise.

TR still limbered up, to the extreme satisfaction of all concerned. Quite often his exercise took the form of thirty minutes of Gang-chasing, in the attic. He drew the line, however, where the chests and trunks, stored up under the roof, provided the hazards of mountain-climbing with dizzy heights, unsteady peaks, slippery and uncertain footings. Kenneth Channon, who took especial delight in these adventures, would hurl himself across the spaces with utter abandon, and call his intrepidity "chasm-jumping"—the word chasm being pronounced with ch, as in "chair," of which there were many examples covered with slips.

A Surprise
'Chair' Collapses When TR Sits Down

These slip-covers provided fine places of concealment, from which an arm could suddenly dart out to trip up a careless Gangster, or pinch his ankles, if he sat down. Unless all members could be accounted for, all covered chairs were suspect.

Even TR came to suspect them, and from experience. Once when he had paused to rest after some strenuous and enthusiastic racing through the attic, he sat down upon one of these relics of bygone White House grandeur. The surprising thing to the President was that the chair utterly collapsed with him with shrieks of high anguish. There had been no chair in the slip-cover at all, but simply two members of the Gang! Edward Stead had stood upright holding the back of the cloth with his hands, in the upper right and left corners; Dick Chew had sat on the floor, with his head between Slim's knees; Dick had both feet, outstretched, to hold the lower front corners, his arms and hands supporting what looked to TR to be the outline of a comfortable chair. The President had not noticed, however, that the chair had been trembling with expectancy, nor that its contours appeared wobbly and unusual.

Slim and Dick howled under the weight of the President as he sat down and threw himself back in complete relaxation.

"By George!" TR said, the instant he struck the floor. "That shows how unstable are the seats of those who consider themselves the mighty!"

Put in Chest
President Bundles Boys In Box

He scrambled to his feet, clutched at the squirming slip-cover, shouting to the rest of the Gang, "A chest! A chest! Open a chest! When these ghostly covers begin to move about, by themselves, it is time to imprison them in chests—for which these we have here have evidently been provided!"

So the cover, with the two boys inside it, was unceremoniously bundled into a chest; the lid was opened again, however, before the Presidential time-limit of sixty seconds had elapsed.

After one of these encounters with his father Q remarked, "When he's around he's so big, that other things don't seem so tre-men-jous!" This was an indubitable fact, one, moreover, which, many others, quite outside the Gang discovered. With TR around, things did not appear, quite so large.

The scale of the White House dimensions —corridor-distances, portico-column heights, and circumferences, balustrade-widths, drops-to-the-ground, tools and garden equipment—was phenomenally out of proportion to our strength, reach, height. This, of course, was providential for all concerned.

Kermit's part-solution for this "largeness" was stilts. His favorite stilt-walk was the supper hall, and although he had a gang of his own, which he mounted, and jousted from one end of it to the other, the difference between their age and that of the Gang removed all possibility of hostility between rival factions. "Kermit, the Bermit," Q called him, adding, "Of course, he isn't at all, really; only the name is so ap-pree-poe." Though we came upon these stilts, once or twice, we hardly ever used them, because they were not original with us, and were, into the bargain, too hampering for Q's mercurial movements.

Bicycle Ride
Quentin Barely Misses Congressmen

These—as may have been gathered—were, usually, of a rushing character, like the short, violent skirmishes, in open warfare, which sweep all before them in a given area, although not always directed towards any defined objective. Among those apparently purposeless sallies was one which carried us, several times, a long distance on our bicycles. Starting from the Force School, we raced eastward down Massachusetts avenue, passed Thomas Circle, went on to, and around the Carnegie Library to New Jersey avenue, where we turned right near the red-brick pile of the Government Printing Office.

So, through a less flourishing part of Washington, where we were unknown, met with no courtesy, and occasionally, heard some amazing language, we continued to the northerly edge of Capitol Hill. Here, in the great plaza, at the north front of the Capitol—where sat the toga-clad statue of Washington, since removed—Q once indulged in the exhilarating sport of riding in erratic circles

'BELTZHOOVER' CHANGE BALKED

"Disgusted" appeared to be the sentiment of the women who are leading the movement to change the name of Beltzhoover avenue to Tulane avenue, after a hearing in Council yesterday.

Just when their plans seemed successful, they were confronted with serious opposition headed by Fire Captain George Bright.

They were opposed, too, by the City Planning Commission and the Eighteenth Ward Board of Trade. The women fought a valiant verbal battle, but the men took advantage of superior numbers to dominate the situation. A poll showed 10 favoring the change, and 21 opposed.

Some time ago a committee of residents, most of them women, headed by Mrs. F. J. McKnight, requested the change, saying the present name is difficult to spell, and to understand over the telephone.

The Planning Commission objected to the change principally on the grounds that Beltzhoover is a through traffic street, crossed by 25 others; that the name is used on many deeds and all maps and signs, and that it would work confusion.

Travelers Select State Delegates

Twenty-seven delegates and alternates have been elected by Post N, Travelers Protective Association of America, to represent the post at the state convention, scheduled for April 24, 25 and 26 in Philadelphia. The post's new officers for the year include Harold Marshall, president; W. Howard Brown, Jr., secretary-treasurer, and Norval Zock, second vice president.

Aged Man, Ill, Ends Life With Pistol

Brooding over ill health, Martin Nath, 67, of 818 Fisher avenue, ended his life by shooting himself in the head in his home last night, according to the coroner's report. His body was found by his wife, Mrs. Anna Nath, who told police her husband had been ill for more than a year.

CENSUS ON COAL URGED HERE

A movement to have the census of coal to be made in connection with the national decennial population census has been started by members of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Civic leaders deplore the lack of accurate statistics on the consumption of coal in this district and other districts of the country. Chamber members would have figures on coal compiled by counties instead of by states.

The meeting was held yesterday by the mines and quarries committee of the Chamber, with Howard N. Evanson, mining engineer, presiding. It is planned to enlist the aid of the local and state chamber and coal associations throughout the tri-state district and in other coal mining states.

DeMolay Honor Club Elects New Officers

RULES BOOK FIGHT HEARD IN COUNCIL

Publisher Claims Malice as Officers Charge Use of 'Sucker List' to Get Ads

Charging Inspector James Hoey and Detective William R. Harris with malice, J. L. Lewis yesterday urged Council not to repeal the ordinance giving his company permission to copy traffic rules and regulations for publication in "The Pittsburgh Official Parking and Traffic Guide." No decision was reached.

Hoey and Harris, vigorously denying the charges, counter-attacked by declaring that Lewis and several advertising solicitors had used misrepresentation to secure advertisements for the guide.

"SUCKER LIST" CHARGED

Harris declared that, in the course of his investigation of the case, he had unearthed a "sucker list" that contained the names of many prominent persons, including that of Councilman Robert J. Alderdice. Lewis retorted that the list was merely a record of prospects that had been stolen from the office of Shanahan and Jacobs, advertising solicitors. This was corroborated by Miss Melitta Quail, who had been employed there.

A check for $5 made payable to the "City of Pittsburgh" and indorsed by the Lewis company was presented by Harris, together with affidavits of persons claiming that advertising solicitors had given the impression they were connected officially with the city and that the Police Pension Fund would benefit.

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark and Superintendent of Police P. P. Walsh testified that the sale of advertisements in the guide had caused numerous complaints of misrepresentation. Clark urged that if a traffic guide is needed it should be published by the city without advertising.

CLASHES WITH WALSH

One advertiser, according to Harris, reported that he had been solicited over the telephone by a man declaring himself "Ryan, of the Traffic Bureau," and that the latter offered to remove a picture from the Rogues' Gallery. The price given for this ad was $60, afterwards reduced to $30, it was said.

The ordinance was presented in Council following a protest from Chester B. Morley, secretary of the Police Pension Fund Association, who declared that the company had abused its authority. Prior to that time Lewis, with T. R. Shanahan and Craig Jacobs, had been arrested by Harris.

"I don't think that is right," he said.

Negro Arrested After Auto "Runs Away"

Benjamin Walker, Negro, of Steubenville, O., was held under bond for court by the United States commissioner, on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile in interstate commerce on February 14.

Walker was driving the machine in question through Moon Run when he stopped to purchase food. The machine "ran away," went over an embankment into the back yard of Constable Thomas Trexler of Moon Township.

The constable arrested Walker and turned him over to the Federal authorities for a hearing under the national motor vehicle theft act.

B. & O. to Eliminate 2 Grade Crossings

Plans for elimination of grade crossings at Wittmer and Mt. Royal on the Butler Plank road, have been prepared by engineers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and will be submitted for approval before the Public Service Commission at a hearing here April 3. It is planned to relocate both railroad tracks and the highway for a distance of about one and a half miles.

14 Die in February Traffic Accidents

Thirteen adults and a school child were fatally injured in traffic mishaps during February, according to a report submitted to the better traffic committee by City Engineer B. W. Marsh of the Bureau of Traffic Planning. This number with the 16 adults killed during January, represents the highest traffic fatalities for the first two months of a year for the last four years.

Kinlock Mine Hero Dies Before U. S. Medal Arrives

Recognition of James Hogan's bravery in the Kinlock mine explosion of March 21, 1929, came too late.

Hogan, one of seven awarded Department of Commerce safety medals, as announced in the Sun-Telegraph yesterday, died last Saturday in the Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington.

Relatives assert the disaster was really responsible for his death, tracing his long illness to the breathing of afterdamp after the explosion.

Hogan was a fire boss of the Valley Camp Coal Company and lived at 1375 Fifth avenue, New Kensington.

Three Redistricting Meetings Called

Three meetings have been announced by the sub-committee of the Redistricting Commission for Allegheny County. The first will be held Monday evening in Room 9, City-County Building, to hear suggestions on dividing or changing election districts of the Thirteenth Ward. The second meeting will be held Tuesday in the Knoxville Junior High School, Thirtieth Ward. Another is scheduled for Wednesday at Morningside School, Tenth Ward.

Perry High Club Elects Officers

The Senior Literary Club of Perry High School has elected these officers: President, Emily Weber; vice president, Dorothy Kleeb; secretary, Jane Stover; treasurer, Ellen R. Peters; reporter, Florence Paschold; sergeant at arms, Blanche Lees; chairman program committee, Dorothy Hargrave.

Air Purer, Pollution Here Shows Decline

Pittsburgh's air is purer than formerly, Dr. E. A. Weidlein, director of Mellon Institute, announced today. Precipitation of soot is about one-third less than it was six years ago, he stated.

Dr. Weidlein gave out the first report on the institute's air pollution survey begun last year. It shows that between June, 1929, and February, 1930, inclusive, the average fall of soot was 78 tons per square mile per month.

DECEMBER CLEANEST

This compares with 111 tons in 1923-24 and 85 tons in 1912-13. In the present survey June was the dirtiest and December the cleanest month. In the first of the previous surveys December was the dirtiest and September the cleanest month; in the second survey January was dirtiest and June cleanest.

The institute is collecting daily and monthly, from 20 stations distributed throughout the city, samples of soot and other dirt brought down by gravity, rain or snow. Eleven of the stations are at approximately the same locations as those from which samples were collected in the previous surveys.

"At certain stations in the present survey," Dr. Weidlein said, "samples of air are taken regularly for the purpose of counting and measuring the sizes of solid particles in suspension. A high-power microscope is used, and the particles are measured to 1-100,000 of an inch.

"The very small particles and their effects upon the human respiratory tract are of special concern to physicians. The number of particles varies from several hundred to several thousand per cubic centimeter, the Mellon Institute scientists have found.

MEASURE SUN'S RAYS

"Observations are taken of the sun when possible, using a quartz spectograph, which gives a picture of the solar spectrum. From this is measured the amount of solar energy reaching Pittsburgh and the amount in the ultra-violet region. The so-called therapeutic band that has such an influence on health is between the wave-lengths 2950-A and 3150-A. The records for January and February show that on clear days, in downtown Pittsburgh, the radiation included about half the therapeutic band. Means have been devised and will soon be applied for measuring the intensity of this radiation.

"A dust chamber has been built, in which the physical action of various types of solids, particularly the effect in screening out light rays, is being studied."

Firemen to Aid Children In Annual Cleanup

The assistance of the Pittsburgh Bureau of Fire in the "Clean-up, Paint-up, Plant-up" campaign to be conducted by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, April 27 to May 10, has been pledged by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith. Smith addressed the life property protection committee of the chamber yesterday.

Smith said thousands of fire hazards exist in the city, either because of indifference or lack of knowledge on the part of the general public. The chief said firemen would be detailed to schools to help in the educational campaign.

He declared that 85 per cent of the fires which caused Pittsburgh a loss of $1,461,000 last year, were preventable.

THREE 'CHIEFS' OUT IN WILMERDING POLICE SHAKEUP

HEAD RESIGNS AS TWO ARE SUSPENDED

Burgess Fails In Effort To Provide Borough With Protection During Mixup

Wilmerding Borough today was without either a police chief or a captain.

Yesterday the borough had two chiefs and a captain, but the former resigned and the captain was suspended by Burgess R. W. Bishop.

A third chief, H. L. Snyder, who had been on the job as police head since early in the year, was suspended by Council on Tuesday night.

REIGNS HALF HOUR

Carrying out council's instructions to appoint a chief pending a meeting of the councilmanic police committee, when charges of incompetency against Snyder presumably were to be aired, Burgess Bishop yesterday named John Zuric as head of the department.

Zuric handled the reins only a half hour or so, and then went disgustedly to Bishop and told him he didn't want the "job" as he didn't think he could handle it.

Bishop then called upon an employe of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, who had done some extra patrolling for the borough, to become chief.

SECOND MAN QUITS

The new chief, named Betts—police on duty early today denied knowledge of his first name—held the position for a half day.

Then he gave it up.

Burgess Bishop appeared at Wilmerding Police Station No. 2 early last night, when he notified Capt. Richard Brown that he was suspended.

NAME ANDREWS AS DEPUTY

George P. Andrews, former private detective, who was paroled by Judge Frank J. Graff after being convicted of conspiracy, extortion and malfeasance in connection with slot machine raids, has been appointed a deputy constable for the First Ward, Wilkinsburg, by Judge Harry H. Rowand, in Quarter Sessions Court.

Judge Rowand held a hearing in the matter February 4, when many witnesses spoke favorably of Anderson, saying he had never been in any other trouble. The judge withheld immediate action on the matter, and in making the appointment dated Anderson's commission back to the date of the hearing.

22 FINED AT POOLS HEARING

Twenty-two men arrested in a raid on a clearing house lottery headquarters in Penn avenue near Twelfth street were fined $100 each in Penn Avenue Police Court today. Four others, failing to appear, forfeited $100 bonds.

This is the raid which police deny having been "invited" to execute because the "numbers writers" wanted to avoid paying off many winners yesterday.

Police testified that this was headquarters for a lottery. Magistrate William McNamara distributed the fines. P. J. O'Malley, political leader in the Second Ward, had posted bonds for the defendants.

Three men today were waiting a hearing before Justice of the Peace George B. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, following their arrest and the seizure of alleged clearing house lottery books and paraphernalia yesterday by Constable A. C. Nye. The trio said they were Mike Sotak, alleged proprietor of the pool in a confectionery at 1003 Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, and Charles Yerhan and Walter Hyson, reputed "number" salesmen. Complaint had been made by John Walters, of Mill street, Wilkinsburg, according to Shields.

Roundup of Dogs On at Dravosburg

A dog roundup will be started today by Dravosburg police. All dogs, with or without licenses, found roaming the streets will be taken. The roundup is the result of several complaints filed by citizens of the borough, who claim that the animals gather in packs and do much as they please. Police fear children may be attacked if the dogs are allowed to run loose.

Pastor Scores Flapper-Sheik Drinking

The gin-drinking, cigaret-smoking flapper and sheik were scored by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Seventeenth street, in a Lenten sermon last night. Marital happiness is not found within the aroma of gin and whisky or in the fumes of cigarets, the priest declared.

"The drinking flapper or sheik may get a man or girl for a mate, but they will not be love mates," Father Cox said. The priest decried the prevalence of dissipation among the younger generation. "Now, more than ever, we need real total abstinence societies," he said.

MAIL CAMPAIGN FOR TOWN HALL

Supporting the movement for a downtown Town Hall, a mail campaign urging a public hearing where citizens disinterested in the sale of a particular site was opened today by E. C. Eppley, president of the William Penn and Fort Pitt Hotels operating companies.

Two thousand civic, organization and business heads will receive the series of letters based on findings of public auditorium authorities. The first letter points out the inadequacy, inconvenience and lack of industrial and commercial value for a proposed Oakland hall. No particular downtown site is recommended in the campaign, however.

St. Clair Section Demands Paving

With the exception of two streets, repaired two years ago, there has been no highway improvement in the section in 20 years, a delegation of the St. Clair Board of Trade, headed by Conrad Elbeck, told Council at a hearing yesterday.

A number of streets suggested by the delegation for improvement will be inspected today by Council. The delegation also asked the planting of a slope flanking Salisbury, Sterling and Fernleaf streets.

EFFICIENT ERA OF BUSINESS OUTLINED

Lawrence, Political Expert, Sounds Optimistic Note In Address to Bond Club

Ten years of business expansion since the World War were made possible by the very things the war fathered, David Lawrence, editor of "The United States Daily," and authority on political affairs, said at the annual dinner of the Bond Club of Pittsburgh in the William Penn Hotel last night.

He urged patience with the government in its efforts to adjust the country's economic balance, and sounded an optimistic note in regard to business conditions throughout the United States.

Increased production, economy of labor, greater efficiency and a higher standard of living are responsible for the present situation, he declared.

"Overproduction, the great economic evil of the last decade, has amassed great surpluses," he said. "The surplus of credit, which brought on its abuse, was the cause of widely-fluctuating money rates and the resulting market instability. The great market crash last October was an inevitable result of this credit abuse, which can be solved only by the Federal Reserve Board's present efforts to regain control of credit rates."

Election Day Killing Case Given Jury

Vester Reid, 24, Negro, of Elm street, on trial in Criminal Court all week for the murder of Henry M. Singletary, 34, Negro, of 2232 Tustin street, September 14, may learn his fate today. Evidence in the case was completed yesterday and Attorney Frank R. Steward argued the case for Reid. Assistant District Attorney B. Meredith Reid argued for the state and Visiting Judge M. Ward Fleming, of Crawford County, charged the jury. The shooting followed an argument over liquor.

2 Theft Suspects Get Hearing Today

Said to have been implicated in the robbery of the restaurant of Sam Johnson, at 1506 Carson street, March 5, John Dithridge, 30, of 1928 Carson street, and John Dunbaker, 23, of 4902 Liberty avenue, were awaiting a hearing in the South Side Police Court today. Three other men arrested in connection with the robbery are being held in jail.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Should two persons who find out after marriage that they are temperamentally unsuited to each other seek divorce or "grin and bear it?"

Miss Capone

LILLIAN CAPONE, Mt. Washington, cashier: "Before marrying, the persons involved should go long enough together to find out whether or not their likes, dislikes and temperaments are the same — or similar. If squabbles do arise after the knot has been tied, both husband and wife should try to patch up the matter without recourse to the divorce courts. I don't believe in divorce."

H. M. Bailey

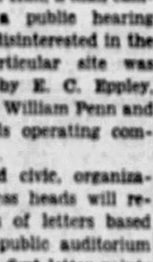
H. M. BAILEY, chief of service, Stanley Theater: "It is only natural that if two persons can't remain compatible after marriage, that they should get a divorce. Why live a life that is boresome for both? My suggestion is if you can't get along with your mate, then get a divorce. It's the best solution to a difficult problem."

Elmer Spangler

ELMER SPANGLER, artist, Liberty avenue: "Although I'm not married, I know what I'd do if I was and couldn't get along with my wife. I'd divorce her. I don't believe that a couple should take it on the chin in this respect and 'grin and bear it.' The thing isn't natural. Marriage is made for happiness. When the institution fails of this purpose divorce is the only remedy."

Miss Lee

KATHERINE LEE, entertainer, Downtown: "The only time I'd countenance divorce is under extreme conditions. Under ordinary circumstances I don't at all believe in divorce in any manner, shape or form. If a couple, after repeated trials, find they can't get along, then I guess the best thing for them would be to get a divorce. If they have children, though, they should try and stick together at all costs."



Miss Lane

RUBY LANE, actress, Downtown: "When married couples quarrel continually and find they can't make a go of the marriage proposition—there's just one thing for them to do. That is to separate or get a divorce. Marriage is an institution for happiness. When it fails of this purpose a break is the only plausible solution. Before doing this, though, attempts should be made to make up and live in compatibility."

Kenny Kenfield

KENNY KENFIELD, ticket taker Stanley Theater: "Some wise sage has made a crack to the effect that all wars should be ended as quickly as possible. If married couples can't agree then they are combatants in a warfare too. Divorce is the solution to this form of marital warfare. It's about the only thing the combatants can do to restore peace in their own minds."

PETTY CASH STOLEN BY GUNMEN

Holdups Staged in Rapid Succession; $44.25 Taken From South Side Grocer

Bandits continued to prey on stores despite special police efforts by staging holdups on two drug stores on the North Side, and a grocery on the South Side, last night.

O. H. Sample was preparing to close his drug store at 3647 California avenue, when three armed thugs walked in and ordered him and his clerk, Frank Mehrman, to throw up their hands. Taking $35 from the cash register, the men robbed Sample of $7, took $6 from the pockets of the clerk, and stole a box of cigars.

A few minutes later three men held up the Park Pharmacy, at 901 Irwin avenue. John Laughlin, a clerk, was alone when the three all pointing revolvers entered and rifled the register.

Frank Katz, grocer at 2714 Carey way, wrested a revolver from one of three Negroes who entered his store and obtained $44.25. As the thugs were backing out of the store, Katz lunged at the robber carrying the gun which was discharged in the scuffle.

PAPER OWNERS STUDY PRISON PRINTING

Competition of Products of Convicts Discussed at Publishers' Meeting Here

The competition of state printing, done in penal institutions, with private business, was discussed by the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association, meeting yesterday in the William Penn Hotel. Prison printing is done only for the state, but the contracts formerly were let to printing plants or to newspapers. No definite action was taken.

William N. Hardy, of Williamsport, manager of the association, discussed with Mark Egan, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, the possibility of bringing the annual convention of the association, to Pittsburgh early next year.

Members of the committee also discussed the boy who sells or delivers the daily papers.

"He is not a street urchin. He is generally a boy of good character, who uses the job as a stepping stone to something better," Hardy said.

ENGLISH BANK RATE CUT

NEW YORK, March 20.—(INS.)—Easiest world-wide money conditions in five years were emphasized again today by the reduction of the Bank of England's rate to 3½ per cent and flooding of the New York financial district with loanable funds. Within a year after the call loan rate hit 20 per cent on the New York Stock Exchange, money went begging here at 1½ per cent.

Eight successive reductions in bankers' acceptance rates and a reduction of the Reserve Bank's rate on bankers' bills purchased in the open market to 3 per cent, suggest the possibility of another cut in the rediscount rate to 3 per cent.

The directors of the New York Reserve Bank meet today after the close of the market. Last week they reduced the rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. Informed bankers who were betting 3-to-1 on the Bank of England rate reduction yesterday regard a new reduction in the New York rate as unlikely at this time.

Aliens Can't Be Remade In American Image Club Women Told

"NO nation is really great until it has made its contribution to civilization. That which makes a nation great is not what it has but what it does," So said John Ihlder, of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, yesterday at the citizenship conference conducted in the Congress of Clubs by the citizenship committee of the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs. America's contribution as Mr. Ihlder sees it is a demonstration of the ability of men to govern themselves.

Of immigration, the speaker said: "It seems as if the purpose of Americanization was to remake the alien in our image—an impossibility. What can be done is to make a homogeneous people, a people with a common purpose, a people with a strong sense of being one. In admitting aliens consideration must be given to their traditions, whether these will help build up or will break down this sense and purpose."

In closing Mr. Ihlder discussed the basic immigration law, the quota law, and the national origins act, approved the certificate of arrival provision which is now before Congress and severely criticized the proposed provision for registering aliens as "a gesture that will arouse animosity."

Prof. Ralph S. Boots, of the University of Pittsburgh, the morning speaker, had "Civil Service Reform" as his topic. Civil service examinations should be required for every government position but the military; it is the merit system as against the spoils system, he said. The ideal civil service commission would consist of three persons, one selected by the local schools, local courts and business leaders, one appointed by the Mayor and the third by the municipal employes.

Mrs. Rollins A. Haddock, citizenship chairman, presided. Miss Gertrude MacKinney, law observance chairman in the State Federation, spoke of the district luncheon meeting which her division will hold next Monday in the Congress. Mrs. John E. McKirdy, district president of the State Federation, introduced Mr. Ihlder.

WHY THEY SWING TO PEBECO

Users of other dentifrices are realizing they can actually get more in a tooth paste than simply a sweet-tasting cleansing agent. Cleansing, of course, is of first importance. But PEBECO Tooth Paste, in addition, whitens without marring the delicate enamel. Also, it retards decay by stimulating the flow of neutralizing saliva—Nature's own protection against the destructive mouth acids. Put Pebeco to work today—in a week you'll be enthusiastic about its distinctive taste and results.

SPRING FINDS ARTFUL SIMPLICITY APPEALING

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 20.—The subtlety of sartorial simplicity is being eloquently expounded by some striking examples of the art of the couturier. Certain collections are featuring dresses that achieve simplicity through the medium of long flowing lines, developed of course through unobtrusively intricate detail, and an utter absence of all superfluous embellishment. When trimming is used it is placed so that it appears to blend with the line of the frock. Such dresses are often complex in their very simplicity, for frequently the casual observer is at a loss to analyse the charm and appeal of such a creation, as on first sight, it appears to be so very simple. The well-dressed woman here, invariably includes one or more of these frocks in her wardrobe each season, and when she is undecided what to wear at an exclusive function, her magnificently simple frock is generally the answer to her problem.

THE sketches displayed are of a Premet model that has for its keynote distinguished simplicity coupled with accentuation of the long slim silhouette. A white georgette collar lends a youthful and relieving note to the somber black crepe marocain of which the entire frock is made. Huge butcher cuffs are buttoned at the wrist. The low placed flounce is very circular in cut and dips in a deep point at the back.

* * *

OVER the frock just described is worn a graceful coat of matching material. A sketch of the back of the coat is appended to show to good advantage the fitted waistline and the double pointed cape trimmed with a cleverly placed bow of the fabric. The collar is white and is in reality on the frock and so does double duty.

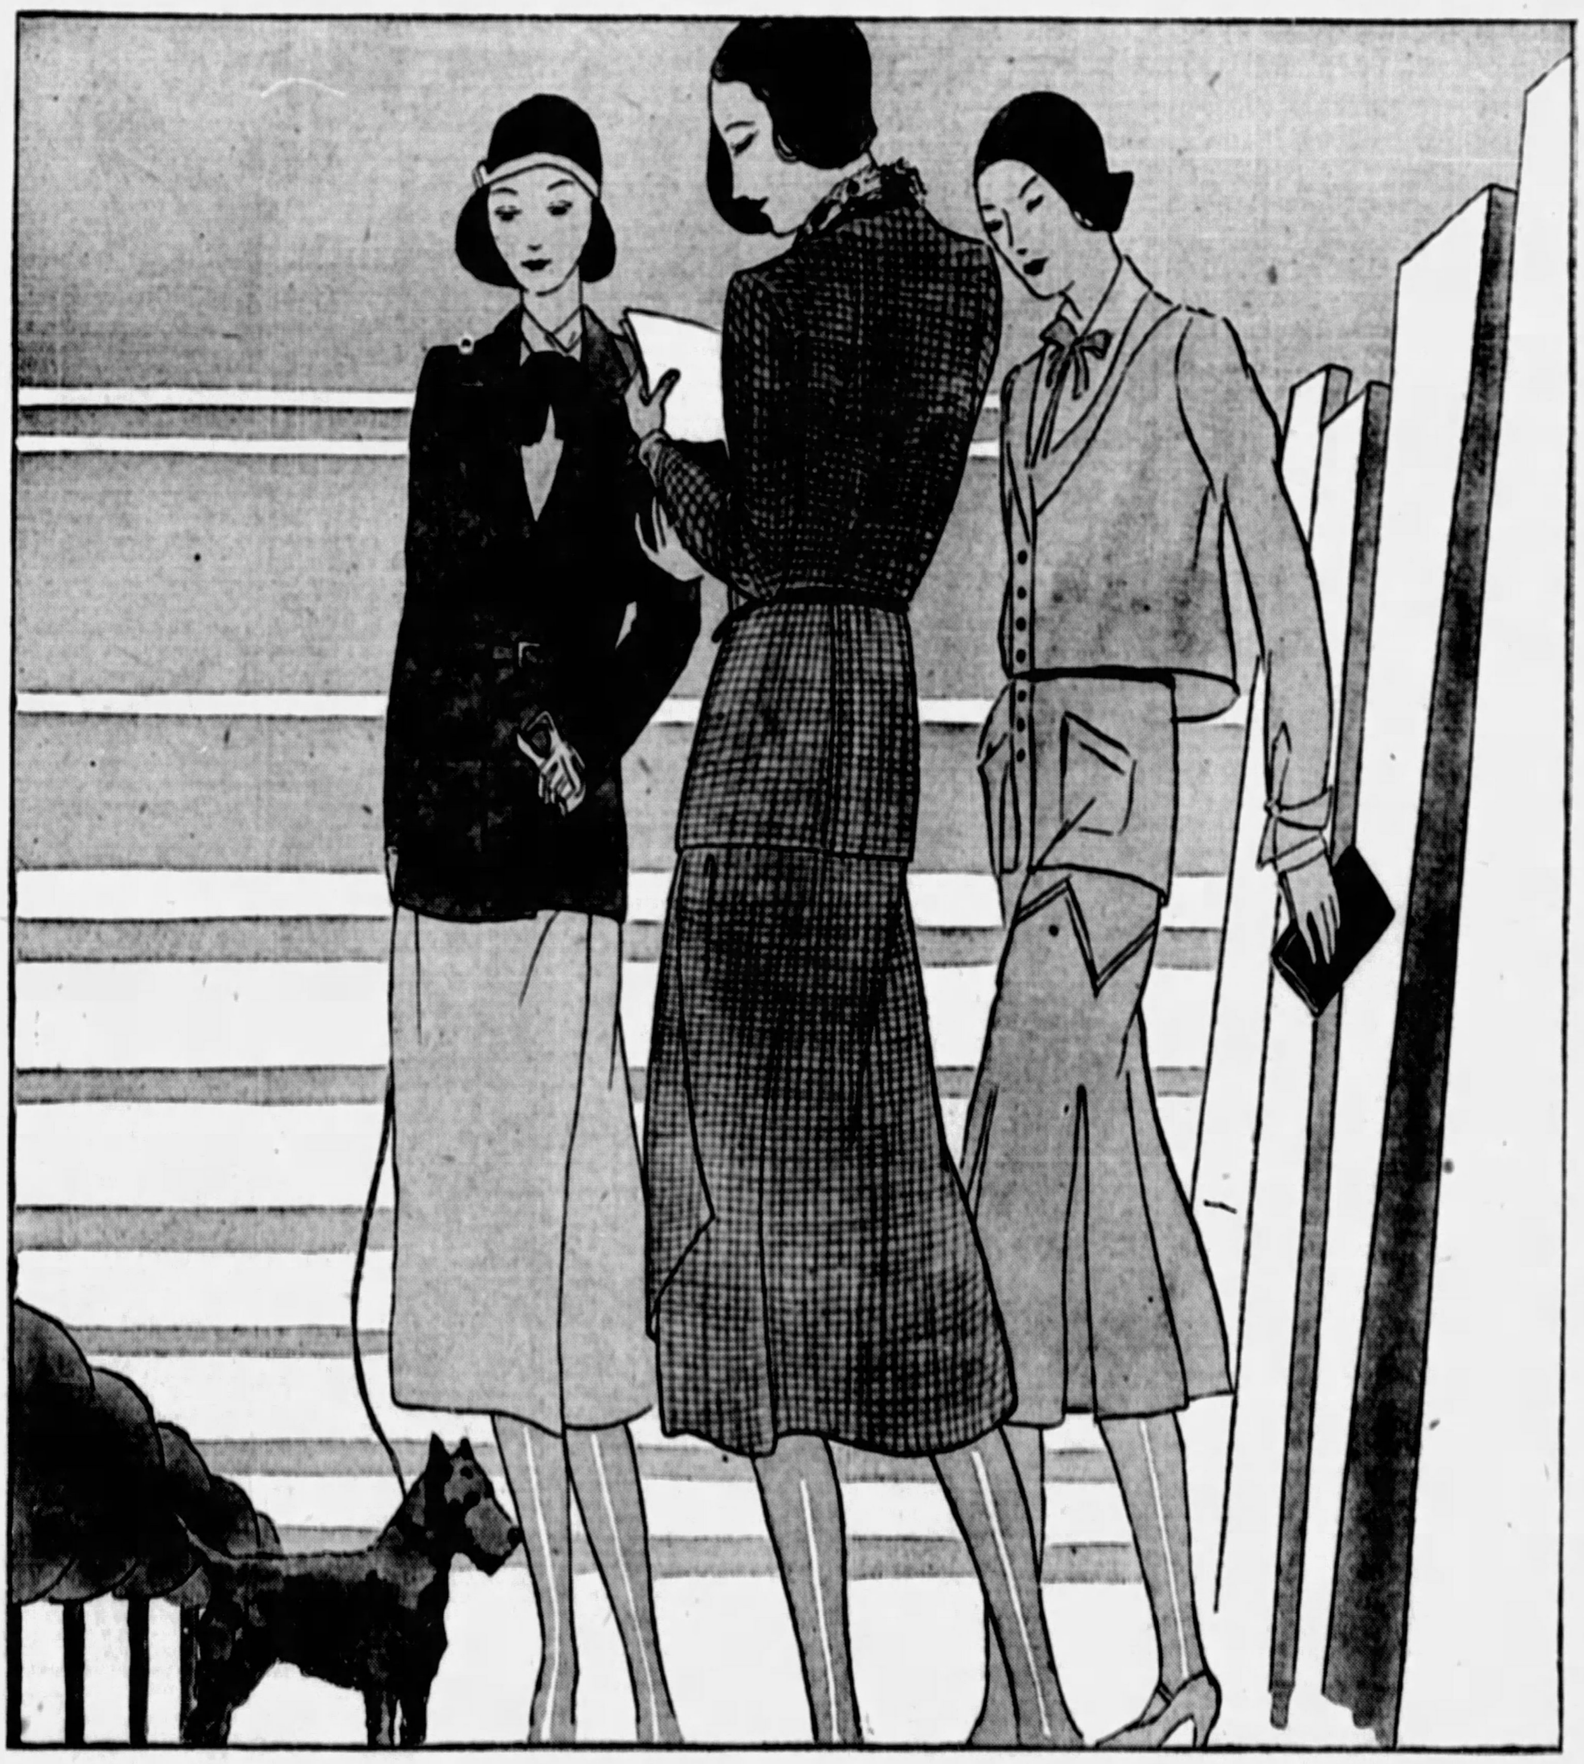
SPRING 1930

The Suit scores a New Leadership

EVEN the most casual survey of the styles of last Spring in comparison with the present trend of style for Spring 1930 will show forcibly what a change Mistress Fashion has undergone in a year. The year 1929 now seems definitely out-moded. The better-dressed woman of 1930 will have a new silhouette, a new spirit and an entirely new feeling for clothes. Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the important part which will be played by the suit in milady's wardrobe. The suit styles have accommodated the wardrobe to the extent of supplying a pleasing garment for every type of wear, from sports wear to the more or less formal suit. Pittsburgh stylists have gone far in their research and study of the suit as displayed in the style marts of the world. Pittsburgh's stores and shops, large and small, have a selection that will please every woman—that will clothe the Pittsburgh woman in Spring's most accepted garment—the suit. Patronize the style floors of Pittsburgh's great department stores. Shop through the style salons of Pittsburgh's shops and women's specialty stores. Learn for yourself the reason for the suit's popularity.



PITTSBURGH stylists are emphatic in their statement that the suit, with all its 1930 identifications, is the dominating feature of the Spring mode. This season the feminine wardrobe will hardly be complete without at least one suit—and the more that one has, the better. In Pittsburgh shops and stores, large and small, you will find every possible variety in almost every conceivable fabric, ranging from those of rather mannish material to charming soft ones of jacquard and printed silks. A new feature of the suit is the nipped-in waistline. Peplum styles are outstanding in many houses. The skirt may be wrap-around, flared, straight or pleated. Blouse styles offer a great diversity. Jackets offer the greatest diversity in style selection.

In fact, diversity is the keynote of the suit. No one single style can be picked out acclaimed the model of all that is good in suits. There are too many new characteristics. The dressmaker type of suit with its soft charm and feminine lines proves to be excellent. On the other hand, and directly contrasting, we find a strong bid for popularity in the more or less mannish tailored suit. One cannot particularize too much about the style of suits for this Spring. The safe and most acceptable plan for being absolutely correct is to see the new offerings. There is some style that was apparently just made for you. You will buy it. You will be correctly dressed, for this season, more than any other season, the individuality of the woman is considered. What suits the type is the type of suit to purchase. That you can learn only by personally inspecting the stocks of Pittsburgh's stores. You will find a great diversity, but—and this is paramount—you will find the exact suit for you. And again we emphasize the statement that the feminine wardrobe will not be complete without at least one suit—and the more suits one has—the better.

Mary Hints That Chickie Should Consider Jake

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

BARRY knew well he could not marry Chickie for a long time. He had no regular salary. He had months of rich luck; he had others equally impoverished. And, whether the days were lean or fat, whether he begged or borrowed, there was always the $60 he must send to his mother. She was old now and delicate—no one but him.

Twice he had failed her—suffering agony because of her imperative needs. Thinking of her now, he was thrown back again, futile, against his bonds. He felt as though thongs tightened his arms to his sides drawing hard until his breath strangled.

He fancied Chickie moving from him, her white hands outstretched and beckoning—tears in her eyes. When he didn't come, her bright head lowered.

The vision touched anew the hot sparks along his nerves. Reach her? Indeed he would! Pull her to him—tangle his hands in her hair, dip his lips in her tears—so beautiful she was. Let her go? Why—

He had all of youth's scornful fury for the hands that stay his will, for the prim sorry "don't" that the wise and the old hiss into the ears of the new. Feeling these restraints bitterly now, he could have flung them off with arrogant contempt.

"Wait!" Well, let the cold and the spent accept the mandate! His imagination—always more that of the poet than the lawyer—created a different world where beauty was the first law; a glowing world of young fire and passion; no laurels given those who walk severely because of their emotional poverty—a world of today with no tomorrow to thrust its consequences in the face of joy.

His senses clamoring against his thought could not accept the beauty of denial any more than his young pulses could perceive a sublimity in death. Denial and death—they were the same. They spoke no music that the heart of 24 could hear.

Must Go On

To Barry now, one thing was paramount. He and Chickie loved each other. This was the rightest thing in the world. It was theirs. But they couldn't take it. They must put it off—into the far future. It seemed both vicious and cruel.

Now — after three hours of wakefulness he was back in the hot throb where he had begun. Nothing solved. They would go on as before—they must.

Through his open window the night air blew soft and clear, faint warmth of spring in its touch. He paused, pushing the paper, now covered with scrolls, from him. Go on as before—long, dreamy Sundays under a tree. Chickie's fingers smoothing his eyebrows. He said half aloud, flushing: "Yes! Like that for five or six years!"

Suddenly he saw Chickie's face, white, pathetic, her eyes closed when he taunted her; when he blamed her so hotly for her interest in Jake.

He remembered that she said: "Jake's so kind. I can't stay home all the time, can I?"

He insisted that if she loved him she would not wish to go out with Jake.

She answered promptly: "I'd stay home forever if I thought you really cared."

And he demanded this. Now it made him burn with discomfort. He asked her to give up these years entirely to him. And he had nothing to offer in exchange for her sacrifice. Had a fellow a right to do this? Had he the right to keep her from enjoyments that he could never furnish?

Perhaps he should leave her free. Better all around. Nights when he had to work she should not be kept lonely at home. Let Jake entertain her——

Mary Sees Pin

His thought reared fiercely. She was willing! She said so. Why should she go out with Jake? What was his interest? Plenty of money! Stalling around! She'd not go out with him!

He thought with the mightiness of youth: She doesn't care. She wants to do it. I can make it up to her."

But he had no idea how this was going to be nor when.

"Makes it very agreeable that I can talk to myself! Only the third time I've spoken!" Mary Blake, sitting opposite at the lunch table, watched Chickie with shrewd, curious eyes. Seeing her in a deep dream, her pulse quickened.

Chickie, brought back with a jerk from a vital, laughing face lowered to hers; from green slopes and birds winging upward joyously, stammered: "Lewis called Stella Wilson this morning. She got the high strungs—poor thing—and had to go home. It got us all on edge. I was thinking of that."

"Yes, you were! With that idiotic smile on your face! Remember, ole thing, it's your lifelong twin you're trying to kid and you don't get away with it. I asked you—" Mary broke off suddenly, her mouth opening in surprise: "Whew! Wherever in the world did that come from, Chickie?"

Mary reached over and touched the pin in Chickie's dress—Jake's sapphires. "This—heavens!"

"Oh, that?" Why, I didn't know I had it on. Spiffy, isn't it—got it at the novelty shop."

Mary turned it slowly and more slowly glanced at Chickie. "You did!" And she kept looking and smiling until Chickie's face burned scarlet.

"Yes—like it?"

"Rather! And to think you'd keep this from me and you know I've been on my knees for the last six months praying you'd have sense enough. Chickie—when? You love him? I can see it! Oh—"

Chickie's hands flew nervously to her breast, covering the beautiful pin. She would have liked to snatch it off, drop it on the floor. She said quietly, knowing Mary wouldn't be bluffed: "Jake gave me this months ago. I gave it back and he forced it on me. It means nothing. I didn't even know I had it on. It's been on this dress for weeks."

Don't Want Jake

"Don't explain, ole darling! This is good enough! You're going to marry Jake?"

"No! Well—no! Don't be so ridiculous!"

"But a gift like this! Why, it must have cost hundreds and hundreds. The man must be wild about you."

"Oh, my yes. You remember he gave a bar pin to Amy Heaton!"

Mary paled. "Not putting yourself in Amy Heaton's class, are you? You surely wouldn't keep a pin like that unless you cared for him!"

"I like him, of course. He's fine in lots of ways. I tell you I gave the pin back and he made me keep it. Stop staring at me!"

"I'll stare if I like. What are you so excited about? For pity sakes!"

Chickie's eyes suddenly brimmed. She took out her handkerchief and pretended to sneeze. With the quick impulsive way that was like Jimmy Mary whispered breathless: "Well, of all things! What have I stepped on? I didn't mean it. Something you don't want me to know?"

Chickie, amazed at her sudden uncontrol, kept her head lowered: "I don't know why you were so determined to marry me to Jake. He's never asked me. And I don't want him to. I don't love him."

Mary's dark, penetrating eyes filled with sadness. "Oh — so that's it. You love that Barry Dunne. You, too, Chickie!"

"Why don't you want me to have it?"

Discuss Marriage

Mary kept silent. Chickie went on, voice humming with a rising feeling. "Why, you said you'd wait a thousand years for love and it was worth it. You said it paid for any agony. You told me that after the baby was born. Now you've changed!"

"No, I haven't changed. I would never give up the love for money or anything else. But you have a chance for both. That's all. You could have made your life glorious. I know you, Chickie. Months ago you were thrilled and more than half in love with Jake Munson!"

"Half in love! There's no such thing! Mary—for you to say a lie like that!"

"Then it's settled, Chickie? You can answer, can't you? Will you be married soon?"

"No—nothing is settled, Mary—don't go saying things. It will be five or six years."

"Not a regular engagement, then?" Mary's face brightened. "You'll still keep your eyes on Jake? Much can happen in five or six years, you know."

The white, pained supplication in Chickie's eyes warned Mary. She saw with a pang their quivering, vivid emotion. She said anxiously: "You don't mean to cut out every one else, do you? What are you looking so frightened about? Don't tell me you're going to wait five or six years and ditch every one else in the meantime!"

"I'm not telling you anything. I suppose you wouldn't have waited for Edward?"

"Never you mind about me! And it's fine to love. That's all right. If you still love him in five years and he hasn't a cent I'll be the first one to shout: 'Take him!' But give yourself a chance. What guarantee have you that he'll still care in five or six years?"

"As much as you or any one has. Marriage doesn't make it certain these days."

"No—it doesn't. And marriage is time enough for a girl to begin her sacrifices. You'll have all the chance you want! I'm not regretting one thing I have to do. But, just the same, I'd not give any man a five years' handicap. That's what you're doing. What's the need of it? What's the sense of it?"

Chickie laughed: "Inevitable! Your very own word, Mary, ole thing! I wouldn't give it up for all the Jakes that were ever born since the very beginning of time!"

"You mean to turn him down completely?"

"Yes—there's nothing else to do."

She said this serenely—swiftly—for now her whole life shimmered out in a beautiful clarity. It was Monday morning. She rode uplifted on the crest of the mighty wave that had yesterday swept the two of them so buoyantly together. In her mind was an aching joy—the memory of Barry's face, pale with anguish, the look in his eyes when he said: "I love you—who could help it!" It filled her heart now with a sweet, wild intoxication.

Ah, nothing Mary or any one in all the world might say could alter that. She would hold fast to it a lifetime.

Mary got up heavily from the table. "Don't think I'm a killjoy, Chickie. You know what I'd do for you, I guess. Maybe I'm all wrong, but I think this is blind in you—terribly blind."

"Glad to be blind, ole dear! Eyes were never so sweet as this!"

Walking down the street, wondering where he had eaten, if he was looking for her; if he would wait at the corner, her arm was suddenly caught, an excited: "Where have you been!" darted against her ear.

She looked startled into Barry's flushed demanding eyes and laughed uneasily: "What do you mean! Accost me like this!"

"I've been waiting an hour! Fine thing—right off the bat."

"What are you ranting about? If that's your idea of things— You knew I had this date with Mary. I told you—"

A sheepish grin touched up the corners of his mouth. He was immediately red to his ears—laughing. "Beg pardon, frail! Listen—stay downtown tonight. We'll have an early dinner. I'll drive you home. Have to work later. How's that? Ah—you pretty thing—come to the window and throw me the sweet eye, will you?"

If he had given her wings she would not have gone more lightly back to work. She took off her hat, hiding her face in it. She said to herself: "Oh, well—" and drew a deep sigh, trembling.

All morning a small fear gnawed at her joy . . . fear even to meet. He might take back all he said—might be gloomy again—reluctant. Might begin to fight against it. But he was all blithe. She was at peace.

When they were sitting in a little booth in the restaurant, she laughed for no cause at all. She said: "Barry—you seem quite in a tackle this pleasant evening."

"Why not—and the fair one fairer than ever. Things will come out—we'll get around it somehow—eh?"

He talked bonnily—made a killing in the morning—celebrate—go to a big show Saturday. He clinked his pocket and emptied out a handful of quarters, nickels and dimes. "There's meals for a week, girl! Ever get down to your last quarter? I'll take you there! Great sensation!"

They dallied over the meal—talking of nothing—laughing. They sneaked in a quick ride to the beach.

She said: "Barry, you didn't want to love me, did you?"

"But I do!"

"You fought against it! Why?"

"That's past! I'm conquered! Kiss me, frail—there—here. I hate to take you back so soon."

"Must you?"

"Well—well—"

"Yes—don't dare to weaken! And then blame me!"

Her eyes were moist and brilliant! They walked slowly up the steps of the cottage. They stood whispering a moment. She waited till he sped away, then she opened the door softly. Someone came into the hall—took her hand.

"This is how you keep your date, my dear? Well, there's some of it left, anyway! Hurry!"

It was Jake. She had completely forgotten.

All Styles in Vogue Today, So's Your Grandmother, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

I TOOK a stroll the other afternoon along the smart streets, but I did not window shop. Instead I looked at the crowds to SEE what is being worn.

I was delighted, for I declare there was every color, every kind of a hat, fur and dress. Long skirts and short skirts everywhere.

I saw capes and muffs, and even several pairs of high shoes with black stockings.

Any number of smartly dressed women had high, tight collars, and hats with brims. I saw tailored girls, and girls wearing spangled hats in the middle of the day.

Jewelry of every sort. Low heels and high heels. Sheerest stockings with clocks, and woolen stockings.

Leslie Makes Good Threat Against Noel

"I THINK I went out of my mind when he called Noel a 'little rat'," Mary went on, while I sat shocked and astounded at her story of Jack Leslie's threats. "I remember screaming out at him, 'You wouldn't soil your hands on him. Well, he soiled his on you to good purpose once, and here's where I dirty mine.' Then I struck him in the face as hard as I could. He didn't have time to dodge and my ring cut his lip. It bled like everything."

"Mary! Mary!" I expostulated. I do not think she ever heard my voicing of her name, so absorbed was she in her story.

"Then was the time I did expect to get killed." Mary went on naively. "If he looked so murderous at my telling him I loathed every memory connected with him I didn't know what he mightn't do to me after that blow. I had wrenched free the hand he was holding when I hit him with the other, and, though I wouldn't have run if he had knifed me, I stepped back a pace and tried to guess what he would do and if there was any chance for me to beat his game.

"But do you know"—there was wonder in Mary's voice—"he didn't make a single move toward me. He put his hand up to his face sort of stupid like, and when he felt the blood he turned as white as a ghost and snatched a handkerchief from one pocket and a small mirror from another and looked carefully at the reflection of his face while he wiped off the blood. What do you think of that?"

"It's just what I should expect him to do," I replied. "He's a coward—he hasn't even the courage of the animal to which he likened Noel, and, like all his type, personal vanity is the strongest characteristic in his mental make-up. At that, he probably would have struck you—you being a woman and weaker than he—if he hadn't been first concerned about the appearance of his face, which he feared you had jeopardized."

"I guess you're right," Mary said. "In fact, when he had wiped away the blood and put back the mirror he lowered his head for all the world like an animal that's going to rush at you, and his face had an awful ugly look.

"'Just because I don't kill you don't get it into your head that I haven't got the whip hand,' he said. 'Remember, I haven't anything to lose if I do a stretch, which will compare with what you and your little boy friend will lose. I haven't any rep, and I know what jail is like, but you can't put me in stir for blackmailing or anything else without a trial, and when that happy day comes everybody will have the pleasure of reading about you as the masked dancer, with all the extra embroidery I promised a few minutes ago. And I shall also resurrect from the tomb a nice little tale about your sweetie when he was in college. It concerns a stolen ring and a girl and a dismissal from college.'

"'Oh ho! that surprises you, doesn't it?' he said. 'To find out the boy friend has been holding out on you about that little incident in his past. You might just as well have stuck to me, you see, for he's cut off the same piece of goods that I am. But I wouldn't have you now if you came to me on your knees. You're worth just $35 a week to me, and no more.'

"'All right,' I said, for my knees were getting so wobbly that I was afraid I would faint away. 'I'll try to get you the thirty-five, but I don't know when. I haven't got that much.' 'I think I'll show you that you can before the week is out,' he said. 'And when I've shown you, you come a-running with the money before something else happens. I'll be where I can see this seat every day at this hour. But don't you dare to bring anybody with you. So long.'

"He swung his hat off and left me, and I came home to you as fast as I could. And then tonight he kept his word to 'show me.' Oh! Oh! Auntie Madge!"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Both Sides of the Love-Game

LOVE-MAKING is an art, for which many a boy of 20 shows a natural genius, while many a seasoned worldling never seems to master its simplest rudiments.

Getting married is, to a woman, a premeditated felicity; but a man must be in an awfully reckless mood to get any joy out of his own wedding.

It wouldn't be so bad if a flapper would simply steal your husband and be done with it; but this continually "borrowing" him and then returning him is what gets on a wife's nerves.

Synthetic love starts in the pocket-flask and makes the head go 'round; real love starts in the head and makes the heart go 'round.

Perjury becomes just second-nature to a woman, after a few years of household economy. If she isn't hiding from a penurious husband how much she's spending, she's lying to a spendthrift husband about how much she's saving.

The modern youth appears to spend almost as much time and energy thinking up ways to discourage the women as his father spent in devising ways to win them.

A woman's love is never dead, until she gets tired of "forgiving" a man, and begins learning to forget him.

A man who will calmly and bravely face a burglar who points a gun at him, will run like a frightened deer from a woman who laughs at him.

The White House Gang

about numerous important-looking gentlemen, hurrying from the Capitol. From their stringties, general careful-careless dishevelment, Lincolnian trousers and heavy, thoughful, actors' faces, Q took them to be Congressmen. He would ride close enough, just not to hit them, interrupting their measured strides and, with a quick turn of the handlebars, fanning their dignity. The possible complications of entangling a live Congressman in the spokes of his bicycle, gave the movement an enormous zest.

Finally, we arrived, quite winded, at the grand staircase of the Library of Congress. Locking our bicycles at the rack, we assumed the air of Senate pages—feeling, perhaps, that, at this end of Pennsylvania avenue, Congress thought it governed the country, and not the White House—and subduing ourselves with conscious effort, entered the bronze doors, and came into the great hall.

"Yessir," Q said, "this building cost us six billion dollars"—he meant millions—adding, in order to give the information tangibility, "and 55 cents. . ."

Boys Fascinated

We then tramped through many corridors—always a little bewildered by the amazing profusion of painting, sculpture, mosaic, marble, bronze, gilding, carving and other lavish decoration—until we came to a room of the Division of Prints, where the models of the city of Washington were on exhibition. These were made by George Carroll Curtis, geographical sculptor of Boston, for that famous Burnham Park Commission of 1901, of which McKim, Saint Gaudens and Olmstead were members. These men, wisely following the original plans made by Maj. L'Enfant, under the personal direction of Washington and Jefferson, contributed the great plan which is being adhered to, today, and which when happily accomplished, will make Washington a capital city worthy of the nation.

Q was fascinated by these exquisite models, exhibited in glass cases on long, wide tables, showing the city as it was and as it was hoped it might be, when developed. Every building of prominence was shown—accurately done to scale with architectural detail—every street, every plot . . . even the realistic masses of trees, bordering the streets and in the parks.

Attracts Others

"Look down on the White House, as if you were a god!" Q said many times, and in many different ways. "How small it looks! Yet we all know how big it really is. You could drop a pebble on it and crush it, together with the p-i-g-m-y President and the State-War-Navy Department, too, by mistake!" Presently he corrected himself. "I mean, really, that the great big tre-men-jous God could."

We were all interested in the models, but not with the fixity of enthusiasm which possessed Q. "Some day, of course," he said with finality, "when all this is done,"—pointing to the model of the projected city—"it'll be just nothing, looking down on it; it'll only cost you a month's allowance to hire somebody to fly you all about over town! It would be worth six months', now, wouldn't it?"

Then he crossed over to another corner of the model-case, to get a view from there. He was especially delighted, this drab afternoon, when the lights were switched on in the room, and the models of the buildings cast lifelike shadows. "It's absolute-ly real now!" he said in a sudden loud voice, startling several sightseers in the room. "By golly! It takes my breath away."

Two men and a woman, who had been looking about idly, and were, obviously, rather bored with the prints, came over to the model-case, and immediately became absorbed in them, forgetting, entirely, the small boy who had directed their attention to them.

Rare Privilege

Time and again, afterwards, I have thought of these enchanting models—realizing that it was a rare privilege given me, to see the genesis of Quentin's interest in the air. It was a strangely advanced idea, then, not for Q though, because his was the unusual, original creative mind, which accepts, only under protest, the scheme of things-as-they-are.

So, presently, the years having swiftly flown, Q is seated in the cockpit of one of those fast fighting ships of the air, sensitively alive to his every touch on the controls, looking down on the fair fields of France. There, for him, was the counterpane of greens and browns of the fields, the silver of the streams, the slim, grey ribbons of the roads, the diminutive road-menders' huts, the huddled, clustering houses of the communes, casting their sharp shadows, and making it "ab-solute-ly real. . . ."

In far finer fashion than he had imagined, in the years that went before, Q was able, in his beloved "Dock Yack" plane, with its slim body tapering back from his shoulders as though it was a part of him, to climb up in a swift chandelle, widening his horizon, and to come down with the swoop of an eagle unafraid ("By buzzard!"), banking perpendicularly into a glissade, with the wind screaming crossways through his struts. . . .

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

High Blood Pressure

OF late I have received letters from a great many persons about high blood pressure. Even though I have written several articles on this subject during the past few months, it may be wise to write another.

People are disturbed because the doctors tell them they have a pressure of 215 or 220, or whatever it may be. But the fact is blood pressure is of little consequence. What is of real importance is the underlying condition of health.

If a person finds out he has high blood pressure the first thing to do is to make a survey of the general health. Find out if there is some trouble, even though it is not seemingly important. That very trouble may have a possible effect upon the pressure. Indeed, almost any condition of ill health may have this as one of its symptoms. Bad teeth or tonsils may produce it.

Many cases of high blood pressure are the result of improper kidney action. An involvement of the kidneys, what we commonly call "Bright's Disease," is a factor. Examination of the urine determines a whole lot as regards this disability.

In its turn, kidney disease may be the result of an infection in the system. It is not uncommon after scarlet fever, typhoid fever, or some other of the socalled infectious diseases, to have an involvement of the kidneys. With it we may find high blood pressure as a symptom.

Worry, homesickness and any other undesirable state of mind is a factor of importance. Any unhappy mental disturbance is likely to break the rest. Consequently the physical functions are not performing as they should and high blood pressure may result.

It is not unnatural for a person disturbed over the presence of this symptom to reduce the diet to a dangerous degree. In spite of the failure of certain organs to function as they should, the reduction of the eating may be so great as to cause weakness and depression. Enough food must be taken to keep the body well nourished and to supply the energy necessary for our activities.

It is impossible to lay down hard and fast rules for the control of high blood pressure. The individual element must be considered in every case.

Of course, the family doctor will advise regarding a particular case. He will find out what is wrong and advise you accordingly.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A College Girl's Allowance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My niece has come to me for advice, but as I am unable to give it, I am going to ask you, because I know you will help me. Here is the problem: My niece is at college and is receiving an allowance monthly, but she writes home and asks for more, saying that it is not enough. The allowance she has and the one she wants differ a great deal. She has come to me and asked me what I thought was a fair amount, and as I did not go to college when I was young, I don't know what would be right, and as a woman of the world — which I know you to be—I am asking you what would be the right amount for a college girl to have.

READER.

SUCH an allowance depends so much on so many things that you have not listed that an outsider could not possibly determine its amount. For instance, mainly it depends on the girl's ideas of what are luxuries and what are necessities, and on the kind of college at which she is a student. I recommend that you write to the dean of the college your niece it attending and ask her what she considers a fair allowance for your niece. She will, of course, know definitely, and her word will carry such authority that your niece will know its value.

Expressing One's Sympathy

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When calling on friends (not close friends) to express one's sympathy at the time of a death in the family, should one walk in, or should one rap lightly on the door and wait for the doorkeeper to open it?

G. G.

WE should not walk in unannounced to a home, under these circumstances especially. If you are not a close friend of the family in mourning, you would simply leave your card of sympathy at the door. Only very close friends of the family would be expected to be admitted to a home at such a time, and those only on invitation of the family.

Under the circumstances that you outline—"not close friends"—it is best to leave your card, or to send flowers and a note of sympathy, or both.

Serving Pickles

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please let me know how pickles are to be taken from the dish? Should they be taken with the fingers or a fork?

A. R.

IF there is any kind of serving piece placed with the dish of pickles, this should be used, rather than the fingers.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, March 21

A DAY of unusual, complicated and probably sensational occurrences are forecast by the mutual planetary aspects, but not an entirely unprofitable one. Much depends on the circumspect and cautious handling of the peculiar situations as they arise. Sign all writings with precaution.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unusual and perplexing unfoldment of events. With extreme precaution and sound judgment there may be gainful and satisfactory denouements.

A child born on this day may be brilliant, ambitious and spectacular, but may lean toward trickery or shrewdness.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

TEMPERS and sudden rage not only spoil pretty faces, but cause chemical changes to take place within the body. The mouth goes dry. Eyesight is blurred. Moisture fills the palms of the hands. The digestive organs stop functioning. The nervous system falls into a state of panic. Indulging in emotional storms is an extravagant habit. One pays.

It is almost impossible to keep a curling fluid. All drug shops and beautytoriums sell bandolines, which are compounded usually of camphor and gum tragacanth. Use the curling fluid at night, arranging the flat ringlets the way they should go, then fluff them out with the comb in the morning.

Idle, sheltered, shiftless women are the ones who are clutched at the throat by old enemy Time; who show wrinkles early and whose figures take on the meal bag shape. Activity is the best thing in the world for a woman. It keeps her on her toes; it insures against the mildewed mind; it assists the work of the internal organs, and it makes her more interesting.

"WORD PAINTERS OF TODAY" made an interesting topic for yesterday's meeting of the Fortnightly Review of Mt. Lebanon which was held in Mrs. Don V. Sawhill's home, Seminole Hills. Mrs. Arthur H. Davis, the leader, contributed an original poem "The Poet's Realm the World Doth Move," and then introduced each speaker in original verse appropriate to her paper. Mrs. E. C. McCown's paper discussed "American Women in Modern Poetry," and was read by Mrs. R. L. Kelly. Mrs. J. E. Huey had a paper on "Our Chicago Poets," and Pulitzer prize poets were discussed by Mrs. H. H. Hadden. Mrs. J. E. Stone's paper was on Vachel Lindsay and, in conclusion, Mrs. J. W. Davis offered a humorous "poetry cure."

PARDON DENIED CAUFFIEL

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 20. (AP.)—Joseph Cauffiel, former mayor of Johnstown, was refused a pardon yesterday by Gov. Fisher, thereby ending Cauffiel's prolonged attempt for freedom from the two years sentence imposed on him for maladministration.

The former head of Johnstown's city government began serving the sentence January 1 after his conviction of conspiracy to collect money from gambling houses in his city in exchange for police protection had been upheld by both the State Appellate Courts. Cauffiel appealed to the State Board of Pardons as a last resort for commutation of his sentence on the grounds that he was innocent and that the charges were brought against him by political enemies.

3 Brothers, Put In Same Cell, Stage Battle

Because they were brothers, Sergt. Michael Corcoran lodged William, Mullens, 29; Pat, 25, and George, 23, in the same cell in the South Side Police Station following their arrest yesterday, he said.

A short time later cries were heard from the cell room. The sergeant rushed in, and finding the three brothers, who hail from Banksville, engaged in a fight, placed them in separate cells.

Railroad Employe 79 Years, Dies at 91

COLUMBUS, O., March 20.—(AP.)—Oliver D. Hevey, reputed to have been the oldest railroad man in the United States, who began his career as a train boy on a woodburner in 1851, died last night at the age of 91. For 79 continuous years he was on the active payroll of various roads, during a period which witnessed the perfection of the "iron horse."

In 1863 he assisted in bringing soldiers and supplies to and from the battle fields of the war between the states.

TINTS AND DYES

She took another woman's place

Drawn by Constance Bevan Bailey

"THEO, dear, do you love me?" Noel whispered to the girl beside him. His sightless eyes stared vacantly past her. How could he know in his blindness that she was not the woman he loved—but an imposter who had taken his sweetheart's place!

Frantically she realized the folly it had been to agree to take Theo's place! What strange fate had given her voice the same tone as Theo's—enabling her to deceive this blind, devoted man?

"Yes, Noel—I love you." Each word was a dagger in her heart. She was saying "I love you" for a woman who at this moment loved another man!

"Come to my arms," Noel said.

In a moment she was in his embrace. She wanted to cry out—"I am not Theo—but I love you!" His kisses stifled the words... What happened when Noel regained his sight? She had lied to him—deceived him. Would he regard her as a cheat... an adventuress? Could she ever win the love of this man whom she had tricked? Or would she lose him forever? Read "Shining Through the Dark" by Ethel Donoher, the absorbing romance of a girl who dared to accept the love that belonged to another woman! Don't miss this heart-searching story, complete in this week's issue of Love Story Magazine.

Many thrilling stories in March 22nd issue

What are your love problems?

What would you do if you fell in love with a man and later found out he was married? Suppose your sweetheart left you—how could you win him back? These are the kind of problems that Laura Alston Brown answers every week in her helpful department—"The Friend in Need." Whatever problems are worrying you—Mrs. Brown is ready to aid you at all times.

"THE ROSE SMOCK" is a complete novelette by Edna Ettinger. How a courageous girl, accused of theft and deserted by the man she loved won out against tremendous odds is the theme of this dramatic love story.

Suppose you fell in love with a man who had only two years to live. What would you do? This is the amazing situation which faced one girl in Barbara West's throbbing story, "The Heart Diet."

Don't miss: "The Right Kind of Love," "Anything for Her," "The Rumble-seat Mind," "Waiting for Love," "The Girl With the Parrot." You'll enjoy Ruby M. Ayres' fascinating new serial novel, "The Secret Witness" and the first part of Maysie Greig's "The Husband She Bought."

Stocks Rally Briskly — Local Stocks Narrow

STOCKS RALLY BRISKLY IN AFTERNOON

Market Displays Complete Reversal and Advances After Declining Sharply

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP.)—The stock market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off sharply under a heavy volume of short selling and profit-taking in the morning, and then rallying briskly in the afternoon under the leadership of the motors, chemicals and specialties. Early declines of 1 to 4 points were substantially reduced, or wiped out, and a long list of stocks marked up 1 to 13 points, of which a score or more were pushed into new high ground.

A further relaxation in credit conditions was again an important bullish factor, although some observers were inclined to place a bearish interpretation upon this development on the theory that it indicated an unusually small commercial demand for funds. Call money renewed at 2 per cent for the first time in nearly six years, but because the low rate had resulted in a withdrawal of some out-of-town funds, there was little disposition to cut the rate in the outside market. Later the rate was raised to 2½ per cent. Time money rates were again shaded, and bankers' acceptance rates were cut ¼ of 1 per cent, after a long series of cuts of ⅛ of 1 per cent in the last three weeks.

ENGLISH RATE CUT

The Bank of England rediscount rate was cut from 4 to 3½ per cent, the lowest rate since 1923, but local banking opinion was divided as to the possibility of a cut in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate after the close. While open market rates would suggest the possibility of a further cut in the New York rate, it was pointed out that there is no special incentive in a further cut here, as rates already are low enough to stimulate an increased demand for funds for commercial purposes. Fears that a lower rate here might result in a sharp revival of securities speculation are likely to act as a deterrent to another reduction at this time.

Bearish professionals were again heavy sellers of stock in the early trading.

TOBACCOS ABOUT-FACE

Tobacco shares, which were heavily sold early in the week as a result of published attacks by one cigaret manufacturer against another which was construed in some quarters as a forerunner of price cuts, rallied sharply on reports that any revision in cigaret prices was likely to be upward rather than downward. American Tobacco A jumped 7¾ points and the B stock moved up nearly 4 points.

In the rail group, New Haven, Kansas City Southern and Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred moved into new high ground. Colorado and Southern jumped 6 points.

Bank of England Discount Rate Reduced

LONDON, March 20. — The Bank of England today reduced its minimum rate of discount ½ of 1 per cent to 3½ per cent. The 4 per cent rate had only been in effect since March 6 last when it was cut from the 4½ per cent level which had prevailed since February 6 of this year.

Today's action of the bank brings its re-discount rate down to the lowest level since January, 1914, when it was 3 per cent.

Downward trend of world money rates fostered by central banking institutions—owing to the fall of commodity prices and trade depression — reached a point especially in New York and London permitting a reduction by the English central bank from the mark which was established only a fortnight ago.

OSLO, Norway, March 20.—The National Bank of Norway reduced its discount rate from 5 per cent to 4½ per cent today.

RATE LOWERING INVITATION TO SPECULATE

Federal Reserve Action Plain Bid for Public To Become Venturesome

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, March 20.—The lowering of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York was a plain invitation to the business and banking public to become venturesome.

Remembering the inflationary consequences of the 3½ per cent rate effected in the summer of 1927, the Federal Reserve authorities naturally thought twice before authorizing this artificially low rate again.

But the central bankers, desiring to keep in tune with President Hoover's campaign to mitigate the effects of the recession, decided on a bold course. The celerity with which they have acted since the panic in getting the rediscount rate down from 6 to 3½ per cent is remarkable, especially to observers who are familiar with the technical obstacles.

The New York bank lowered the rate to 3½ per cent a full week after Wall Street had expected it, and there has been a good deal of idle conjecture about the cause of the delay. The fact is that the Federal Reserve wanted to synchronize its action with the open money market. A fortnight ago the Federal Reserve Bank abstained from dropping its rediscount rate to 3½ per cent because the bill buying rate was above that figure.

BOTTOM LIKELY REACHED

Broadly speaking, the Federal Reserve has by this time more or less shot its bolt in applying tonic to business via the credit rule. There is a good chance that the 3½ per cent rediscount rate will mark bottom, although if London insists on putting its rate substantially lower it is conceivable that the Federal Reserve will drop its rate another ½ of one per cent in order to ward off gold imports. This, however, would not be a voluntary step, taken with especial regard to the domestic situation, as the previous cuts were. In case business fails to make the expected seasonal improvement later in the year, the Federal Reserve is most likely to act in the way of toning up the situation through further substantial purchases of United States government bonds.

The full consequences of the policy of artificially easy money cannot yet be gauged. There ever remains the hazard of inflation, and, if the Reserve officials are wise, they will watch for such signs with hawk-like eyes and reverse their money quickly when and if necessary. The Federal Reserve has been warned since the panic that each rate cut would recreate speculative hysteria, but experience has shown thus far that such admonitions were wrong. Evidently the will to speculate is necessary, as well as the credit resources.

BREAK UNWARRANTED

L. K. Salsbury, of Memphis, one of the outstanding cotton growers of the world, in a message to this column points out:

"I do not think that there has been any legitimate reason for the cotton market to break as it has since January, because there is no big supply of cotton on hand and no big supply of cotton goods in any part of the world. Last year there was much more cotton in the visible than there is today, with cotton selling six cents per pound higher, and I do not think the business depression has warranted this break. While it is true the tremendous break in the stock market has caused many serious losses, however, from a business standpoint it has cleared the atmosphere and I cannot see why business would not be better since the orgy of gambling in stocks has been broken.

"I see a reasonable prospect of better prices before the harvesting of cotton next fall and I feel certain that there will be a very material advance from the present price of cotton within the next six months and I think it will be brought about within three months. Cotton is selling below the cost of production and I have never known any commodity to sell for any longer period below the price of producing it."

Ease in Money Causing Move of Bank Funds Into Bond Market.

IT is understood that the present situation in the money market, particularly in time funds, is resulting in considerable banking funds moving into the bond market. The banks are reported as not being over-anxious to put out their money on time at current rates, at the same time there is reported a good potential demand for time funds, but with prospective borrowers refusing to meet prevailing rates and holding their bids down. The banks, in consequence, are reported increasing their bond investments, finding a more satisfactory return possible through such operations.

Money brokers are frankly puzzled by certain recent develments bearing on the money situation. One of these is the heavy influx of funds toward New York from the interior. This trend is unseasonal, to say the least, it's being pointed out that the present is the season of the year when money should be moving toward the interior rather than away from it. Moreover, regional bank rates are higher at out-of-town centers than the 3½ per cent rate in New York, and interest rates generally are more favorable to the lender. Followers of money believe that preparations are under way to provide for future developments, which will require a substantial volume of funds, but no one can venture a guess on the possible nature of such developments.

WALL STREET is prepared for another substantial increase in the total of collateral borrowings when the weekly report of the Federal Reserve comes to hand after the closing today. Requirements against stock to be taken up on subscription "rights" expiring in the period were not as heavy as those of the preceding week, but new financing has run to substantial figures, and the stock market's increasing activity has suggested broadening public interest. It is hardly expected, however, that the expansion will reach a figure as high as the $137,000,000 gain shown last week.

Those inclined to be pessimistic in the past week or 10 days are emphasizing the importance of the business situation. They point out that there has been very little improvement, despite favorable statements which have emanated from several quarters. However, the extensive plans of federal, state, county and municipal authorities, as well as leading corporations, for spring activity readily might become important from the market standpoint and might be discounted before the effect of this work began to make itself felt.

CONDITIONS in the radio industry have been responsible for much of the selling which has come into these stocks since the first of the year. Competition has been keen and this fact has been emphasized by those supplying stocks. Recently there have been indications of better buying in Radio Corporation. This has been based on the expectation that conditions in the industry will improve materially this year. Many concerns which were not, strictly speaking, in the radio industry started making sets a year or so ago, but finding conditions bad have been taking steps to leave the field. A transition is in progress which should eventually be advantageous to Radio Corporation because of smaller production by competitors.

Several attempts to stage demonstrations in the copper group have been without great success, mainly because moderately higher prices have attracted liquidation from those who have been switching into other stocks on which the outlook is somewhat less uncertain. February statistics were not favorable, showing exports of 29,597 tons, against 50,150 tons in the corresponding month last year and domestic deliveries of 61,879 tons, compared with 98,771 tons in February, 1929.

Expect Big Gain In Gas Taxes This Year

NEW YORK, March 20.—Gasoline tax collections in the United States during 1930 will total about $550,000,000, an increase of approximately $100,000,000 over last year, according to preliminary estimates of the American Petroleum Institute. The increase is based on the expected increase in consumption of gasoline, and takes into consideration the increased tax rate in Oregon, from 3 cents a gallon to 4 cents. It does not include actual or expected rate increases in other states.

Early in 1929, the institute estimated the 1929 total at $450,000,000. Reports as of February 15 placed the actual collections at $449,731,000.

Schulte Files Suit Against Gillette

NEW YORK, March 20.—D. W. Schulte, Inc., has filed suit in State Supreme Court for a quarterly payment of $125,000 against Gillette Safety Razor Company for alleged breach of contract to pay $500,000 a year for display and promoting Gillette razor blades in all its stores.

The Gillette company is counter-claiming damages on the ground the Schulte company broke the contract by selling Dunhill blades.

Court Enjoins Gas Waste on Coast

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—Superior Court Judge William Hazlett has granted a temporary injunction against operators at Santa Fe Springs to prevent them from wasting natural gas in production of oil. The case has been continued until April 16, when arguments will be heard either to set aside the temporary injunction or make it permanent.

NATURAL GAS UNIT FORMED

NEW YORK, March 20.—Affiliation of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the Standard Gas and Electric Company, the American Water Works & Electric Company, and the Columbia Gas & Electric Company, in the formation of a holding company to take over certain of their natural gas properties in Western Pennsylvania, was announced today.

The new company, called the Duquesne Gas Corporation, will control through lease, or own in fee, the gas rights to more than 40,000 acres of land.

Included in the new company are the Peoples Natural Gas Company and Columbia Natural Gas Company, subsidiaries of Standard of New Jersey; Equitable Gas Company, a subsidiary of the Philadelphia Company, in turn controlled by Standard Gas; Manufacturers Light & Heat Company, and the Greensboro Gas Company, subsidiaries of the Columbia Gas and the State Line Gas Company, a suubsidiary of the West Penn Electric Company, which is controlled by American Water Works.

The properties of the corporaare in Armstrong, Allegheny, Westmoreland, Washington, Greene and Fayette Counties, all of which surround the Pittsburgh territory. Additional gas reserves to be controlled by the Duquesne corporation are in Indiana County, Pa., and in Monongahela and Preston Counties, W. Va.

Properties of the various companies making up the new corporation last year produced more than 2,600,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

INQUIRIES SPUR STEEL TRADE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 20.—District steel makers, particularly producers of flat-rolled, are receiving larger inquiries than any time in the last 30 days. Most of the demand is coming from the automobile trade, and the upturn convinces makers that the low point has been passed. With firmer demand and a backlog, producers will take a more definite price stand, especially on those products which have been subject to severe competition and price cutting.

Some of the current stimulus is due to placing of second-quarter tonnages, but a general upturn in requirements, anticipated some time ago, appears to be developing.

Automobile companies are planning to increase production, according to advices reaching this district.

Virginia Bridge Plans Approved

WASHINGTON, March 20.—F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war, has approved plans of the Virginian Railway Company of Virginia for construction of a bridge across Kanawha River near Deepwater, W. Va.

Dubilier Condenser Patents Are Upheld

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Board of Appeals of the Patent Department in Washington handed down a decision upholding the Dubilier Condenser Company's patents covering power-operated radio sets. Dubilier patents have been contested by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufeturing Compny, the North American Company and others for about five years. The decision handed down is very broad in scope and favors the Dubilier company in all points, according to Wm. Dubilier, president.

Election of Loft Board Protested

NEW YORK, March 20.—Loft, Inc., stockholders elected a new board of directors at the annual meeting, held, over the protest of Alfred R. Miller, president, who declared the meeting illegal and improper.

TRADE EXPECTS EARLY START

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—Although no substantial gains were reported for February, the Department of Labor said that business and industry "appear to be consolidating the progress made in January for an expected upturn in employment during the spring months."

Citing indications that a widespread county and municipal highway building program involving over $1,500,000,000 will afford employment to an army of workers, and that the public utilities companies are to expend $3,250,000,000 this year, the department said.

"With these various projects under way there will be a large demand for labor, which will materially decrease the volume of unemployment apparent at the close of February."

The automobile and boot and shoe industries showed an upward trend in production and labor, the reports indicated, and the shipbuilding industry, airplane factories, silk and rayon establishments, and plants manufacturing electrical equipment, were working on a satisfactory basis.

Iron and steel, the department said, showed no improvement, but the large volume of orders that are now flowing into the industry was held to indicate "a very promising future."

In the textile industry also no improvement was noted.

Owing to weather conditions, the department reported, large building construction did not get fully under way.

Production of automobiles was reported to the Department of Commerce as totalling 323,962 in February, of which 275,811 were passenger cars, 47,179 trucks and 1,022 taxicabs. This contrasted with a January production total of 273,170 and a total in February of last year of 466,418.

STEEL RETIRES FUNDED DEBT

NEW YORK, March 30.—The United States Steel Corporation's pamphlet report for 1929, made public tonight, reveals current assets of $562,232,507 on December 31, against current liabilities of $121,358,042. These figures compare with $560,155,190 in assets and $112,515,999 in liabilities on December 31, 1929. The consolidated balance sheet showed total assets at the end of last year of $2,286,163,654, against $2,442,030,233.

Cash on hand December 31, 1929, totaled $130,673,563, a decrease of about $22,000,000, while inventories are given as $268,572,969, against $249,764,796.

The Corporation last year returned $265,455,000 of its own funded debt, all of which was called for payment, leaving about $6,000,000 in bonds awaiting redemption on January 1. Including the retirement of subsidiaries' bonds, the total reduction of in bonded indebtedness was $344,344,437.

The volume of business done by U. S. Steel in 1929 was $1,492,503,485, compared with $1,374,433,433 in 1928. As previously reported, net income totaled $193,448,290, equal to $21.19 a common share. This compares with profit of $126,067,623, or $12.50 a share in 1928.

Cost of Living Lowest Since the War, But—

By B. C. FORBES

THE cost of living, judged by wholesale commodity prices, is lower today in the United States than it has been at any time since the war.

All over the world the price level is declining.

WAGES are not similarly declining—for those who are receiving wages; but, unhappily, a lamentably large number of workers here and across the Atlantic are getting no wages at all.

This means lop-sided prosperity. Can a more equitable arrangement be effected?

THESE commodities have all touched new low prices for the year since March began: Wheat, corn, rye, oats, butter, eggs, sugar, lard, cotton, silk, lead, zinc, tin.

Comprehensive figures covering rents are not compiled. But the trend in most localities is downwards. Vacant space has become distinctly more common since the financial upheaval. In my home county an abnormally large number of homes are for sale and to let. In New York, too, vacant space isn't readily rented in many sections. Therefore, it is logical that rents should have joined the general downward movement.

ALMOST every necessary of life has become cheaper. Low-priced wheat has meant lower-priced flour. Sugar, butter, eggs and coffee have been extraordinarily cheap. Beef has held up relatively well, but pork is down. An oversupply of cotton and silk has meant cheaper garments, and shoes have come down in price. Homes now can be heated more economically than in the past. Taking the country as a whole, electric light and power rates have declined. Competition has provided an abundance of most kinds of vegetables and fruits at attractive prices.

THE Department of Labor finds that, compared with the 100 cents' dollar of 1926, this year's (March 1) dollar is worth 103.6 cents. And since the compilation was made, the trend has been still further downwards.

The department gives the following comparative wholesale prices for the end of last month and 12 months ago:

	Now.	Year Ago.
All commodities	92.1	96.7
Farm products	98.0	105.4
Foods	95.5	98.1
Hides, leather products	103.9	109.0
Textile products	88.3	96.1
Fuel and lighting	73.8	81.3
Metals and metal products	100.9	104.4
Building materials	95.7	97.5
Chemicals and drugs	92.3	96.1
House furnishings	97.0	96.6
Miscellaneous	78.5	80.4
Raw materials	91.8	98.1
Semi-manufactured articles	92.1	97.2
Finished products	92.6	95.9
Nonagricultural commodities	90.6	94.3

DUN'S measures the decline in average commodity prices during the last 12 months at 6⅛ per cent, but Bradstreets' figures put the decline at 12½ per cent. Irving Fisher reports his average of 96.3 for 1929 is now down to 91 per cent.

The British Board of Trade reports the fall in prices there for the last year at 7½ per cent, and France gives the decline there at 12 per cent.

THIS column is receiving an unusual number of letters from unemployed. The most common suggestion is that, instead of dismissing workers, employers retain all their people and cut down the number of working hours, thus giving everybody a share of the total weekly wage distribution.

The attitude taken by well-entrenched workers towards those having a less firm grip on the payroll isn't always that of the Golden Rule. Certain large corporations that proposed to reduce working hours to avoid the necessity for laying off men immediately received very emphatic protests from those not slated to be dropped. Their length of service, they claimed, entitled them to steady work. They pointed out that in their early years of service they had to submit to periods of suspensions, and why shouldn't the younger employes be similiarly treated?

CERTAIN companies, however, have insisted upon spreading the work and the wages among their entire force, by giving everybody a certain number of hours of work each week.

Isn't this system more humane than separating workers completely from the payroll at a time like this when it is extremely difficult, often impossible, to find a new job?

IF American industry would only arouse itself to the gravity of this whole question of employment, organize a worthwhile institute of industrial coordination, collect comprehensive data, seriously seek to level out peaks and valleys of employment, organize a nationwide network of efficient machinery for connecting men with jobs, results could be achieved, results which direly need to be achieved.

Gulf Oil Production Increased 24.4%

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Gulf Oil Corporation found itself in the position during the past two years of having continually increasing oil production, even though it took every legal opportunity to curtail its production through co-operation in conservation arrangements in the different districts. This statement was made by W. L. Mellon, president of the organization, in the annual report to stockholders made public yesterday.

The increase in production to which he referred amounted to 24.4 per cent over the output of 1928. Last year the company produced 78,244,852 barrels after deducting all royalties. This was a daily average of 214,370 barrels. Just how much oil Gulf could produce if officials set their minds to it would be an interesting thing to know.

The growth in the earnings of Gulf Oil tells only part of the story. Profits have been increased in the face of low prices for products and widespread proration of output. They have been shown with all drilling costs charged to operating expenses while vast numbers of wells have not been allowed to produce at capacity.

Future Profits

WHEN the present condition of surplus production in the oil industry comes to an end Gulf will show fully the results of its policy of constantly reinvesting the bulk of its earnings in the business. Earnings in the near future may be held in check by unsatisfactory conditions within the industry but a surplus of crude and low prices are not likely to last forever.

Earnings last year were the greatest in the company's history. Net profit after deducting amortization of undeveloped lease costs, all drilling costs, depletion, depreciation, bad debts, taxes and interest was $44,489,685. This was equivalent to $9.83 a share on the 4,595,221 shares of capital stock. It compared with net of $36,325,140 or $8.06 a share in 1928 and with $13,707,627 or $3.08 a share in 1927.

No Dividend Increase

THE company pays dividends of $1.50 a share annually. This rate has been in effect since January 1, 1923. From 1914 to 1922 6 per cent annually was paid on the old $100 par stock which was split on a 12-for-1 basis into the present $25 par stock in November, 1922. The change in capitalization at that time was equivalent to a 200 per cent stock dividend with a corresponding increase in the dividend return.

With dividends earned 5.3 times in 1928 and 6.5 times in 1929, investors have been wondering when Gulf will pass along some of its increased earnings to stockholders or cut another melon. Such a step is still remote, however. Mr. Mellon, in discussing the increased production of crude said that it has been necessary to make important additions and improvements to plant facilities. "This condition of required reinvestment will continue, though to a lesser extent during the coming year, and the management believes it is prudent to continue the present policy of retaining the surplus earnings for reinvestment."

Plant Account Doubled

DURING the past six years the investment in physical properties has been doubled. At the close of 1923 properties were carried at $255,820,807. At the end of 1929 this item had reached $526,395,709. Against this reserves for depreciation and depletion of $255,876,789 have been set up.

In 1929 $79,641,000 was spent for additional plant and equipment facilities. This money was divided between the various departments as follows: Producing department, $21,855,000; pipe lines, $9,960,000; refinery at Sweetwater, Texas, and additions at Port Arthur, Philadelphia, Bayonne and New York, $29,621,000; tanker fleets, $2,440,000; service stations, $15,468,000 and general items, $297,000.

The company's funded debt amounts to only $65,414,000 against current assets of $139,257,681 and total assets of $686,722,371. Among current assets were $717,390 of the Gulf Oil Corporation's own bonds. Current liabilities amounted to only $21,509,318 but cash did not stand at a particularly high figure due to increased inventories of $82,179,829 and the large expenditures made for plants. Cash amounted to $16,231,256 against accounts payable of $18,213,049 and notes payable of $806,500.

The woman who makes her underwear at home will have beautifully fitting garments of material that really wears well. The set shown today consists of panties and bandeau, well shaped and with ample fullness. The hip band is particularly worthy of attention, as it prevents unnecessary bulging at the waist.

Crepe de chine, rayon, silk jersey, batiste or soft cottons may be used in making dainty and serviceable underthings. Favorite colors are white, flesh, pink, orchid and yellow. Many flowered fabrics are being used this season.

Designed only for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 14 requires 1⅞ yards of 39-inch material.

REGISTER MORE NEW CARS

DETROIT, March 20.—Returns from 20 states for February show a gain in new passenger car registrations of 28 per cent over January and a decrease of only 2 per cent from February, last year. There were 61,150 new cars titled in these states last month, against 47,733 in January and 62,468 in February, 1929. The biggest increase was shown by Missouri where February registrations jumped to 14,030, against 2,808 in January and 12,554 in February, last year.

Ford accounted for 41 per cent of the registrations in the 20 states last month compared with 39 per cent in January and 32 per cent in February, 1929. Chevrolet accounted for 25 per cent, against 26.5 per cent in January and 23 per cent in February, last year.

Ford registrations in these states last month totaled 25,254 passenger cars, against 18,802 in January and 20,158 in February, 1929. The increase over January was 34 per cent and over February last year 25 per cent. Chevrolet registered 16,199 passenger cars, against 12,076 in the preceding month and 14,349 a year ago, increase of 34 per cent and 13 per cent, respectively.

Excluding Ford and Chevrolet, other makes with total of 19,697 new cars titled in February, showed a gain of 17 per cent over January, but a decrease of 30 per cent from February last year.

Automobile Output Spurts in February

NEW YORK, March 20.—Domestic production of motor vehicles in February totaled 323,962 units, compared with 273,170 in January and 466,418 in February, 1929. Output for the two months was 597,132 units, against 867,455 in the like period of 1929.

FRUIT EXPORTS SHOW GAIN

WASHINGTON, March 20.—While exports of foodstuffs of most varieties from the United States last year tended to decline from the high levels reached in previous years, the commerce department finds that fresh fruits were a notable exception to the trend. Taking the total for the year 1929, it appears that the fresh fruit shipments to foreign lands set a new high record value of $69,000,000, an increase of $13,000,000 over the 1928 value, and of $9,000,000 over the previous high record of $60,000,000 of fruit exports, set in 1927.

World demand for American fruit has just about doubled in the last five years, the trade figures demonstrate. Apples are the most popular food delicacy which foreigners demand from this country, and the total value of 1929 apple exports was $33,000,000. Oranges come second, and account for $19,000,000 of the year's exports.

RED CROSS UNIT DEDICATED

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP.)—A memorial Red Cross chapter house of white marble was dedicated by President Hoover yesterday to the American women workers of the World War.

Accepting the building for the government, the President characterized the memorial as one which showed the nation's gratitude for the devotion and services of American women in the World War. At the same time, he said, it left an inspiration to women of today.

The building, erected through joint public and government contribution, stands just west of the national headquarters building of the American Red Cross, which was dedicated to the women of the Civil War.

The dedicatory exercises were simple. Gen. Pershing presided. The President spoke briefly, and was followed by Senator Fess, of Ohio, and Mrs. Hoover. Miss Mabel Boardman, secretary of the American Red Cross, unveiled the service tablet inscribed with three words: "To Commemorate Service."

Predicts Summer Boom in Wheat

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., March 20.—Dullness of the wheat market during March and April but with substantial strengthening in May, June and July was predicted by Dr. C. C. Stine, principal economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, speaking here at a resumption of the series of crop-marketing conferences for the Eastern Panhandle section.

World supplies of wheat are around 200 million bushels short of last year's supply, he said, and wheat-buying in larger quantities will probably shortly be done by Europe and the Orient.

FELL ASLEEP AT HIS POST

Watchman Was Sick But Thought He Just Had "Spring Fever."

NEWSPAPER TOLD ONLY PART OF THE STORY, FOR THE MAN WAS NOT ALTOGETHER TO BLAME.

When the newspapers told you how the watchman at a railroad crossing fell asleep and let a bus of people be smashed by a train, they told only half the story. The rest of it goes back to a long winter of huddling over the fire, with heavy foods and bad colds, until the man wasn't fit for a place requiring close attention. Mr. N. H. Nolf, of Wellsville, O., had severe headaches that oftentimes blinded him. He says: "I had to take a physic every night in order to get my bowels to move. I had to be careful what I ate as I had an ulcerated stomach and no matter what I ate my stomach would swell up with gas shortly after I finished eating."

You have felt just this way yourself in the first warm days of spring, when it seemed you just must sleep—that you couldn't keep awake. You were full of the accumulated poisons of winter confinement and winter colds and until you threw them off you had "spring fever."

Winter colds and confinement fill your system with catarrh. Its poisonous products permeate your body and dull your mind. You may suffer greatly from your stomach, or you may just be dull, heavy and sleepy. When Nature warns you this way, heed her. Start a course of treatment with World's Tonic. Help the body throw out the wastes, clear up your catarrh, and purify your blood before it is too late. World's Tonic is one of the most popular remedies for catarrh and its consequences. A bottle or two of it in the spring will help you. World's Tonic is for sale at Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other first class drug stores. (A-49)

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Hockey Scoring Records. | Firm Against Herman.
Lowrey Leads Pirates. | Cobb Hornsby's Ideal.
Jarvis Is Impressive. | Taylor Strong Card.

BUC MARKS SHOW GAME MORE OPEN

Jerry Lowrey

Hib Milks, who landed third with 22 points, might have regained his old position as scoring leader of the Bucs had he not been transferred from forward to defense in mid-season. Hib was crowding Lowrey and Darragh for the lead when moved to the backfield where he performed with great credit in a fairly successful effort to bolster a woefully weak defense. Milks earned nine assists, an indication that Manager Frank Frederickson was not unsuccessful in his endeavors to convince Hib of the value of teamwork.

BUD JARVIS, playing his first season of professional hockey, caged the puck 11 times and turned in eight assists to place fourth among the Pirate icemen with a total of 19 points. The record made by this youngster is little short of amazing, when his lack of experience in the professional division of the winter sport is taken into consideration.

Johnny MacKinnon enjoyed his best season as a Pirate. He collected 10 goals and six assists, despite the fact that he was out for several weeks with injuries. Frederickson, who finished right behind MacKinnon, was leading the entire National League in scoring when, on December 10, a severe knee injury forced him to the sidelines for the remainder of the campaign.

THAT the National Hockey League rules makers were successful in efforts to "open up" the game by legalizing forward passing in the vicinity of the enemy cage is borne out by a comparison of the individual scoring records of the Bucs in 1928-29 and in 1929-30.

In 1928-29, Lowrey led a fourth-place Pittsburgh team with 17 points; Frederickson was second with 13, and Milks was third with 12. The total for the three leaders was 42 points.

In the race just concluded, the three Pirate leaders totaled 80 points—and the club finished a poor last!

Bud Jarvis

THE 1929-30 individual scoring records of the Pittsburgh players follow:

	Goals.	Assts.	Pts.
Lowrey	16	14	30
Darragh	15	13	28
Milks	13	9	22
Jarvis	11	8	19
MacKinnon	10	6	16
Frederickson	4	7	11
Fraser	6	4	10
Manners	3	3	6
Barton	3	3	6
Smith	2	1	3
Drury	2	0	2
Spring	1	0	1

(Bert McCaffrey scored three goals and four assists as a Pirate before being traded to Les Canadiens for Gordon Fraser on December 26. Archie Briden scored four goals and three assists as a Pirate before being sold to London, Ont., on January 28. Tex White scored eight goals and one assist as a Pirate before being released on February 7. Manager Frederickson out with injuries since December 10.)

BABE HERMAN, Brooklyn's hard-hitting but erratic outfielder, concluded that he might have demanded a little too much in his original holdout price, so he sliced his terms from $25,000 to $18,000. The Dodger management declares that Herman will take $15,000 or nothing, and reports from the Robin camp indicate that if anybody gives in it will have to be the Babe.

Manager Wilbert Robinson says he has to worry all summer over the possibility that Herman be hit on the head by a fly ball, and isn't going to worry about him now. "The trouble with that Herman is that he thinks he is the only living rival of Babe Ruth," says Robbie. "Why, that guy is as much like Ruth as I am like Marilyn Miller." Robbie weighs 271 pounds and has a waist line of 58 inches.

JOE EZYK, a pal of Johnny Dunn, New Kensington boxer, thinks some local promoter ought to give Dunn a chance against Jackie Rodgers. "Can Rodgers stop Dunn?" asks Ezyk in a letter from New Kensington.

Ty Cobb

"There are many boxing fans in New Kensington who would like to see that question settled," he adds. "In their first meeting in Pittsburgh both Dunn and Rodgers were pretty wobbly in the fifth round. Last summer in New Kensington, Dunn bested Rodgers and scored a knockdown in the second round. One of the city promoters might do worse than match them again."

PITTSBURGH fans are unshakable in the opinion that Honus Wagner has never had a superior, if an equal, as a ball player, but they will listen politely while Rogers Hornsby casts his individual vote for Ty Cobb. Asked by Harry Salsinger to name the greatest player of all time, Hornsby replied: "That's easy—Ty Cobb. In my opinion, he could do more with a baseball than any two men who ever played the game. He was always several thoughts ahead of the field and could outguess any opponent. On top of all that, he was the finest competitor that baseball ever developed. There was never a man in any sport who had a greater passion for victory than Cobb. He played the game for all it was worth. He played sincerely and desperately. He was the most aggressive of men."

"COBB, as a player, set a fast pace. He naturally pulled his teammates with him. When the Detroit club was referred to as the 'Fighting Tigers' it was on acount of the aggressive leadership of Ty. You can't overestimate the value of a player of Cobb's type in a lineup. What he did on the field was an example for his mates. They tried to model their own play after his. They were naturally pulled along.

"Now, had Cobb been a passive, sluggish sort of player, Detroit never would have been known as the 'Fighting Tigers.' He hustled more than any other man in the game. He got his mates to hustle, too, and hustling teams are winners in baseball. A mediocre club that hustles and keeps playing at top speed at all times will beat a better club that doesn't hustle.

"COBB did not go well as a manager because of his passionate desire to win. A man who can't control himself naturally can't control others, and Cobb never was able to control himself. Also, he

BOWEN TO LEAD PANTHER TEAM INTO ACTION

By JESS CARVER

The makeup of the Pitt track and field team which will take part in the second annual West Virginia indoor track and field championships in the Mountaineers' field house at Morgantown Saturday has been decided upon by Coach Frank Shea of the Panthers.

Everett Utterback

Pitt is to be well represented, in point of numbers, at least. The squad detailed to carry the colors of the local institution will be led by Capt. Pete Bowen, Ed Knoblock and the Negro ace, Everette Utterback. In addition to this star trio, the following will compete: Maizze, Alberts, Jerpe, Harris, McConnell, Monheim, Connell, Herschberg, Caesar, Goodwin, Doverspike and Vitulla.

Capt. Bowen will race in both the open and Big Four 70-yard sprint events, and on both the sprint and four-fifth mile relay teams. Harris, Vitulla and Doverspike will run with him in the one-lap affair and Monheim, Harris and Doverspike over the longer distance.

Utterback is to compete in the pole vault, hurdles and the broad jump. Alberts and Jerpe are to run in the 880, with Ceasar plodding over the mile distance. Knoblock will bare his spikes in both hurdles events, and will have for a running mate, young Goodwin. Connell and McConnell will seek points in the pole vault.

DUKES IN MEET

Duquesne University will send five men to the West Virginia intercollegiates. Four track performers in addition to Capt. Joe Pesci, star mile and two-miler, will represent the Red and Blue in the sectional meet.

The Dukes have probably their largest track aggregation in the history of the school now working on the Bluff since a squad of 17 men have called for track equipment. Eight of the track men are members of the varsity football squad.

In Saturday's meet Capt. Pesci will be entered in his usual numbers, the mile and two-mile; Bill Fitzgeralds will compete in the 70-yard dash for Tri-state schools and in the 70 for freshmen; Jack Burns likewise will be in the sprints, while Nick Perrone will take care of the half mile and Ray Kemp the discus and shot put.

The roster of the Dukes' track squad is as follows: Nick Perrone, half mile; Bill Fitzgeralds, 70-yard dash; Ray Kemp, discus and shot put; Joe Ruckman, javelin and discus; Doggo Burns, sprints; John Roney, high jump and pole vault; Pete Baughman, high jump and pole vault; John Rectenwald, distances; Don Murray, distances; John Hackett, distances; Kass Kovalcheck, pole vault; Gil Schmittle, 440-yard dash; Tom Murphy, sprints; Speed Vitulla, sprints; George Chacko, sprints; Bill Smythe, distances; Hal Mehl, high jump.

The Tipoff

Bronko Nagurski, so I see, has turned pro and will play for the Chicago Bears in the National Professional Football League next fall. This means that the league will be broken up after Bronko's second game.

For Nagurski is tough. And HOW he is tough. He threw Jack Cannon out of a window at Palo Alto while training with the all-East squad and threatened to do as much for or to the rest of the ball club.

Nick Altrock Says:

BILOXI, Miss., March 20.—We are breaking up the camp here today and all rookies are polishing their mess kits for the next stand. The last three weeks we knocked off more college boys than a night club bouncer. We played 'Varsity clubs for 60 miles around and our club is now champion of the Mississippi River if it doesn't overflow too far as we break up housekeeping here. Goose Goslin has not yet signed up. Griff is willing to pay Goslin heavy dough for his hitting, but he wants a rebate every time Goose throws the ball. So far as his arm is concerned, we might as well have Venus de Milo in right field.

YESTERDAY'S EXPLANATIONS: THE HEAT OF A CANDLE CAN BE DETECTED TWO MILES—Walferdin's Thermomultiplicator has been perfected to such a fabulous degree of sensitiveness that the magnetic needle of its galvanometer will react to the body temperature of an insect placed 200 yards away. The heat of a candle burning two miles away will cause an actual deviation of the indicating needle. The improved apparatus is called a Telethermomultiplicator. It functions on the theory of thermoelectricity of currents emanating from the body of the raised temperature. JOHN HORAN WORKED CONTINUOUSLY FOR 75 YEARS—Horan first was employed by the C. M. St. P. & P. R. R., in April, 1885, when he was 17 years old. He was 92 years old in January, 1930, and at present is a boiler inspector for the same road in the Milwaukee shops and works six days every week.

TOMORROW—THE MAN WHO MARRIED THE BIBLE.

TRAYNOR'S EYE AFFLICTION SERIOUS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE, Staff Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—More than a sprinkling of gloom hung upon the Pirate camp today when it became known definitely that Capt. Pie Traynor was lost to the club for at least three weeks or perhaps until the very beginning of the championship season. Traynor's eye trouble has taken a serious turn and after consulting with several local specialists, Traynor will undergo the extraction of two of his biggest teeth in the hope of removing the cause of his present woes.

The Pirate physicians yesterday became suspicious of the condition of Traynor's left optic, which had been inflamed for several days. Accordingly he was taken to two local specialists, who designated the ailment as iritis. The specialists then instructed Traynor to consult with a nose and throat man, as well as to have his teeth X-rayed. The developed plates showed two infected molars, and these are to be yanked this morning.

ENS PHILOSOPHICAL

Manager Ens received the news in a philosophical manner.

"It seems too bad," said Jewel, "but it is much better to have it

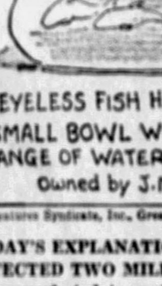
ROOKIE'S LOT TOUGH—RUTH

By BABE RUTH

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 20.—Baseball is a lot like golf in many ways. What I mean is that over-pressing and trying too hard in baseball leads to the same sort of trouble it does in golf. You dub your shot, or miss your strike, depending on the game.



Babe Ruth

I was talking to Lee Craig and Floyd Van Pelt, a couple of our young pitchers, the other day. Both of them have sore arms and both were worried to death for fear they'd be shipped away before they had a chance to show what they could do. And anything I could say wouldn't do any good, either.

As a matter of fact, two-thirds of the sore arms in baseball camps every spring are due to the fact that young fellows are too ambitious to show their stuff. Watch some kid hurrying through his training some time and then see how slowly and deliberately the old-timer works into shape, and you have the answer to most of the sore arms and charley horses.

DUSTY COOKE'S CASE

I was talking to Dusty Cooke about that very thing a few days ago. Dusty came to the Yankees this year from St. Paul with a whale of a reputation as an outfielder. Every one who saw him said he is of real big league caliber right now, ready to step into a regular job. And, personally, I think he is. But just the same he has had many a bump this year, believe me.

He hasn't been able to hit and he hasn't been able to field and all because he tries too hard. He

Three Captains Are Named at West Virginia

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., March 20.—(AP.)—Three West Virginia University winter sport captains were named here last night at the annual winter sports banquet given by the Mountaineer athletic department.

LOCAL GOLFERS PLAY TODAY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 20.—With Frank Bannerot, Jr., Steel City amateur, and Dave McKay, pro at the Pittsburgh Field Club, among those participating, more than 150 professional and amateur golfers, teed off this morning in the $15,000 Lo Gorce open tournament here. Horton Smith, of Cragston, N. Y., winner of the event last year, is playing in defense of his laurels.

Among other prominent pro golfers who are also stroking their way around the course are Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour and Cyril Walker, all former National open titleholders. Farrell won this event in 1928 when he came home with a record-breaking score to nose out the field.

Today's play is a 36-hole qualifying test, the first 64 players to continue in the tournament proper, which consists of 36 holes tomorrow and the final 36 holes on Saturday.

PROS AND 'AMS' BOX TONIGHT

Professional boxers share the spotlight with amateurs in the Pittsburgh district tonight as the McKeesport Club stages its weekly professional card and the striking taxicab drivers' fund puts on an amateur show in the upstairs arena of Duquesne Garden, where Joey Goodman and Eddie Brannon tossed leather last night.

Freddie Edwards

Lawrence Lyons

Heavyweights, Harry Williams, Negro, of the North Side, and Chuck Burns, a rugged veteran, of Akron, O., box the windup at McKeesport. Burns has fought Young Stribling several times and other topnotchers and ought to give the clever Williams a good battle.

Teddy Welch, of McKeesport, and Freddie Edwards, of Huntington, W. Va., welterweights, box the semi-final; Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, and Casey Hayes, Negro, of Homestead, also welters, are in the second bout and Kenny Davis, of East Liverpool, O., and Al Farone, of Pittsburgh, junior-lightweights, are in the opener.

Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

NO. 15—FOY FRANCIS FRAZIER, OUTFIELDER

Every now and then there flashes onto the kaleidoscopic screen of baseball a ball hawk who just naturally knows how to "go and get that there ball" when it leaves the bat. George Sisler, was one of these, so were Frankie Frisch, Eddie Collins and quite a few others who did not even see a minor league game, yet were able to sparkle in the majors.

In Foy Francis Frazier, of Fresno, Cal., the Buccos may have picked up one of these "phenoms." Joe Devine's new nugget at first blush is a reminder of Sisler, the brilliant Barberton (O.) youth, who set a new style in neatness and dispatch after he left college to become a big leaguer.

Frazier has had a smattering of first-base play, but his forte would seem to be in the outfield, where he has the case of a Speaker, if not the dash. At present, he does not put the sparkle into his actions in such a degree as was evidenced in Speaker, yet Foy Francis is one of those "get-out-and-get-under" outfielders.

Foy Frazier

Without ever having played a major league game, Frazier does something right now that smacks of the big show. When a drive is hit far over his head he sets sail for the fence with his back toward the diamond a la Tommy Leach. The intuition of these exceptional judges of lofts and liner tells them when to turn and therefore they are able to make a comparatively easy catch of a drive which would necessitate a dive and other fireworks on the part of those players who are poor judges of batted balls.

Frazier's likeness to Sisler is marked in both physique and the lefthanded action. Both operate entirely on a lefthand drive and they are of practically the same height and weight. Foy has had some minor league experience, but he is only 21.

The young man was in high school and was just a boy when one of the Oakland (Cal.) agents coaxed him into a Pacific Coast League uniform. So Foy Francis put thumbs down on the school stuff, even as hundreds of other lads have done under similar circumstances. The Oaks farmed him out to Ogden, where he batted something like .380. Of course, he was recalled, but he was so young that he sat on the bench most of the time.

Meantime, Sleuth Joe had got a load of Frazier and the flavor lasted. There was just once place for the lad and that was in a Pirate uniform at Paso Robles. This procedure involved a lot of negotiations, but eventually the arrangements were complete, so Foy came over the mountains in the covered wagon to see what the big leaguers looked like.

Modest, the lad walked up to the plate with as much poise and grace as a Sisler. He immediately started to sting the ball and Manager Ens and the others put off what they were doing to look on. Foy never has been in the East, but he may cross the Great Divide in a month or so. Even if the Pirates cannot use him they will farm him out to a Class A, or better team, accompanied by a stout Pittsburgh lien.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

GOODMAN STOPS BRANNON IN TENTH ROUND

GARDEN FINISH THRILLER FOR FANS

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor.

In as blazing a finish to a battle as ever has been staged in a local ring, Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, one of the world's leading lightweight boxers, last night technically knocked out Eddie Brannon, young Negro, of the Hill, only recently graduated from the preliminary ranks, in the tenth and scheduled last round of the windup bout in the upstairs hall of Duquesne Garden. A near-capacity crowd was thrown into a state bordering on hysteria as Goodman, after softening up Brannon throughout the first nine rounds, put on a dramatic "kill" scene during the 1 minute and 10 seconds of the final frame.

Goodman had Brannon on the floor four times and sitting helpless on the ropes once in those 70 fleeting seconds. Three of the four times he hit the canvas Eddie was knocked down. The other time he went down from sheer weakness as Goodman crowded into him. The end came when Referee Joe Keally called a halt upon orders from Boxing Commissioner Havey J. Boyle. Brannon's seconds tossing in the towel at the same time.

EDDIE GAME AND TOUGH

Instead of being humiliated or losing prestige in defeat, Brannon came out of the battle a better rated fighter than when he climbed through the ropes. He drew murmurs of appreciation from the crowd as he stood up under the cruel drubbing until the final round, conceding weight, experience and hitting strength to his opponent and proving almost invulnerable to punishment round after round until the thrilling final session. Goodman raked him fore and aft with left hooks and right crosses and pounded his body at will in the clinches, only to find the very dark, scowling-faced Negro lad fighting back in slashing fashion at every opportunity. Every round went to Goodman, but he seemed to make little impression on Brannon, although the solidity of his punching was apparent from the manner in which the blows went home with thudding impact.

The punch that started Brannon on his way to the knockout was a hard right that landed on the top of his head, jarring him badly, just as the ninth round ended. Goodman rushed him to start the tenth and crossed a right and followed with a left to the head that dropped Brannon for the first time in the fight. Eddie was dazed and got up groggy at the count of six. Goodman, cool but relentless in his desire for the "kill," dashed across the ring from a corner as Brannon regained his feet and dropped him again, this time with a right in midring. Brannon took seven and got up, still dazed, and Joey rushed him and sent him reeling into the ropes, where he took a sitting position while the referee waved back Goodman and helped Eddie steady himself. As Goodman followed Brannon across the ring the latter fell from the weight of Joey's body. By this time Commissioner Boyle was trying to attract the referee's attention to have him stop the fight, but Keally did not hear him and it was not until Goodman backed Brannon into the ropes and dropped him with another right that the official interceded and the towel came fluttering simultaneously into the ring.

WARD BEATS PROFIO

The bout developed Goodman's second knockout victory in three starts here, the other having been against Henry Perlick, of Kalamazoo, Mich., in his local debut at Motor Square Garden last fall. In his second appearance in Pittsburgh, Joey decisively defeated Maxie Strub, of Erie, at the Moose Temple. Goodman weighed 138 pounds and Brannon 136 at 3 p. m. yesterday.

Tommy Ward, of the South Side, upset the dope by handing Dominick Profio, one-time knockout hitter, of Cecil, but now a punch-shattered, hollow shell of his former self, a boxing lesson in the six-round semi-final. Ward tired early from staving off Profio's crowding attack and went down for a count of nine in the third round, but boxed headily and easily overcame this handicap. He had Profio out on his feet in the last round. Judge Jim McLaughlin, of Braddock, voted for Profio, but the other judge, Frank Brown, and Referee Keally, properly gave the verdict to Ward. Profio weighed 147½ pounds and Ward 145.

NANCI WINS, BUT DOESN'T

Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, 123½ pounds, received the unanimous decision of the judges and the referee over Young Nanci, of Swissvale, 121, in the second bout, but didn't deserve it. This was one time that Nanci outfought him, Tony's body punching more than offsetting his old rival's long-range boxing.

Jimmy Thomas, Negro, of the Hill, 117¾ pounds, knocked out Georgie Evans, of North Braddock, 112, in the first round of the opening bout. A right to the jaw spelled Evans' doom after 2 minutes 1 second.

Battling Gizzy and Andy Andrucci have been matched for the main bout at the Garden next Wednesday night. The latter was introduced before the main bout last night.

Hyatts May Meet World Series Winner

Judging from the showing of the Hyatt All-Stars in their game with the Goldensons last night in the South Side Market House, they will be a tough problem for almost any team. It is likely that the winner of the Rosenblum and Rochester world series, starting tonight in Rochester, will be brought here next Thursday to play the Hyatt All-Stars.

Campus Comment

By KNUTE ROCKNE
Member All-America Board of Football

Yale, the Eastern Intercollegiate hockey champion, by having defeated Marquette and Toronto, the Canadian champ, will have to be awarded the mythical national crown.

Knute Rockne.

The Big Ten honors go to the University of Michigan by virtue of its last 1-to-0 victory over a strong University of Wisconsin team.

Marquette, coached by Kay Iverson, won the Mid-western title for the third time, defeating, among others, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan State.

In order to prove that hockey in the Mid-west is on a par with that of the East, Marquette played a three-game series in the East this year, overwhelming the Army, and defeating Harvard, but dropping the third game to Yale in a bitterly-fought contest.

The two Macks, McFayden and MacKenzie, proved that they were equal to anything in the Eastern circuit. The two outstanding men on the Yale team are Palmer and Luce.

Collegiate hockey is gaining in popularity every year. It is a remarkably fast game and a few of the college stars are equal to the pros in skill. While quite a few of the American college teams are bolstered up by Canadian-born boys who have come to American schools for their education, yet the majority of the lads on these American teams are Americans who have learned to play hockey here. The Yale team, for instance, is composed entirely of American players.

At this rate, Canada, which used to have a monopoly on hockey, will have to share honors with us in the very near future.

Between Rounds

So heavy has been the advance sale for the Jackie Rodgers-Heine Hart show at Motor square Garden next Monday night that the club will not accept any more telephone orders for $1 reserved seat tickets. They will continue to be sold at the box office, however, day and night, until the supply is exhausted, only 1,000 being held back for the night of the show. Patrons who have weekly reservations are requested to pick them up before Monday, if possible, to avoid a jam at the reservation window at show time.

The card for Monday night's show has been completed. Jimmy Thomas, of the Hill, meets Young Nanci, of Swissvale, in the opening bout; Johnny Dunn, of New Kensington, boxes Jesse Duke, of Clearfield, Pa., in the second bout, and Bobby Young, of Duquesne, and Young Corsey, of Canton, O., are in the eight-round semi-final. Hart is due to arrive here tomorrow morning and will work out in Flynn's gym. Rodgers gets back from Chicago, where he is training, Saturday morning.

Paul Ballist, of the North Side, has been substituted for Mickey Hart, of New Kensington, as Frankie Lantz's opponent in the opening bout of the Buck McTiernan-Johnny Pisl card at the Moose Temple tomorrow night. Billy Scholes and Peaches Gallagher meet again in the second bout and Cowboy DeLora and Blake Roberts, in the semi-final, round out an exceptional bill. Willie Davies and Franklin Young, Negro flyweight of Detroit, box a return bout in the windup at the Moose Club Friday night of next week. Young gave Willie a good battle at Motor Square Garden last fall.

Johnny Mellow, lightweight, and Billy Shaw, featherweight, of Detroit, both worked out in Flynn's gym yesterday. They hope to box here in the near future, Mellow against Tony Herrera or Joey Goodman and Shaw against Jackie Rodgers. Shaw holds a victory over Archie Bell, Rodgers' original opponent for next Monday night.

The boxing club at Duquesne Garden will move from the upstairs hall to the downstairs auditorium with its show of April 7, the close of the ice-skating season having been advanced from April 12 to Saturday night of next week to permit of this change.

Joe Fox, Charleroi lightweight, would like to box Billy Scholes, Peaches Gallagher or Frankie Portland. He is under the management of Mike Ray, of the Hill.

The second annual championship tournament of the Boys' Club of Pittsburgh gets under way in the club quarters, 4413 Butler street, tonight and will be concluded tomorrow night.

Y. M. H. A. NINE OUT TO COP IN CENTRAL

COHEN SIGNS SLAB STAR IN ROSENTHAL

By TOM BIRKS.

Feeling that the competition in the Pittsburgh Central League is going to be keen, Manager Cohen of the Y. M. H. A. aggregation has started in search of talent to give Fintex, Roosevelt, Etna Furnitures, Allegheny Collegians, the Cosletts, Soho Board of Trade and the other contenders a chase for honors. The first move Cohen made was to sign Mark Rosenthal, former star twirler of the W. O. W. team, Central League and Greater Pittsburgh titlists. Rosenthal, one of the best curve-ball pitchers who worked on local sand lots last season, won eight in a row for Mike Jedinak's club.

Mark Rosenthal

HAS SLOW BALL

Rosy throws a tantalizing slow ball up to the batter that has the boys breaking their backs to hit. He should go well with the Bellefield aggregation in Honus Wagner's loop.

Then to back up Rosenthal we find Sammy Smith, formerly of Oil City; Sanford Baer, from the Three-Eye League; Johnny Cohen, of the Eastern League; Sammy Pratt, Duquesne University star; Dave Wilder, Lou Aiman, back from the Pacific Coast, and Allison, a prep school star. With that array of talent it is an assured fact Y. M. H. A. will have a banner season. Many fans feel the Central will be much faster this season. Last season it was a six-club league, and this season we find Honus Wagner has eight well-balanced clubs fighting for the title.

Bunts

The Slow City League will hold its final meeting at the Honus Wagner's tomorrow evening. Thirteen clubs posted forfeits for the eastern and western sections of this favorite loop, and they is reason to feel it will be the greatest light fast class of ball ever sponsored in Pittsburgh. One club is headed to round out the league. Manager Shmoll be on hand if they have a team in this class. St. Joachim posted a forfeit and this is one combination, headed by that sportsman, Father Kunkle, that we is back to defeat.

The Central and West Penn League had basket meetings during the week. The West Penn closed with two clubs trying for a berth, but the managers did not seem to be eager for a 10 club league. Eleven clubs lined up for the Central, which has become one of the most popular sandlot leagues in the district. The rules were passed by both organizations and delegates of the West Penn Association will work the games.

Despite the fact Baltimore of the Colony League was classed as a nonentity, rumors are going the rounds that Bill Hitz and his club will be back again and playing on a new field along Saw Mill Run. In fact, the Hitzmen are holding a minstrel show, the profits to be used like a baseball team. It is stated that the new playing field will be finished in six weeks and that it will be bigger than McKinley Park.

W. VA. TOURNEY UNDER WAY

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 20.—Two preliminary games will open the seventeenth annual West Virginia scholastic tournament here this afternoon, with Rowlesburg, champion of the Kingwood section, meeting Charleston, coached by Big Sleepy Glenn, former West Virginia University ace.

In the other preliminary contest, Hinton will meet Elkins, runner-up in last year's tournament. Elkins is the favorite to crash through the first preliminary and will meet Wheeling, last year's titleholder. Charleston is favored to defeat Rowlesburg.

Tonight West Virginia Wesleyan and Salem College will ring down the curtain on collegiate basketball in West Virginia as the two old rivals meet on the Bobcat court. Salem won the first game at Salem, 38 to 30.

Tomorrow morning the tourney will swing into full action. Twelve games are on the card for the day.

Sport Vignettes

Every once in a while a pitcher who was a howling success in the top minor leagues comes up to the majors and hangs on for several seasons with indifferent success and then slips back to the bushes and resumes his winning ways and is brought back by another big league club and slumps again and once more returns to the Class AA or Class A circuits and carries on for years, and the fans wonder why it is he can win in fast minor league company, but doesn't make the riffle "up there" . . . In many cases it is because he doesn't get a chance to work often enough in the big show. . . . Some hurlers are horses for work and are at their best when called upon to pitch every third day and perhaps jump into the breach and rescue a faltering brother on odd days . . . They have to do that in the minors, where the rosters aren't so big and every man has to earn his hire . . . In the majors, though, a pitcher has to be an ace to be called on every third or fourth day and the others while away much of their time and effectiveness in the bull pen . . . Imagine a pitcher like Burleigh Grimes getting by if he were called upon only two or three times in a fortnight. . . . He wouldn't be able to stand the inactivity . . . He keeps fit by working hard . . . A lot of other fellows would develop more rapidly if permitted to go in there and bear down oftener, but they are doomed to be second runners . . . Sometimes it is because the manager lacks confidence in them and doesn't hesitate to tell them so. . . . For their own good, these slabsters would be better off back in the minors, where they would get a chance to do their stuff regularly. . . . Smaller pitching staffs all the way 'round probably would mean more effective staffs. . . . A case in point was the four-men aggregation of the Boston Braves, back in 1914. . . . It included Lefty Tyler, Tom Hughes, Big Bill James and Little Dick Rudolph. . . . Working in their regular turn, they were sensations and brought their club from last place in July to the pennant in October and then crushed the mighty Philadelphia Athletics four straight in the world series, breaking the hearts of the Mackmen and causing that machine to be rent asunder. . . . Nothing so dulls a blade in any line as inactivity or lack of opportunity . . . There's food there for plenty of thought on the part of the big league moguls . . . This is confidential: Mickey Solomen, of New Castle (he's spelling his name that way now instead of Solmen, as before) is going to take time out and rest up and put on some weight so he will be able to box his old rival, Buck McTiernan, at 160 pounds. . . . Buck stopped him once and he stopped Buck when both were welterweights, and, now that Buck is back in the ring as a middleweight and Mickey scales only 155 pounds, the latter is not going to get a lucrative return match go to waste because of a few pounds. . . . He'll be ready for Buckolinus, the Lion of Swissvale, by the time the apple of Bunny Buntach's right eye gets a few bouts under his belt, in addition to the one tomorrow night with Johnny Pial at the Moose Temple.—HARRY KECK.

COACH PETE COLLODI

Pete Collodi's crack Duquesne University Preps are in Chicago to take part in the National Catholic High School basketball tournament, an annual event sponsored by Loyola University.

The Duke Preps finished in the runner-up position in the recent State Catholic tourney held by Duquesne University and won by Altoona Catholic High.

N. KENSINGTON, SHARON PLAY TOMORROW

It is a very rare occasion indeed when Sharon doesn't have a basketball team tied up with some championship or other. For the past four years championships have been to Sharon as cooties are to a hound, the relationship being well-night touching.

Tomorrow night, at Grove City, the Mercer countians will go after their fourth consecutive Northwestern Pennsylvania title and as many straight victories over W. P. I. A. L. champions by meeting the doughty New Kensington team. The winner of this contest will play in Pittsburgh next Tuesday against Lewistown, the team that won the District 5-6 playoff last night, for the right to play in the final of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association tourney March 29, either here or in Philadelphia.

HOLD 11 TITLES

In the past four years Sharon has won no less than 11 basketball championships, although they have yet to annex a state title. That is a lot of titles in any language, even the Scandinavian. They'll make it an even dozen by winning tomorrow's game, a contest in which they are bound to be money-from-home favorites.

Four members of the team that reached the final round of the state tourney last year are back in harness for Coach Dickerson.

CATHOLIC TOURNEY OPENS

The national Catholic High School tournament, an annual event put on each year by Loyola University of Chicago, broke into the limelight yesterday in the Windy City (I love that crack) with two Pennsylvania teams entered, the Duquesne University Preps of Pittsburgh and Catholic High of Altoona. Catholic High of Decatur, Ind., yesterday beat the Altoonas, 21-16, who won the state title here two weeks ago, coming through the grueling Catholic tourney sponsored by Duquesne University.

The local Preps wound up in the runner-up position. They meet Shawnee School, of Oklahoma, in the first round this afternoon.

SAINTS OPEN PLAY

The annual St. Francis College scholastic basketball tourney got started today with a group of 24 schools entered, a record entry list for the four-year-old event. The tourney will be completed with the playing of the finals Saturday night.

Thirty-two teams will fight it out for in the annual Waynesburg College invitation tourney, scheduled to begin on the Armory floor in Waynesburg today. The draw and pairings follow:

Rockne to Speak Tonight in Philly

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—(INS.)—Knute Rockne, famed coach of the Notre Dame football eleven, will make his first public appearance since his illness of last fall when he speaks to the guests of the seventh annual varsity "P" banquet given by the University of Pennsylvania tonight. An audience of at least 700, including 179 Penn athletes who have won the coveted letter, will listen to the famous coach.

Other speakers will include Glenn Thistlewaite, of the University of Wisconsin.

The lineup in the first round of play will find Washington Irving, of Clarksburg, vs. Elkhorn; Magnolia, of New Martinsville, vs. Ceredo Kenova, Keyser vs. Parkersburg, and Williamson to meet the winners of the Rowlesburg-Charleston clash. This completes the morning session.

In the afternoon Wheeling, twice state titleholder, will play the winner of the Elkins-Hinton game, while Shinnston meets Oak Hill, Cairo plays Montgomery, and Hundred tackles Beaver, of Bluefield.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., March 20.—(AP.)—Lower Merion High School and John Harris High (of Harrisburg) basketball teams will meet in the University of Pennsylvania Palestra at Philadelphia Monday night, March 24, to decide the Eastern championship of Pennsylvania.

TRAYNOR OUT THREE WEEKS

If everything goes aright, the brilliant player will be able to go to his post three weeks from next Tuesday, yet the very thought of Pie being on the bench makes Pirate supporters shudder, especially when one ponders what happened to the team when he left the lineup last year.

Traynor developed the trouble during the last few days of the Paso Robles training. Pie has since worn dark glasses. It was believed he was getting mi. relief, but yesterday the eye took a decided turn for the worse and the Pittsburgh physicians decided it best to do something at once.

In the event that the extraction of the teeth proves an aid to his condition, it was stated that Traynor might be able to return to a uniform in time to get into shape again for the bell.

Traynor was in fine trim just before he ran afoul of the latest bit of misfortune.

MISSIONS DRUBBED

Skipper Ens and his players otherwise felt good today on top of a pasting they handed the Mission Reds yesterday. It was the first Pirate victory of the season, but the Pittsburghers certainly made the triumph emphatic, they winning by 12 to 1.

Native sons were heroes in the success of the Freebooters, Larry French worked five hitless and runless rounds and in a general way gave his local friends and Pirate pals much to talk about. Gussie (Goose) Suhr connected for a homer that had all the earmarks of a dirty dig at his former buddies. Suhr drove the ball over fences and rooftops by way of the right field area.

Glenn Spencer hurled the four-inning distance after French had retired, and, while Spencer was not so fortunate as his left-handed pal, he had so much on the rocket that the home boys could muster only four hits. The Pirates rammed the home sharpshooters for a dozen blows. Dick Bartell was head and heels in the battle again with four runs and some more nifty shortstop action.

The same boys who were strutting their home-run stuff yesterday were tamed completely by the southpaw. Fuzzy Hufft, the fourteenth club swinger and a lefthand batter, was grazed on the shirt by an inside pitch and thus received a passport to the gateway post. In the same round French issued a pass, but no other batters were able to get beyond the home plate. The Buccos clinched the battle in the second by scoring four runs. Rolly Hemsley's fine double was the swaying force in the inning.

Ens said this morning that Remy Kremer and Steve Swetonic would be on the mound this afternoon in the finale with the Missions. The Pirates are due to open with the Seals tomorrow.

knows it, too.

"The trouble with me is too much publicity," he told me the other day.

All the newspaper fellows wrote about me during the winter and when I came into camp I had a big reputation to live up to. And it can't be done. I go out there and try as hard as I can and the harder I try the tougher time I seem to have."

AND TONY LAZZERI'S

It all goes to show that too much publicity is a bad thing—particularly for the kid player. I remember when Tony Lazzeri broke in. He had been advertised for a couple of years before he reported and then when he came into camp and didn't start hitting home runs the first day out everybody said he was a bust. Tony is a thin-skinned kid, too, and those stories hurt him a lot. He was a good ball player from the go, but he began to believe himself that he was a flop. And I always have believed and always will believe that if Tony hadn't got steamed up over a run-in with an umpire he would have been a disappointment. That argument got him fighting mad and he began to play real baseball. But up to the time of the argument he was just so-so and had begun to lose heart.

I don't know any tougher job in the world than being a rookie trying to break into the big leagues. The average kid knows that he has about two weeks in which to make or break himself. He knows that if he doesn't show something in those two weeks he's licked, yet he knows, too, that if he does bear down too much he's likely to hurt himself permanently. He's sort of between the devil and the deep blue ocean, and it takes plenty of guts to fight the thing through. People talk about competition being tough in a lot of jobs, but, believe me, there is none where it is tougher than in baseball. Stop to figure the thing out.

Every spring 500 new men come down to training camps for big league tryouts. Out of those 500 there are not more than 30 who stick around—and of those 30 there are not more than 10 each year who actually make good and step in as regulars. In other words, baseball has a spot for about one man in every 25 who come up—and for every man who gets a tryout there are 200 men down in the minors and in semi-pro clubs who never even get a chance.

COFFEYS BACK TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

Coffey Club Night will be celebrated at the Young Men's Hebrew Association tonight when the members of that famous organization, for years one of the greatest professional teams in this section of the country, clash with the Y. M. H. A. West Penn League quintet. The contest is a benefit affair, the entire proceeds going toward outfitting the Y baseball team of the Pittsburgh Central League.

Moy Marks

The contest tonight marks the first appearance of the Coffey club since the disruption of the team more than six years ago.

EXPECT BIG CROWD

Many of the old Coffey club favorites will be back in the lineup against the Y passers, among them being Harry (Cutsey) Levine, former University of Pittsburgh basketball captain, whose J. J. Verona club clinched the second half County League title Tuesday night; Moy Marks, rated one of the best guards in professional basketball years ago; Barkets Sandomire, Buck Gefsky, Bill Miller, Gimp Golomb, Dave Mervis and Dr. John Pearlman. Of this group only one still is actively engaged in the popular winter indoor sport, Miller playing regularly for the J. J. Veronas in the County League.

The contest should attract a capacity crowd, inasmuch as the members of the institution are eager to support the baseball club.

The family of Rubenstein boys, who recently defeated the Barmen family on the "Y" floor, will be out tonight to make another conquest when it meets the Levinson family in the preliminary to the main attraction. This game also has stirred up considerable interest, and as rivalry between the two families is keen, a hard-fought battle is promised their respective supporters.

Saturday night marks the opening of the Catholic Lyceum League playoffs, St. John's appearing at St. Joseph's in the inaugural St. Joseph's won the first half and St. John's the second.

Charley Hyatt's All-Star quint easily defeated the Goldensons, of the County League, 45 to 25, in the Duke gym, last night.

Sharpsburg Y set down St. Michael's, 36-22, in the Greater Pittsburgh League, and Community House tripped Y. M. H. A., 39-28, in the A. A. U. tourney.

MRS. D. C. HURD — MISS HELEN HICKS

expected too much of his players. He wanted them to do the things he did. If everybody could do the things he did he would not have been Cobb. He would just have been an ordinary ball player.

"Cobb became my great idol when I was a kid and after all these years I have not lost a fraction of the admiration I then had for him. I can't imagine Cobb's ever having any equal in baseball. I don't see how there can ever be another. He was just one of those 'once in history' fellows."

Bud Taylor

BUD TAYLOR, who meets Battling Battalino, world featherweight champion, in a non-title bout at Detroit tonight, has made quite a record as a drawing card in his more than 10 years of professional fighting. He has fought before capacity crowds in the country's largest indoor arenas 17 times, these bouts drawing a total of $748,000. In New York Taylor drew $62,000 and $53,000 in two bouts with Al Singer, $53,000 and $51,000 with Tony Canzoneri, and $44,000 with Frankie Jerome; in Chicago, $63,000 with Canzoneri, $57,000 with Frankie Genaro, $57,000 and $49,000 with Earl Mastro and $47,000 with Eddie Shea; in Vernon, $34,000, $33,000 and $29,000 with Jimmy McLarnin; in Los Angeles, $34,000 in each of two bouts with Joey Sangor; in Milwaukee, $27,000 with Pancho Villa, and in San Francisco, $19,000 with Santiago Zorilla. With all due credit to his opponents on these occasions, it must be said that few little fighters have ever shown Taylor's drawing power with the same consistency. The club fighters have the call.

SHIRES TO ASK WHITE SOX FOR RELEASE

DALLAS, Tex., March 20.—(AP.)—Declaring he was "sick of being bulldozed" by Charles Comiskey, Chicago White Sox owner, Art Shires, erstwhile first baseman, has announced that he never again will play with the team.

In a telephone conversation last night from his home in Italy, Tex., "Art the Great" admitted he had received a telegram from Comiskey asking him "while participating in the fight ring, who suspended you and who produced the evidence that caused the reinstatement?"

"The boxing commissions have records of this," Shires declared, "but I'm not a bureau of information for Comiskey or anyone else. If Comiskey wants to know anything about the fight racket, let him go to the boxing commissions. They have all the dope. I wasn't guilty of any wrongdoing."

He said he was going to ask the White Sox to place him on the voluntarily retired list, then planned to proceed with other plans, probably to play semi-pro ball in which he believed he could make more money than the Chicago Club offered him.

Australian Mermaid Betters World Mark

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 20.—(AP.)—The Australian girl Olympic swimmer, Bonnie Mealing, swam 150 yards backstroke today in 1 minute 57 second in a 50-yard tank. She bettered by one second the world record of Ellen King, made at the English championships in August, 1928. Her effort was only a trial, her official attempt being planned for March 27.

HOCKEY TITLE SERIES OPENS TONIGHT

The National Hockey League's anual play-offs for the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the world ice championship, will get under way tonight in Montreal, Chicago and Ottawa.

The Boston Bruins, defending world champs and titleholders in the American group, are to invade Montreal to meet the Maroons, Internatnonal Group champions, in the first of a five game series. The Chicago Hawks, American Group second-placers, will be hosts to Les Canadiens, of Montreal, International Group runner-up, and in the duel between third-placers the Ottawa Senators, of the International Group, will entertain the New York Rangers, of the American Group.

The series involving the group winners is to be decided on a three-games-out-of-five basis. The second game of this series also will be played in Montreal, on Saturday, after which the action will be transferred to Boston.

The competitions between the second and third-place teams is of two games each, total goals in the two games to decide the winner.

Frank Frederickson, manager of the Pirates, arrived here from New York this morningy and left for his home in Winnipeg, Manitoba, this afternoon. Freddie, accompanied by his wife, is motoring to Canada. He plans to witness the American Association title series, opening next Wednesday, and hopes to be able to find one or more stars to add to the Pirates' 1930-31 squad.

While in New York, Frederickson held another conference with Benny Leonard, owner of the local club. The Bucco boss said that indications are that the team will return here next season and that he again will be at the helm.

POLICE GUARD GREGALACH

LONDON, March 20.—(AP.)—The amazing train of events which has marked the preparations for the Grand National steeplechase, to be run at Aintree, March 28, have reached their culmination in police protection for Gregalach, last year's winner and former favorite, which now is fourth in the betting.

Due to rumors of foul play and a poor showing in a trial race Saturday, Mrs. M. A. Gemmell, Gregalach's owner, invoked police protection and the horse now is guarded day and night. Gregalach had three hours of exercise yesterday, watched by Mrs. Gemmell, who will make the final decision as to his fitness to run, and seemed to move easily and freely.

Easter Hero, former co-favorite, now third in the betting due to a strained tendon, is out of the veterinary's hands after having received violet ray treatments. He has resumed full training, but it is doubtful whether he will be in true form for the race.

WESTINGHOUSE WINS

The Westinghouse Club won the championship of the Greater Pittsburgh Industrial League last night when the Wilkinsburg passers defeated Heinz House in the final battle of the series, 47-29. The game was played on the Taylor Allderdice High floor. Stark was the big star with 10 field goals.

HAUNTED HOUSE PLEA IN THEFT

The four were playing tag on the second floor they said, when police arrived and arrested them. Two younger boys were released.

D. H. Thompson, representing Eugene S. Reilly & Co., agents for the property, testified the house had been stripped of lead pipes and balustrade railings knocked down.

The boys denied damaging the house. They were held over by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones. All aged 17, they gave their names as Walter Rapp, 234 Taylor street; William Lever, 235 Taylor street; Steve Russell, 605 Gross street, and John Pirozzi, 4629 Torley street.

BANDIT KILLED IN HOLDUP

NEW YORK, March 20.—(AP)—An attempt by three masked men to hold up a Greenwich Village restaurant shortly before midnight resulted in the killing of one of the robbers, the capture of another after patrons had beaten him severely, and the wounding of a man and a woman.

A man identified as Alfred Marino was killed by a policeman who surprised the robbers in the act of searching 20 patrons in Charlie's Triangle Restaurant in Carmine street.

The robber captured was identified as Thomas Richione. Police found him bound on the floor of the restaurant severely beaten about the head and face.

FILIPINO REDS FACING BAN

MANILA, March 20.—(AP)—Extensive activities of Communists in the Philippines was revealed today by the request of Gen. C. E. Nathorst, chief of the constabulary, to Gov. Gen. Davis that Proletarian Labor congresses be denied the use of mails throughout the islands.

The boycott of American goods, spread of communistic doctrines among the ignorant masses of the islands and the active participation of Communists in the recent school strike here, were among the activities on which the request was made.

Gen. Nathorst's request was made March 8, but was not made public until today. At the same time it was learned that the boycott against cigarets of American manufacture, recently instituted in Manila, had spread to the provinces, notably Albay and Laguna.

STOCK SWINDLE SUSPECT HELD

A former broker's employe, Edward Horne, 24, of 3724 East street, was being held today on a suspicious person charge while police investigated a woman's accusation that Horne had swindled her out of $500.

The woman, Mrs. Gertrude Dailey, of 2443 Brighton road, told detectives that she had bought 25 shares of stock for $600. Later, she said, Horne called at her home and offered her 25 share of the same stock for $500, telling her that a friend needed the money and was willing to sell at that price. She gave Horne a check for $500, she said, but never received the securities.

Detectives learned that Horne had been discharged by the brokerage firm for which he had worked.

RANSOM DOUBT SLOWS RESCUE

EL PASO, Tex., March 20.—(AP)—Rescue plans for J. E. Bristow, 60-year-old American oil operator, reported held for ransom by bandits near Mazatlan, Mexico, today awaited a definite determination of the amount of money sought by the kidnapers.

Word from the scene of the kidnaping has stated that sums of 3,000 and 10,000 pesos were demanded. American Vice Consul Eaton, at Mazatlan, has gone to Tepic, Nayarit, Mexico, to definitely determine the amount of ransom sought.

Gordon Obie Bristow, of San Angelo, Tex., son of the prisoner, arrived here by airplane today. He expects to take the money to the bandits.

MRS. EDNA C. STILES

DENIES DESLYS KIN CLAIM

PEORIA, Ill., March 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Marguerite Palmer, of Peoria, who claimed to have been an intimate friend of the late Gaby Deslys, dancer, denied the relationship claim of Mrs. Edna C. Stiles, Pasadena, Cal.

Mme. Deslys died in 1920, leaving a large estate, now under probate in Paris courts. Mrs. Stiles claimed the estate on the ground she was an illegitimate child of the dancer.

Mrs. Palmer, formerly Mme. Marguerite Lafass, also a dancer, said she knew Mme. Deslys from 1910 to 1919. She said emphatically that no child was born to the famous actress.

Mrs. Stiles asserted in her claim for the estate that she was placed in a Peoria foundling home in 1885 and that one of her little fingers was cut for purposes of identification. The assertion was based on the testimony of an aged nurse. A check of foundling homes in Peoria and surrounding cities failed to reveal any trace or registration of a child sent by Mme. Deslys.

BIG INCOME TAX REVENUE SPURT

WASHINGTON, March 20.—(AP)—Income tax receipts from the March 15 collection as shown by the Treasury today totaled $314,200,558, exceeding by more than $40,000,000 collections for the same date last year.

This sum was the total for March as shown in the Treasury statement for March 18, made public today. It represented the total amount turned in at the close of business the preceding day.

Although yesterday's statement showed receipts running about $10,000,000 behind those for the same period in the preceding year, the receipt of $214,534,548 added to the Treasury balance on March 18 more than offset this shortage. The collection on the same day in 1929 amounted to only about $161,000,000.

Receipts so far accounted for totalled very near three-fifths of the budget expectations for the first quarterly income tax collection.

Treasury officials, however, still held that this was no definite indication that the expectation would be met.

Indict Two Council Members After Dry Raid

JOHNSTOWN, March 20.—Thirteen officers of the Johnstown Lodge of Elks, including Dan R. Schnabel and George Griffith, members of the Johnstown City Council, were indicted before United States Commissioner Ray Patton Smith on charges of violations of the Prohibition Act.

The arrest of the officials of the lodge followed a raid staged last Saturday on the Elks' home, when prohibition agents seized a large quantity of whisky and beer.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Brainy' Barlow

"BRAINY" BARLOW really wanted to go straight. That would indicate to a right-thinking person that Barlow was, to a certain degree, rather brainy.

It was "Duke" Mears who gave Barlow his name, and Mears did it in a spirit of sarcasm.

Barlow had drifted into the Duke Mears crowd easily enough and, in his way, had been of value to Mears.

Barlow had a habit of arguing. If Mears was planning some "job" Barlow would get in a word of opposition.

"Aw, we gotter use brains in this job," Barlow would say. "We gotter figure it all out—use the old bean and do it up slick so there'll be no come-back on us."

Usually Barlow's plans were not so good.

When Barlow fell down on a simple little job of loft robbing and did a couple of years for it, Duke Mears and his crowd got a great laugh out of it. To be sure, Barlow claimed he was all alone on the job, and wouldn't have squealed for worlds, but that was to be expected of him—or any of the others.

So it was that when Jim Barlow did his bit upriver and came back, Duke Mears greeted him with a laugh.

And from that time on Barlow was known, to his crowd, as "Brainy."

He had no thoughts of going straight then. Like the others, he believed a man who worked was an awful sap.

That was before Barlow met up with Polly Weston.

Chuck Jackson, Mears, Barlow and a couple others met some girls they knew coming from a movie house after the last show. Mears suggested they come up to his place and throw a party. They had sauntered down the dark street to the block where Mears lived.

Acts as Protector

Polly was the only girl in the crowd that the others didn't know, but being with Kit and Fanny and the other girls they did know, they took it for granted she was "one of them."

Barlow had noticed how pretty the girl was as they went past a lighted drug store window.

Polly said she would run along home when Mears suggested throwing a party.

"You'll run along with me, kid," Chuck Jackson said to her. She shook her head and started to leave. Chuck grabbed her by the arm to force her along into the building.

"Please—no—I can't go—don't be like that," Polly begged.

"Let the kid go, Chuck," Barlow said.

Chuck paid no attention to him and Barlow told him again to let the girl alone. Chuck gave Barlow some profane advice as to where he might go.

"Listen, Chuck," Barlow said. "We don't want any dames who don't want to come along."

Brainy Barlow socked Chuck good and plenty.

He might not have been a mental genius, but there was nothing wrong with his punches.

The others didn't interfere, because a scrap between a couple of the gang was held to be a personal matter.

Chuck Jackson knew better than to fight Barlow in that manner.

"I'll walk home with you, kid," Barlow said to Polly.

"Thanks for — for what you did, but if you think you will get any further than the outside of the front door, don't bother to come along," Polly told him.

The others laughed.

"Suits me," Barlow said, so they walked away together.

"That man was terrible," said Polly.

"What was he to expect—you was with them other janes."

"Oh — I —" Polly hesitated. "Not your crowd, eh?"

"I know Kitty. She works in the restaurant where I do, and we went to the movies together tonight."

"That's all right. I sized you up as different. What's your name?"

Falls in Love

Polly told him.

"What do you do?" she asked him.

"Me? Oh, I just sport around."

"Thanks, Jim, and good night," she said.

"That's all right. Suppose we date up for tomorrow night?"

So that was the way Brainy Barlow met Polly Weston.

And he fell hard for her.

Most of the crowd took it for granted that Polly had become Barlow's moll.

"Duke" Mears soon found out the true state of affairs and started to kid Barlow about wasting his time on a girl like that. He didn't get far.

It didn't take her long to make him understand that there would have to be a little ceremony at the marriage license office.

"All right — it suits me, Polly," Barlow agreed.

"And I think you're awful nice, Jim."

"Then let's get hitched, Polly?"

She hesitated and shook her head.

"If you had a regular job—no use to pretend. I know what you do, Jim, and I couldn't marry a man who was likely to go to prison for a long time or likely to get into worse trouble, and get the chair."

"Ah, Polly, I ain't doin' any bumpin' off—I'm too wise for that."

Polly shook her head. There were signs of tears in her eyes. "I'd be crazy about you, Jim, if you was doing something honest. Why not get away from that awful crowd and go straight?"

So they argued.

Decides to Go Straight

"All right. I'll look around for a good job," he told her.

Meanwhile "Duke" Mears, who was always fickle about his "molls," had been trying to make an impression on Polly. He often ate at the restaurant where she worked, solely to try and charm her with his flashy clothes and the line of talk he believed to be so clever.

Barlow slowly began to get wise.

Mears was planning a big job about this time. Barlow was to bear the brunt of the danger, as usual, and his slice of the money would be big. He didn't dare tell Polly about that. What he did "explain" to her was that he had a little money saved and before long they'd beat it away together and get married and live in some other city.

This pleased Polly. To make Barlow go straight and then to marry him was her idea of happiness.

The "big job" Duke Mears had in mind was to clean out a residence on Long Island. The owner was to be in the West, on business. There was a fortune in jewelry and plate in the place. One of the "Duke's" girl friends had worked there as a maid, at the Duke's clever planning. She gave Mears plans that would make it easy for him to clean up big.

When they planned it, in Mears' hideway apartment, Barlow, as usual, offered his advice and plans, only to be laughed at.

"What do you suppose we call you 'Brainy' for? It's because you're dumb, so listen and don't forget to do what I say," Mears shouted at him.

Came the time for the big clean-up job. Mears, Barlow, Jackson and little "Wire" Carter arrived by different routes to where their car was located.

The big place was in darkness and everything looked easy. But it wasn't so easy. A very wide-awake watchman was on the job. He opened fire and little "Wire" Carter squealed. "Got me!" as he fell.

"Hey, help me with Carter," Barlow called.

"Tell with him; come runnin'," Mears called back.

Rescues Injured Pal

But Barlow wasn't that sort. He got little Carter on his back and disappeared in a grove of trees. Mears and Jackson hadn't waited. Barlow bandaged Carter as best he could.

"I'll get you out, kid," he promised.

It took all night and a stolen car for Barlow to get Carter to the city and to his own little hangout.

Then they had to lay low.

Polly didn't see Barlow for weeks. When she did she asked him if he had killed the watchman.

He told her the truth. Polly was glad of that, but miserable because Jim Barlow hadn't gone straight.

"Wire" Carter hunted up Barlow and told him that Mears had a tip he was to be taken for the murder of the watchman and was going to pin it on him—Barlow.

"Brainy" was first frightened and then savage. That night he did a dangerous thing, he robbed the Long Island house where the watchman had been killed.

Then he called on Mears. He had a handbag with him, which he set down by the table where Mears stood, hand in pocket grasping a gat and covering Barlow.

"Sure I bumped him and planned the job. What I do is my business. You better take that bag and jump th' country. I'm not going to squat in the hot seat," Mears said with a curse.

Barlow laughed.

"In that bag is a little machine that recorded all you said, Duke," Barlow told him, "and I'm gonna take it to th' bulls."

Mears stared at the bag.

"That shows you got no brains. Here is where I smash it!" Mears leaned down and opened the bag.

A cloud came up into Mears' face. He gasped and fell unconscious.

Barlow put the stuff he had stolen from the Long Island house on the table, slipped out, telephoned the police a tip and beat it.

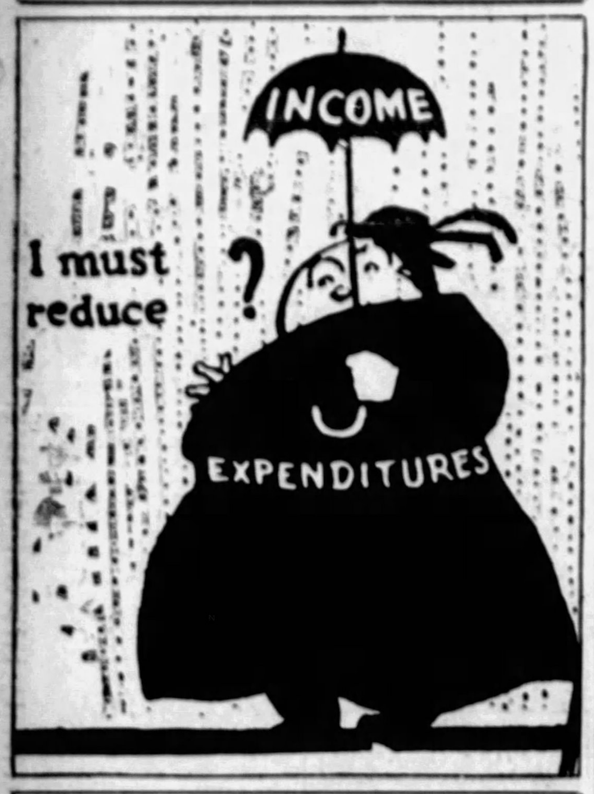
Have You a Budget System?

If Not, Take Frederick H. Ecker's Advice.



TOO MANY LIKE THIS.

Mr. Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, prints this picture and a useful warning.

The picture tells it well. Don't let your expenditures grow so fast that your income can't protect them. If you DO, you will know discomfort.

To his policy holders and the world generally Mr. Ecker gives this sound advice:

A man has small chance to get somewhere and be somebody if he is entirely dependent upon his next pay check. He is likely to be as helpless as a child if his income stops. . . . He wants to quit his job, but he doesn't dare. His boss would like to discharge him, but waits because he is sorry for him and his family.

If a man has not learned how to live within his income it makes little difference whether he earns $1,000 or $10,000—he will always be in trouble. But budgeting his weekly or monthly salary to cover expenses for the necessities and comforts of life will show him how to live within his income whatever it may be.

Do you know how the experts arrange a budget for salaries from $1,000 to $10,000? Do you know what per cent of the income should be spent for each of the general expense items—food, shelter, clothing, household operating expense, insurance, education, entertainment and investment?

When speculation is substituted for investment the last hope for safety usually vanishes.

Budgets have solved money problems in many homes. A typical illustration is furnished by a woman who provided a good home for husband, high school daughter and 12-year-old son on $200 a month. She reported that when they attempted to live without a budget they were always in debt and worst of all in mental and physical distress. Since their conversion to "the budget way" they have found they are able to live better and save 10 per cent.

Have you ever experienced the peace of mind and satisfaction that result from an intelligent budgeting of your income? With necessities provided for and a little money left over you have a far better chance to get ahead.

Mr. Ecker causes the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to publish for the benefit of its policy holders and the general public excellent expert advice on health and also, as you see above, advice on financial management.

This is sound philanthropy, but it is not PRIMARILY philanthropy.

Mr. Ecker attends first of all to his company and his policy holders, as he is bound to do.

He knows that a man who is told about health, and LISTENS, lives longer.

That is less expensive for the life insurance company, which pays at death. He also knows that one of the commonest causes of illness and premature death is WORRY.

The advice given above is calculated to diminish worry and prolong life.

Drop a line to F. H. Ecker, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Dept. 330J, No. 1 Madison avenue, New York City, and say, "Please mail, without charge, booklet 'Let Budget Help.'" Sign your name and address and you will get free information about budgeting incomes from $100 to $800 a month. You will find it useful.

P. S. FOR WOMEN READERS:

Women, mothers of families, who are responsible for the best possible use of the family income, are particularly interested in the budget system. They especially should write to Mr. Ecker and get the booklet on how to use the family money advantageously.

The budget system, which is found necessary by the richest men in the country and by the United States government itself, is particularly important to the family of limited income, which needs to know, at the BEGINNING of the year, just where it is coming out at the END of the year.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Tale of Two Cities

NEW YORK—The London Naval Conference has done some very nimble dental work on a leopard.

It has succeeded in diluting poison gas down to war strength and victims of atrocities must be notified in advance.

"Bugs" Baer

Bayonets will be limited to 16 inches during the fruit and berry season.

The nicest thing accomplished by the lost conference is the humanising of submarine warfare.

No passenger boats will be sunk within the three-mile limit where a bird has a chance to reach shore.

Further and more acute benevolence will be assured by the printing of free swimming lessons on the nose of each torpedo.

Foodships will be immune. The safest thing you can wave in the next war will be a sandwich.

When a first-class passenger is captured after a sinking he will be allowed to transfer his deck chair from the liner to the submarine.

There will also be shuffleboards and miniature golf courses on the decks of all subs.

No spy will drop a depth bomb into the bathtub of a boarding house nor shall French harbors be mined during the tourist season.

The only thing that can be shelled about a tourist will be his pockets.

Like Consul, the ape, who learned to eat with a knife and fork, the diplomats are leaving London thoroughly satisfied with their accomplishments.

They had a nice vacation, got paid for it, did nothing and had assistants. They are on their way back to Washington.

It's a small world after all, as the two worms said when they met in the apple.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THERE was a kid by the name of Johnnie that got licked by his mother 19 times for making faces. Other kids used to run and tell Johnny's mother when he made faces at them, just to see him make more faces when he got licked.

Well, one day, after Johnny's mother thought he was all cured of making faces, she caught him setting on the floor in a department store where she was shopping, making terrible faces at a bulldog. The bulldog was just grinning about it.

"See here, Johnnie," says his mother, "I thought you'd quit making faces!"

"Well, I have," he says, "but this time he started it!"

THEIR DAY IN COURT

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. WICKERSHAM thinks that Senator Norris shouldn't press his resolution for a senatorial investigation of prohibition enforcement. He maintains, in effect, that the laboratory method of his own committee is a more efficient and scientific process of fact-determination than a disputative, legislative survey. Mr. Wickersham feels assured that the worst gaps of enforcement are on the mend. He notes a decided improvement in the morale of federal agencies and, altogether, appears very chipper about the entire situation.

He urges Congress to quit hemming and hawing over the transfer of enforcement authority to the attorney general, from whose direction we are led to expect both a more vigorous and a more constitutional prosecution of rum-running and bootlegging. The public, however, might share his optimism to a greater extent if it were aware of the particular data on which it is based.

THE law observance commission has thus far robed its deliberations and hearings in an invisible cloak. Several million citizens, weighing the indecisive pros and cons with which the wets and drys have respectively confused their judgment, would be better qualified to evaluate the actual merits of the Eighteenth Amendment if they were possessed of the facts gathered by this dispassionate tribunal.

The layman mind is not a sufficiently competent thrashing machine to separate grain and chaff from the contending claims which the white ribbon and nullification camps have just laid before the House Judiciary Committee. Although the Wickersham group studiously evaded entrance into that debate, the opinions of its participants MUST to a marked degree sway their ultimate conclusions.

Prior to these hearings, no representative concert of voices was lifted against the Eighteenth Amendment.

FOR 10 years, church organizations and the Anti-Saloon League have practically tried John Barleycorn by inquest. Their influence has notoriously dominated congressional decision, without granting dissent its full day in court. The suddenly emphasized opposition to Volsteadism is the fruit of its OWN intemperance and intolerance.

The cry for nullification did not ring from coast to coast until confiscatory immoderation sought to cancel the franchises sprung from Magna Charta, the bill of rights, and originally vested in the Constitution itself.

AS soon as enforcement plotted to invalidate the law of search and seizure, and government officials were encouraged to make arrests without warrant; when highways, harbors and private domiciles were terrorized with federal gunmen; when innocent men and women were assassinated by border guards on unsupported suspicion of possessing contraband; when fanaticism dared to reach for their hip flask with five and ten year penitentiary sentences; and commonwealths, corrupted by the obscene lusts of modern witch-smeller, established beer-peddling as capital crime; when prohibition's ferocious hunger finally turned upon the jury system and proposed its restriction dormant and unbanded sentiment OVERNIGHT gathered force and coherence and demanded the SAME administration of prohibition, or its repeal.

THE Literary Digest's poll of the states serves notice upon Congress to revoke the Jones Act, break with the blue-noses, vote down the United States commissionership plan and remove casual prohibition offenses from the category of felonies, or face a drubbing in the next elections.

If Mr. Wickersham's ear is as close to the ground as it SHOULD be, he is aware, by now, that the recent rebellion on Boston Common is daily gathering thousands of new recruits to its standard. If not, he's too busy reading academic reports to note some fast changing signs of the times.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

DID you have a terrible time trying to decide whether you'll buy the blue hat or the brown, Mary? Do you get all rattled when they try to rush your vote on some business problem, Bill? Are you always choosing the wrong plan, or picking the wrong plan, and then wishing you hadn't?

Probably, if you're the average human, you are. And it's also possible that you think that difficult decisions are just a regular part of the pesky business of living. They aren't. Making decisions shouldn't be a burden to any adult. We can learn to decide quickly, without dwadling or friction or fuss, just as we can learn to walk or talk or use our hankies.

Why does it bother you to make decisions? Because part of you is still a baby. A baby never knows what to grab. First he wants the red ball. Then he wants the yellow ball. And which ever he gets he promptly wants the one he didn't. And generally ends up in a tantrum.

A baby can't help being that way. All the little mammals before him were that way. He's just starting to be human. He can't think like a man yet . . . he thinks like a mammal, in circles. Chase his feelings around like a puppy chases his tail. But he can be educated out of that, just as he can be educated into any other form of civilized practice.

You would have been saved endless trouble, perhaps real tragedy, in your personal life, if you had been taught how to make up your mind. And you'll save your child that same trouble and tragedy if you'll teach him to make up his mind right from the jump.

Make your youngster make up his mind from the time he has a mind to make up. Make him choose between the red ball and the yellow orange and then make him abide by his decision. Don't give him the red ball if he yells for it, after choosing the yellow orange. Make him accept the consequences of his own choice, for in no other way can he ever learn to make the right choice.

Make him make up his own mind and let him make up his own mind. You won't be hurt or bothered by his silly choices. But second-hand wisdom is as valueless to him as it is to you. Both you and he need to buy your own experience. We never learn what to pick, unless we pay the bill.

Isn't It So?

Virtue is cheaper. Two can go to church as cheaply as one.

When a church wants a new pastor they call him, and if the salary is large enough he hears them calling.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

THIS tilting is due to movements of the earth's crust, such as its shrinkage and consequent bending and folding during periods of cooling. Over all of midland and Southeastern England the tilting is usually slight but definite.

This was very favorable to William Smith, the British pioneer of geology, for, although it left no doubt as to which layer was above which, it caused new layer after new layer to come to the surface, open to investigation, as he passed across country upon his work of canal making. His genius worked under the luckiest conditions.

H. G. Wells

But in mountain regions they may be much more serious. In the Alps it is common enough to see layers of rock standing on edge, or even turned quite upside down; and in some regions, as in parts of the Scottish Highlands, the pressure has been so great that the rocks have been what we may call accordion-pleated — thrown into a whole series of deep folds, so that when seen in section on an exposed face they look like a fan.

Not only that, but what the geologists call faulting may take place. Under the stresses and strains of mountain-building or of earthquake, great layers of rock may crack across, and one side slip down or be forced up and made to ride over the other side.

At the time of the San Francisco earthquake a fault hundreds of miles long was produced, in which the whole country to one side of the crack fell suddenly from five to ten feet; but in mountain regions areas of rock may be faulted down hundreds of feet.

During these magnificent crumplings whole pages of the record have been made altogether illegible. Even when life has succeeded in writing its story on the rocks, the writing has too often been obliterated again.

The rock layers may be subjected to colossal pressures under great depths of newer deposits, or scorched by contact with huge intruding lakes of molten material from below, so that any contained fossils are squeezed, distorted, or baked out of recognition or even out of existence. The rocks themselves change their very character.

Such transformed rocks are called metamorphic; marble, for instance, is thus metamorphosed out of limestone, quartzite or gneiss out of sandstone, and so forth.

This difficulty becomes more serious as we go further back in the record. For rain and wind and frost never stop their scouring and splitting and wearing, and the younger sediments must all be derived from the debris of the old.

Whole mountain ranges, with their contained fossils, have been destroyed, worn down to level plateaus to furnish material for new layers, often hundreds or thousands of feet thick, which in their turn will be upheaved, and in their turn eroded away. Entire chapters of the Book of Earth have thus been pulped to furnish material for new pages.

Luckily, however, the makings of the book went on simultaneously in many regions, each one often of huge extent, and it is rare that all the records of a whole age have perished.

Then we must remember that fossilization is the fate of very few animals and plants. Only one in a million makes its mark in the Book of Life. The great majority of dead things simply decay and disappear and their material is returned to the general circulation of nature to be built up into the bodies of new organisms.

But it should be remembered it is preserved more permanently; it falls into mud or silt or some place where the bacteria of decay cannot get at it. Insects have been caught and sealed and preserved for countless years in amber.

The bodies of mammoths can be dug out of frozen mud-cliffs in Siberia with the skin and flesh still preserved. And even when the flesh decays away the bones may escape the dissolving action of rain or other waters and ultimately find their way into the palaeontologist's cabinet.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 20.—The automatic restaurant experiment was launched about 20 years ago with a salvo of chuckles. It became the immediate topic, ha, ha, of vaudeville and musical revue jesters. Today it is one of the most profitable forms of public catering and stage folk are the most regular customers.

In the greater city there are some 30 automats doing a capacity business day and night. In the beginning a visit to the automat was looked upon as a lark, indulged chiefly by out-of-town gawks. It provided a tale to saucer eyes when they got back home.

The first, the biggest and still the best patronized automat is hard by the Globe Theater on Broadway. Here, as in all others, patrons supplied with nickels at the change desk near the entrance roam about the display of dishes in the glass slots making selections.

There are marble-topped tables dotted with crepitant paper napkins to which the food is carried and there is, of course, no tipping. The profits are due largely to the fact the customer sees so many tempting dishes at a trifling cost he provides himself with more than he can eat.

Sandwiches, deserts and soft drinks average 10 cents each and meat orders are around 20 cents. The average patron spends 30 cents at lunch and 50 cents for dinner. The most popular order of all is a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee.

There is a heavy midnight trade, especially in the Broadway zone, where theatrical people and musicians drop in for a late snack. There is also a big "carry out" trade among those who bring paper sacks and fill them for boarding house feasts.

The automat does not thrive solely on a thin pursed clientele. It draws carriage customers. After the theater and in the early morning men and women in evening clothes are plentiful. Too, there is always a sprinkling of "cafe clowns" to add a touch of hilarity to mechanized eating.

A gentleman called up this morning proudly to announce he now owns Hell, explaining: "My wife gave it to me last night."

Eight cats in New York are valued at more than $2,000 each, and two shops deal exclusively in fancy felines. A beauty parlor specializes in cleaning cats after the method of the royal household of Siam. Just now the White Persian cat is the most popular, because of its rarity. A cat expert estimates it costs five times as much to keep a pedigreed cat as a pedigreed dog.

New York's most famous chef declares experience has taught him the favorite soup of the majority is vegetable. And tapioca pudding is relished more than any other desert. He bases his conclusion on empty dishes following the serving of these two standbys.

Brooklyn has not outgrown its "Victorian taint." Every afternoon chaste ladies drive forth from Brooklyn Heights in closed carriages for a turn in the park with curtains drawn. There are many old timers in Brooklyn who look upon the monstrosity across the bridge with disdain. Indeed, a number refuse to cross the East River into Manhattan's vulgarity.

The shyest violet in town is Edwin H. Anderson, director of the public library. He refuses to be interviewed.

O. Henry once said the late William Johnston, author and editor, knew New York better than any man of his generation. And Johnston before his passing several months ago told this observer: "In fifteen years the theatrical and cafe life of Broadway will be above Columbus Circle." Paste that in your hat!

Capsule novel: They were talking of one of Broadway's good fellows. "He will," said an admirer, "give you the shirt off his back."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

YOU think the world has used you unfairly.

It is your grievance that you work as hard and as consistently as any one else, but your income is a pittance.

Whose fault is it that you chose a poorly paid line of work?

You may not be fitted in temperament, ability and business judgment to be and to earn any more than you do at the present time and it is regrettable.

But is it not a fact that despite your early handicaps you might have prepared yourself for a better position had you been willing to accept hardship and exercised strict and concentrated application to foundational work?

Instead you were figuring upon how few hours you should work for a stated sum.

You convinced yourself that the world owed it to you to devote only so much to work and have so much more time to play, and you haggled about it.

Instead of climbing slowly upward in the night by devotion to your job and its fine performance you bickered for more pay and less work.

No thought and study beyond hours—no time involved in an effort to make a living wage.

It is how well you do your work, how expert are you at your job and sense enough to pick out a job that does pay well and learn it from the bottom up, if you want to keep yourself growing mentally and do more serviceable work.
